These chapters were identified by the source as the Washington, D.C., Chapter; four chapters from the State of Vermont; the Bellingham, Washington, Chapter; the St. Louis, Kentucky, Chapter; and the Salt Lake City, Utah, Chapter. Nine chapters of the VVAW are no longer in existence and were not represented.

Of the VVAW/WSO chapters present, the Chicago Chapter, the Southern California Chapter represented by BARRY ROMEO, and the New York City Chapter represented by JOE URRGO, were the most vocal. The caucus adopted a temporary name of the National Anti-Imperialist Forces to represent the groups present, and all of the chapters present with the exception of the Northern California Chapter, the St. Louis Chapter, and the St. Paul, Minnesota, Chapter adopted this new name for the organization. The three chapters which did not adopt the new name stated that they would agree to continue to call themselves the VVAW/WSO.

The main theme of the caucus was the desire of the members present to form a new national organization whose purpose would be to take up an armed revolution against the U.S. which would be communist supported but not Revolutionary Union controlled. The new organization formed would until a new name was decided upon continue to operate under the title, the National Anti-Imperialist Forces. source was of the opinion that as a result of the caucus a new organization would be formed from the VVAW/WSO which would be similar to the formation of the Weatherman at the time the Weatherman eplit from the Students for a Democratic Society. It was the source's opinion that the caucus was definitely against the Revolutionary Union and the individuals that now represent the national offices of the VVAW/WSO. The source felt that the VVAW/WSO would cease to exist by the end of 1975 as a result of the meeting in St. Louis.
