TO PROTECT GIRLS IN 'PHONE GRANT

Woman's Trade Union Will Insist Upon Clause Conserving Operators' Welfare

In order to assure the best possible onditions for the women who find em-loyment with the telephone company owhich the gas, oil and light commit-ce of the city council may give an or-inance, the Woman's Trade Union league of Himois is preparing to take action.

It is more than probable that that body will pear before the committee and urge that a clause be embodied in whatever ordinance is passed fixing a minimum scale of wages for telephone operators and the length of the working day.

At present the operators are juite well cared for and the league feels that no chance of altered conditions should be risked.

Levi Mayer, counsel for the Manufacturers' Telephone company, which is opposing the Chicago Telephone company in the fight for permission to control the phone service of the city, stated to the council committee Monday morning that his company was willing to submit to any conditions the committee might feel disposed to demand.

committee might feel disposed to deinstid.

It is therefore up to the council committee to see to it that the company, if it be granted an ordinance, pays living wages and does not menace the health of its employes by overwork, the friends of the working girls assert.

Tuesday night Mrs. Raymond Robins, president of the league; Miss Anna Nicholes, its secretary, and other prominent members will hold a conference to consider the advisability of making a demand that will protect the operators for the life of whatever franchise that may be granted.

"The telephone girls are cared for quite satisfactorily at present," said Miss Nicholes, "but whether or not they will be under new conditions is in doubt. If the company that wins in the fight is willing to do the right thing, then it can have no objection to a clause that will assoce the protection of the employes; if the city authorities have the interest of the workers at heart they cannot find reasonable excuse for turning down such a clause."

A NIGHT WITH THE CITY LEGISLATORS

Aacting on the ingenuous assumption that a subordinate body may legislate to suit itself, regardless of the former rulings of a higher body. Alderman Dunn introduced an ordinance in the city council last night reducing the cigaret tax in Chicago from 3100 to 315. In explanation of his action Alderman Dunn explained that the measure was the work of a delegation of retail to-bacco dealers and was offered in the hope that the state anti-cigaret law, effective July 1, would be thrown out by the Supreme court. The ordinance, like the state law, forbids the sale of cigarets to boys under 18 years of age. All chance of passing the telephonordinance before vacation was wiped out by thme decision of the council to adjourn July 8, to reconvene Sept. 23.

Darrow described the purposes of the federation, showing that it is an industrial organization and not a murler organization, as had been represented to the jury by the prosecuting attorneys. He declared that the miners organized to raise wages, shorten hours, secure better machinery, cleaner mines and better conditions of toll.

He pleaded guilty to the charge that the Western Federation of Miners had interested itself in politics by trying to elect men to office who would manage the affairs of government according to the interests of the working class. But he denied that the organization had countenanced or engaged in cats of violence or crime.

Following the lead of the prosecution Darrow reviewed the labor strikes of the Coeur d'Alenes and Cripple Creek Instead of admitting that union metomatited the crimes that accompanie the strikes, however, the attorney said that he would show that agents of the nine owners committed the crimes for the purpose of discrediting the organization, and that the Mine Owners association was responsible for nearly every act of violence that featured the labor wars.

Western Union Says It Will Have Nothing To Do With Labor Organization and Repeals "Offers."

That the commercial telegraphers will be forced into a widespread battle with the agreement-breaking and deceptive Western Union now seems certain.
Following the announcement by the company yesterday that it withdraw its offer of arbitration when the Oakland strike began, leaders of the union decided that a general strike is almost certain to be forced upon the wire workers.

Whipsawing.

By using Neill of the federal labor bureau, Clowry and the corporation have almost succeeded in making it appear that the wire men walked out in the face of a fair offer of arbitration. Capitalist newspapers are not loath to give support to this idea, although those familiar with the situation know that Clowry through his superintendent control of the complete of the union and cause trouble within the ranks of the union.

It is an old game, but ladications are that it will fail in this case.

The situation in Oakland today is entirely satisfactory to the strikers and to their fellow-workers throughout the nation.

Neither the Postal nor Western Union has been able to give service that announcement given out at New York by President Clowry, withdrawing his letter to Labor Commissioner Neill, until such time as the Superintendent Jaynes at San Francisco. Two of the most important providing that committees were those in providing for arbitration should the committee was called a committee of employed called upon Jaynes to present their request for an increase in wares owing to the high cost of living nince the arbitration and cause trouble within the ranks of the union.

JUVENILE DEPRAVITY IN NEW YORK CASE

Youths of Tender Age Accused of Bingham Gets a Hunch Which Does Peddling "Coke"

New York, June 25.—Judge Herr, in the Fourth precinct court. Newark, sent three boys to jail for the action of the grand jury. They were Emil Mueller, 15 years old, of 43 Lincoln street. Charles Bruns, 16, of 47 Lincoln street, and Thomas Winkler, 20, who said he had no home. They were charged with having sold cocaine to the children of the Mortor and Camden streets public schools.

Two boys, 12 and 13 years old respectively, one from each school, accused the three youths of peddling the cocaine. They said they had been investing their pennies in the drug ever since last March. They said that many other pupils of the schools also bought, the stuff. One of the boys said he came to New York with a cocaine soller while the latter purchased an additional supply.

The bolstered up appearance of calmness and indifference with which the Western Union officials speak about the strike of telegraphers turns into a sorry sight when one sees the officials in their private offices "planning and devising" schemes how to deliver the stacks of telegrams which have been laying about the building for the last three days.

An operator, for eight years in the employ of the Western Union, whose name cannot be printed for fear that he will be blacklisted, gave the Chicago Daily Socialist the following interesting facts regarding the true situation in the offices of the Western Union in Chicago:

The Western Union is behind in its delivery of messages as follows:

Manufacturers' Company Before the Council Committee Again; Friend of Busse Is Named

The gas, oil and electric light committee of the council gave the telephone ordinances another whiri this morning, and incidentally got a gimpse of a $500,000 check which the manufacturers company sent by its aftorney, Levi Mayer, ready to be signed as soon as its ordinance should be granted.

Levi Mayer, ready to be signed as soon as its ordinance should be granted.

Not only did the new company promise to pay the city $500,000 a year, the first payment to be made immediately after the granting of the ordinance, but it agreed to spend $20,000,000 on a plant. All that was wanted, Mayer said, was a flat rate of $50, and it the council in its wisdom should decide that this was not enough, then it had the right to decrease it.

A hint was thrown out by Mayer that was not lost on the committee. It was that Fred W. Upham, one of the close friends of Mayor Busse, was interested in the company.

Delegations appeared before the body from the Lumbermen's association and others favoring the adoption of the independent ordinance, further consideration of which was postponed:

BEAU HICKMAN OF ALL TRAMPS MAKES A KICK

Says Rods and Bumpers Are Not So Soft as They Might Be; Wants a Radical Change

Baltimore, Md., June 25.—A hobo, known professionally as "A No. I," called on President Murray of the B. & O. Saturday to complain that the rods and trucks under cars are not as comfortable, for the tramp fraternity as they might be.

This tramp is a Beau Hickman among his fellows. He is clean and wears a $35 suit of clothes, carries toothbrushes, powder and finger-nall files in his pockets, besides a little box of poison which he intends using should he be caught in a wreck.

he intends using should he be caught in a wreck.

The tramp's name is unknown, but on account of his peculiarities he has been accorded unusual attention among officers, for when he gets into trouble he flashes the cards of some "high guns" and is liberated.

"A No. 1" did not find President Murray in his office, but if he had, it is claimed he would have had no trouble gaining an audience. In the meanwhile his complaint will be registered in the proper channels

Taft to the Rescue.

M. H. Taft, an attorney on the excursion, was detached from his family and friends and left on the hostile shores to fight single-handed the awful authority of the now famous CHIEF. Taft hastened to the bastile and requested that he be permitted to see his clients.

This was refused.

When he said "Hist!" the face of fraenckel appeared at the barred window. There in the darkness Att "nay Taft held a legal conference with the men he must bring back to Chiczgo. The CHIEF was asleep at the switch. Early today Taft saw the city attorney. This high official said he would determine in the course of events just what the charge against Fraenckel and Hardy would be.

The Real Reason.

The daughter of the CHIEF, who was in the buggy in which her brave father charged the crowd of plenickers, gave the real charge.

"They were arrested because they were Socialists," she said innocently having heard that President Roosevelt himself had called all these innocent appearing folk "undestrable citizens."

The account of the sensational brovery and courage of the police head is about as follows: First Act.

First Act.

The South Haven Socialists bad gone to the city hall to ask for a permit for street speaking. They found that the mayor was out of the city and there was no one having authority to grant permit. So Hardy started to speak without a permit, as there had never been any objection hitherto.

After be had spoken a few minutes a policeman came along and ordered him to stop. Not wishing to discurb the enjoyment of the day with a struggle, even for what was their undoubted rights, the Socialists at once called off the meeting.

Rushing vallantly into the midst of the haif dozen Socialists, the CHIEF ordered Fraenckel to "move 6..." Before Fraenckel could obey the CHIEF grabbed him and commenced to lerk him around and to generally "rough house," evidently in the hope of "starting something."

A Great Success.

A Great Success.

Aside from this the excursion was a tremendous success, and the result of the arrest may yet turn out to be the biggest success of the whole day, if the officious officers of some small tow is can be taught a lesson.

"Say, but we would have had a good crowd if it had not rained," remarked Barney Berlyn, after working twenty minutes to get ten feet through the dense mass that packed the decks of the steamer. God's Plan.

"God has planned these meetings," said the Tongue's leader. "He has brought you all here together. You are to discard your jewelry to start the work of building. We will turn the old gold and silver into money. A big building will at once be erected to replace the tents. We will maintain our own school, for in the public schools Christ is not taught."

The converts were organized into a company, to be called the World's Pentocostal society. Lupton was chosen president. Believers in the Tongues will be asked to come here from all parts of the country.

One Meal Enough,

A newspaper is to be launched. Negotiations are on with J. H. King, publisher of a Pentecostal paper in Royston, Ga., who is here. Food continues to be furnished free to . Why the Operators Struck; Chief Operator Bares Conditions

$50 a Month for Manager of Office-Meager Salaries of Men Drive Them To Take a Firm Stand whenever a man of high salary was discharged or resigned his place was filled by some one at a decrease of $5 a month.

It was absolutely necessary for a young boy learning telegraphy at any given point to leave that place in order to get a higher rating in salary, no matter how proficient he may have become in the work, and notwithstanding the fact that he was used daily on first-class circuits. This alone has had the effect of making travelers, or what is known as tramp operators, out of a great many of our men.

Carry Many Men.

Carry Many Men.

Carry Many Men.

Carry Many Men.

The companies have been in the habit of carrying a great many men on the extra list, forcing these men to report early in the morning and remain, in many instances, idle for from one to four hours without compensation. The higher officials of the company, while claiming they would take up any grievance of their employes, have never shown a disposition to do, so, and in all instances have taken for granted as the truth and acted upon the matter as placed before them by their minor officials.

They tell you of men grown old in their service, but do they tell you that these men's salaries have been reduced from time to time until they are now working for a mere pittance? The Telegraph Age not long since printed a story of a man now working in Omaha, Neb. who has been in the Western Union service continually for thirty-five years; they say he was at one time manager ef the Omaha office, later the Sloux City (Ia.) office, and many other positions of trust, but after dealing at great length on this man's loyalty to the Western Union and his many years of service they fall to say that he is now employed at the pairty salary of FIFTY DOLLARS per month in the same office he was employed as manager thirty-five years ago.

Is It just?

Is It Just?

Is this a just reward for these years of faithful service? I know the man to be exemplary in every respect. I leave it to all honest thinkers to judge whether he has been treated fairly by these men who are now claiming. "We are always ready and willing to adjust any and all grievances of our employes."

Just any and all grievances of our employes."

Does the public know that the commercial telegrapher is compelled to sit at his table nine hours a day and work at a nerve wrecking speed continuously during that period, with a division chief, oftentimes, man of overbearing nature, standing over him and asking. "Can't you speed up a little?"

That the commercial telegrapher during the rush season very often is compelled to work for hours without a lunch relief?

That the commercial telegrapher can not get a short respite, or as we term it, a short relief, only at the will of these division chiefs?

That the telegrapher has to not only get the message from the wire, but has also to transcribe it on a typewriter?

It is said no man can do two things at once. The commercial telegrapher has to decipher the dots and dashes, and some instances the Phillips code (telegraph shorthand), and then turn out a typewritten copy.

necessity.

They tell us we have the right to come as individuals and ask for an increase, but not collectively, "that is an insult to the dignity of these high officials."

Frightful Red Tape.

Prightful Red Tape.

Understand that in case we take it up individually we have to first ask it of the chief operator, "who has implicit instructions to run his office at the very lowest cost." If he wishes he can refer the matter to his manager with recommendation that it be granted, the manager in turn to the next higher official, and so on until it reaches "the throne," where nine out of ten times it is denied, and even if granted has to take the same course back as it did forward, and the man is months waiting to get his raise.

We organized not to harass the commercial companies, but for the nurpose of neking for, and demanding, if qecessary, our rights and that which is justly due us.

It due us.

The high officials deny us our constitutional right, the right of all citizens, and say we cannot organize, and if we do they will not meet our committees.

We promised them in good faith that in organizing we would an onthing detrimental or unjust; that we would, if possible, render even better service in the future than in the past if they in turn would treat us fairly. But, not they refuse us the right to organize try to hoodwink the public into the belief that we are ingrates. Their position is untenable. We court the investigation of the public into our methods and feel that the verdict will favor us.

This time a former janitor in the hospital, Joseph Brinberg, declares that he found the charred bodies of five infants in a stove and has given the authorities dates upon which such discoveries were made. The janitor declares the infants were born on the premises and disposed of by burning, but whether they were dead before they were placed in the stove he cannot say.

Upon this will depend in a large measure the contemplated prosecution of the woman whose alleged hospital has been attractions.

In addition to these charges there is one of contempt in Judge Chetlain's court. Dora Politasy had testified that she gave birth to a child in the hospital and was held a prisoner in the place, compelled in her weakened condition to perform the most mental work and do hard labor.

Later, it is alleged Mrs. Brendecke offered the girl $200 if she would leave town until the thing blows over. For this the woman will have to reckon with Judge Chetlain. Another case is that growing out of the testimony of Edna Warner of Momence, Ill., who testified that she was admitted to the hospital in her hour of trouble and then blackmailed.

OPEN ALL NIGHT SPECIALTIES PRESTAPEITE, CONTRACT POSTERS

A strike is essentially a battle. It is one of the moves in the great war of the class struggle.

All the tactics of the battlefield are employed. There are certain general rules, called laws, that are supposed to restrict the fighters, just as nations at war have agreed by international convention not to use certain methods.

Consequently there are well-defined tactics in a strike as there are in military movements.

In each strike many of the same methods are used by both sides that have previously been tried.

The progress of the telegraphers' strike to the present time shows that the employers are trying tactics that have frequently been tried before, and that, because they have proven successful, will frequently be tried in the future.

These tactics depend for success largely upon the fact that they are not recognized by the workers as hostile moves. Yet it would seem that laborers must be almost blind not to begin to grasp the methods of their enemies.

One of the things for which both sides play is "public opinion." Partly because of the effect which this public opinion has upon the minds of the fighters, partly because of very real effects in bringing Denmark, Sweden, France, Germany, or withholding financial aid, both sides seek to secure this "public Spain, Greece, Ceylon, Sydney, Montopinion."

The employers are especially clever in manipulating "public materials for manufacture and general opinion." This is because it is, after all, largely manufactured by them, through the organs which they control.

There is a trick which the employers have played over and over of late years which has proved very effective in securing the right sort of "public opinion."

After having invited a strike and brought affairs to a point where lay-bye erected at a cost of over 8,000 it is inevitable, some supposed "third party," some government official, or some professional intermeddling agency like the Civic Federation appears upon the scene and frames up some sort of a fair sounding concession, accompanied by an apparent offer to arbitrate.

If the union stops the preparations for a strike, or calls off the strike which has perhaps already been ordered, the men are disorganized, the first enthusiasm is dampened, the workers are more or less confused and percaps disheartened, and when the matter is settled it is found that nothing has been gained. The union soon tered there. On the day when the ship begins to disintegrate and the weary work or organization must be gone over again.

If, on the other hand, they proceed with their strike all the organs of capitalism take up the cry that the men have been called holds the distinguished position of out by designing leaders on the eve of concessions-that they have standing as "No. 1" on the register refused arbitration, that they are mere trouble breeders, that they are disturbing industry that leaders may gratify a sense of power or worse, and all the other stuff that serves so effectively to build boats, the new Pioneer and the Fraterup a "public opinion" hostile to the strikers.

This game has been played many times.

IT HAS JUST BEEN ATTEMPTED IN THE TELEG-RAPHERS' STRIKE.

United States Commissioner of Labor Neill, one of the cleverest of these official stalking horses, came in with some sort of a proposal to arbitrate. At the same time the company made an indefinite offer to arbitrate something, although just what no one seems to know.

The telegraphers refused to bite at the thinly disguised hook. They struck and are now in the midst of the fight.

At once the machinery of "public opinion" was set in motion. A lying dispatch appeared simultaneously in nearly every newspaper in the country telling of quarrels between officials of the union and of disaffection among the men.

THE WISH WAS FATHER TO THE THOUGHT. THERE WERE NO QUARRELS, NO DISAFFECTION, BUT IT WAS HOPED THAT THIS REPORT WOULD CAUSE THESE

Happily the scheme so far has failed. The men have now refused to be fooled. They are still standing firm and are ready for battle

The next step will probably be to offer some other form of meddling by outside parties. If any nominal "third party" owned and controlled by the employing class can interject itself into the conflict it will do so under the name of arbitration or mediation.

LET THE TELEGRAPHERS REMEMBER THAT THERE IS NO "THIRD PARTY." Every person is either a producer or a parasite. He lives by his own labor or that of some one else. THERE IS NO OTHER WAY TO GET A LIVING.

EVERY ONE OF THESE "MEDIATORS" WILL BE FOUND TO BELONG TO THE PARASITIC CLASS LIVING ON SOME ONE ELSE'S LABOR.

Therefore they are simply the employing class in disguise.

It is always better to deal with the capitalist openly than in disguise.

The bargain must finally be struck between the workers and the capitalists. Each will yield what it has to and keep what it can. Therefore there is no need for the intervention of any capitalistic agents in disguise. Working men and women on strike can no more afford to take advice or mediation from those who are in the employ of the enemy than a military army can yield its command to spies for the hostile

NEITHER CAN THEY AFFORD TO TAKE ANY POR-TION OF THEIR NEWS FROM MEDIUMS CONTROLLED BY THE CLASS THEY ARE FIGHTING.

The working class must fight its own battles. It must make its own public opinion, strike its own bargains with the capitalists while capitalists remain, and finally abolish capitalism and capitalists by securing collective ownership of capital itself.

Nearly everyone has heard, and used the phrase Machiavellian, but ot on reader in a million ever saw the book which gave rise to the words, Machiavelli's "The Prince," and it makes mighty interesting reading to one who recognizes the relentless of the modern class rule, to see how clearly and frankly this writer of 400 years ago saw these

One of the great uprisings of the workers in modern times was he Peasant Revolt" of Germany in 1525. This was the greatest workng-class movement of the age. It had a wide influence on the instuions and succeeding history, yet it is passed over with a bare mention y most historians.

Here is the only place so far as we know where the "Twelve Artieles of the Peasants", which state their grievances and their demands are accessible in English. It is a picture of the laborers striving to lighten the burdens of eudalism, a most instructive chapter for the student of the rise of the The greatest rebels of the Middle Ages were the Dutch, and they vere first in modern times to declare that rulers are responsible to the people and can be deposed by them. To the reader of English the "Declaration of Independence" in which these doctrines are set forth is an unknown document, and few scholars would even know where to find it for reference.

Here is Cortez' famous account of Aztec civilization, the great tore-house of information on this subject, always one of the most ineresting to the student of institutions.

The English Revolution, which brought the bourgeoisie into power n that country contributed a mass of documents that are fundamental n the growth of human liberty. Here is the "Petition of Right", the First Writ of Ship Money", "Pym's Speech against Stratford", and 'The Grand Remonstrance", "Magna Charta", and the "Bill of Rights".

Soon we begin to see the dawn of modern ideas. Locke argues hat "The Basis of Property is Labor", laying at once the foundation upon which the whole capitalist political economy is reared and the nine that is overthrowing the foundation, for once it is admitted that labor alone justifies property, while for moment it creates private prope..y, ultimately dooms capitalist property, which rests upon exploitation and not labor.

Next we have Petty's work, showing that value also depends upon abor, and the germs of the Marxian economics come into view, 300 years before "Capital" was penned.

Another contribution is made to the growth of the same set of ideas when Lych: writes his "Origin of Political Societies and the Right of the People to Revolt."

All this theory is but expressive of the revolutionary forces that were soon to break forth in the French and American revolution, each of which furnished a number of historic documents, some of which are now difficult of access, since capitalism has become conservative.

One of the greatest storehouses of information on the growth of American political institutions is the "Debates of the Constitutional Convention," which there seems to have been almost a conscious conspiracy to keep secret. They are here, and occupy perhaps the most space of almost any single document. This is well, for their value is almost in exact ratio to their inaccessibleness to the average reader.

The French revolution rightly occupies a large space. Here is Arthur Young's "Condition of the French People," in 1787, the classic desc:.ption of the horrors which preceded the great uprising.

There is the list of grievances of the "Third Estate," in which capitalsm gives its reasons for overthrowing feudalism-documents of all sorts that marked epochs and told stories in those stirring times.

The civil war and slavery gave rise to another series of great historical documents, and it is hard to name one of great importance that is not here.

Now we reach modern times and are not surprised at finding the Communist Manifesto," Marx's "Doctrine of Surplus Value," and Engels' "Socialism Utopian and Scientific." Every Socialist will agree that it would be impossible to make a better selection than these from his literature, and he will find that the expert in every other line is equally

The biologist will find all the great epoch making works of his line of thought, and will think that because of their fullness that the compilers must have leaned '50 heavy in his direction. The same will be true of the theologian or the student of the evolution of religion. That such a set of books are interesting no one will deny. They will be read when novels will be neglected. In many ways they are superior to an encyclopedia, and especially for the person who is a real student and wishes to form his own opinions. The Socialist has been foremost in introducing the comparative historical method of study, which has accomplished such wonders in modern thought. This set of books seems especially compiled for this method.

The work is one over which it is easy to grow enthusiastic, difficult to find faults.

Let us' reason over the real problem that lies back of the edudren of the work-ing class. Today we are liv'ng in a time when there is a class in society powerful and con-trolling that is in-terested in ex-

For centuries there have be ones in society who have lived in ease while the great mass of the people have struggled to feed and cloth these few. The mass have been variously called slaves, serfs, and today these workers are only another kind of slave, n wage

Always the rulers have depended on the ignorance of these workers to keep them in their place. There is never so safe a plan as to make a man or coman think he is his own master while he is being exploited. This has been worked out in the school work that is used for training the children of the workers.

The only interest of the ruling class

The only interest of the ruling class today is to make the working class just intelligent enough to do its work for it but to keep it in such a position intellectually that it will lack initiative and so lose the power to rebel against conditions. Prince Bismarck said: "An educated working class is a menace to any ruling class."

educated working class is a memace to any raining class.

There has been and is being made, an effort on the part of big business interests to make the schools of this city feeders for the factory. While the grade schools have been neglected, the manual training, which in our city schools is so conducted that it flagrantly lacks in educative value and is merely an effort to turn out artisans, have been built up and especially fostered by wealthy employers of labor. To be sure, the men who are conducting the schools are shriwd enough not to go before the people and state their baild educational program. They talk fairly well on the pedagogical side. They would be useless to their capitalist exaployers if they did not. But while there is much discussion of pedagogical questions the fact remains that the practice "r the schools is to make the children mere machines.

To Clean Polished Furniture

Gb over the furniture with a cloth dipped in paraffine oil and allow it to stand for an hour, which will loosen the dirt. Next wash the furniture with a suds made of oure soap and rain water. Rub very dry with a soft cloth and polish with a piece of white fiannel dipped in turpentine. This will not injure a plane, but restore the brilliant polish. Furniture gets dull because it is dirty and needs to be cleaned with soap and water.
