Dear Friend,

We are sending you this issue of The Militant as part of a national campaign to publicize and solidarize with the inspiring revolutionary upsurge of French workers and students. History is moving at an ever-quickenning pace; the struggles of black Americans, the courageous Vietnameese, and now the French masses reverberate throughout the world as a beacon in the fight for a better life for all humanity.

It is time to take a stand. As Socialist Workers Party candidate for U.S. Senator from Washington, I pledge to dedicate my campaign in part to supporting the French uprising. In my opinion, the issues raised by the workers and students of France clearly reflect the problems confronting their counterparts in the U.S.

We must ask your help. Now is a time to think big! We are! Because of the importance of the French developments, we have ordered large bundles of the next several issues of The Militant to circulate throughout the Northwest. We are touring the area with speakers and literature on the revolt in France. If ever the French people needed our support, they need it now! But, like the French demanding a living wage, we, too, lack funds to match our enthusiasm. Please reach in your pocket and send us what you can -- however small, it will help. Ten million Frenchmen are in the streets with no pay -- playing a vanguard role in the fight for a better life for working people throughout the world! Help us tell Americans about it!

Very sincerely,
Debbie Leonard
