By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, two boys and two girls, not yet of age, are on trial for murder at the Criminal Courts Building, in the same room where money saved the lives of the millionaire youths, Loeb and Leopold.

Assistant State's Attorney Michael Romano asks for "the rope" to hang "Peggy" Valanis and her girl chum, Lucile Marshall, both 18 years old; facing the gallows with "Peggy's" brother, "Red" Valanis, and William Lydon.

"We wanted money for clothes and fun."

That is the defense. They say they didn't mean to kill. They just wanted some of the money that belonged to a Mrs. Bessie Gaensslen, boarding house keeper, who had more of it than they. In getting it they killed her.

The capitalist law, thru the prosecutor, will weep over the dead Mrs. Gaensslen in order to secure a conviction. But it will not be thinking of her. Life is cheap under capitalism. It can easily be replaced.

But these mere children tried to get property that cap-italism said didn't belong to them. That is their greatest offense. Capitalist justice must protect the thing most sacred in its eyes—private property—and that is why it will go hard with "Peggy," Lucile, "Red" and "Bill." * *

What a change in the surroundings since the Loeb-Leopold trial! No millionaire fathers with their purse strings untied and streams of gold flowing for expenses. The father of the Valanis boy and girl is a helpless inmate of the Soldier's Home in Milwaukee.

The Hearst press, that slobbered over the rich youths, Loeb and Leopold, always fashionably dressed, jeers at the clothes worn by these children of the working class. Here is just a paragraph:

"Unlike their predecessors, Leopold and Loeb, who occupied the very chairs only a short time ago, the youthful quartet furnish no fashion news. 'Red' and 'Bill' wore the same loud suits, brown and blue respectively, with wide white stripes and cuffs and the girls swaggered into the courtroom in their cheap little black coats, trimmed with imitation fur."

Then the judge orders the trial rushed. He rules out all further references to the poverty of the defendants as compared with the riches "of others recently tried here," that the lawyers were making in examining prospective jurors. There was no rush at the Loeb-Leopold trial. They were given all the time required. Their trial dragged interminably.

But in this matter of clothes. It was only yesterday that 1,000 delegates to the Mexican Federation of Labor convention at Juarez, crossed "The International Bridge" to attend the meeting of the American Federation of Labor in El Paso, Texas. They came in their work clothes; their overalls, cotton trousers, sandals, the cheap clothes, then underpaid worker and peasant. U. S. immigration officials were horrified. They tried to prevent them from coming into this country. Surely these couldn't be the delegates of labor organizations in convention assembled. But they were. And they crossed the Rio Grande River and on to the Convention Hall where the "grand dukes" of U.S. organized labor, paunched and be-jewelled, were assembled. They made a startling comparison. The labor lackeys of American capitalism, Fascisti in the making; while the proletariat." Outline Demands.

The Communist conference con cluded that the execution of the Dawes plan will shortly make itself felt in the economic circles of the three main countries, France, Germany and England.

The participators in the conference have therefore consulted upon the best means of helping the workers in their countries in their frightful social and economic position. The whole of those present were fully convinced that the London plan must be opposed by an entirely different plan.

This other plan consists of socialization, of the expropriation of the mines, banks, and big industrial undertakings, of the nationalization of farge land estates and housing. These socialized undertakings are then to be placed under the control of workers' and employes' organizations. This socialization can only be secured by the dictatorial power of a workers' government, and by an alliance with Soviet Russia.

"In order to insure immediate security for the existence of the working class in face of the capitalist offensive and the devastating results of the experts' policy," the conference decided the following demands are to be striven for:

A minimum eight-hour work day with a minimum wage, security of employment for all workers, habitable living accommodations for all workers, adequate nourishment for all the population, and security from the brutal taxation of capitalism.

Mexicans, revolutionists, who had swept Diaz and his successors into the discard, and still fighting for "All Power!" into the hands of the workers and peasants of Mexico.

These four children of the working class, on trial for murder in a Chicago court room, took the wrong way to get some of the good things of life. To be sure they needed money for clothes. They are young and they need a "little fun"; and that costs money, too. But capitalism is too strong for the individual worker who transgresses its laws. Only thru the organized strength of all workers can capitalism be conquered.

The Communist movement needs all young workers who aspire to something better. It will teach them that the lone effort of the individual to lift himself under the present robber system is in vain. The youth of the nation must be educated and organized, in the fight for the better day, to abolish the capitalism that holds it in chains, and win liberation under the oncoming Communist era. Then there will be fewer boys and girls of the working class facing "the rope" in capitalist courts; but the foundations will crumble quicker under the decaying capitalist social order.

Rescued by Soviet Rule. The plight of the Jews in the old 'pale of settlement" within Russia is indeed desperate. Tho politically freeer than anywhere else in Europe, and socially the equals of all other Russian citizens, with equal intellectual opportunities in all universities and equal chances in government, they are as a race economically ruined.

First the world war passed across the naked battalions the cuirassiers many of their settlements, then the groms, and when at last the Soviet government rescued them, its policy of building up government and co-operative trade spelled ruin to vast numbers of Jewish private traders.

Before the war the chief occupation of the Jews in Russia was petty trade. Denied free access to land, to universities, or to the industrial centers, they were compelled to live in little towns and to exist by trade with the surrounding peasants. Fifty per cent of all Jews in Russia are estimated to have been thus employed. Arrested On Charge of Transporting Girls

(Special to The Daily Worker) CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 19 .- The Wyoming State Federation of Labor is rallying to the support of Rev. B. J Minort, who is being framed up by the United States government in Nebraska, because of his friendliness to labor. Minort, who aided the striking railway shopmen in 1922, is now pay ing the price. Thru the insistence of labor, Minort was appointed state humane officer. Because of his continued activity in behalf of labor, Minort has been arrested on charges of transporting two females from Wyoming to Nebraska, altho it is well known that Minort was engaged in taking the girls home to relatives as part of his work.

Dropped from Church. The Wyoming Federation of Labor has issued a call to all affiliated bodies to raise funds to defend Minort and care for his family, as Minort is now destitute. Minort was dismissed as preacher in 1922 by the railroad magnates controlling his church because he favored the striking shopmen. A heavy prison sentence hangs over Minort's head as the result of the frame up of the employers in Wyoming and ebraska.

Cotton Manufacturers Discuss Sweating Of Mill Workers

(By The Federated Press) BOSTON, Nov. 19. - How to get more work out of the worker was the theme of speakers before the second days' session of the National Associa; tion of Cotton Manufacturers.

Wallace I. Stimpson, of the Draper corporation urged employers to break down the workers' traditions against operating more looms. He cited the case of a worsted manufacturer whose employes refused to change from six to twelve looms per weaver. This manufacturer "now has a mill out in the woods where the weavers don't know about these traditions and expect to run sixteen looms per weaver," said Stimpson in his advice to the audience.

"Wage cuts are not the real way of lowering costs, but thru more work," was his parting message.

Joel M. Barnes, of Harpham, Barnes. Stevenson and company, charged that loom fixers were loafing and that a bonus system was needed to pep them up. Other speakers urged speeding.

There is no loafing in New Engand cotton mills that a visitor can detect, Speeding is already the rule. How much this can be intensified is a risky guess.

Nationalization Progressing Backwards

The American Federation of Labor's executive council is seeking out every measure which smells El Paso, the executive council retreats from the position of the Portland convention of one year his mask. ago, where it expressed itself favorably toward the government ownership of super-power, and says "Industry must solve its own problems or we face the alternative of state intrusion which must inevitably lead to bureaucracy and breakdown."

Outside of the ironic situation of the union bureaucracy sitting in the midst of a brokendown labor movement solemnly condemning bureaucracy and breakdown, there are other elements of this report of the executive council deserving of comment.

Particularly in the mining and railroad transportation industries of this country, the system of private and corporate ownership produces limitless chaos in production and ever increasing misery to the workers.

Through private capitalist ownership of the coal mines the non-union fields are being used to break the union in the organized fields for the benefit of the operators in the organized districts who are, unquestionably, in league with and supported by the operators in the non-unon fields.

The cry "competition is closing the union mines down" is pure buncombe. The mine operators, union and non-union, are in a conspiracy to wipe out the U. M. W. of A. And John L. Lewis is quite agreeable to this program, or the U. M. W. of A. would do some real fighting for nationalization of the mines.

In the railroads the workers are continually and loudly harangued by the companies, their representatives in congress and their propagandists everywhere, to the effect that the poor corporations are barely making both ends meet and that the starving widows and orphans who have "invested their hard-earned money" simply cannot afford to grant wage increases. Indeed, they can be saved from the poorhouse only by reductions in wages.

Yet who is so simple minded and so unmindful of the history of how the railroads of this country were built and are maintained as to swallow this piffle of invested capital and poverty? The railroads of America were built at the expense of they take care not to get caught. the public treasury or the public land or both, and Street. These worthy gentlemen have played with them, ruined them, got the government to repair with whole oceans of watered stock piled onto the backs of the railway workers. Yet the railroad unions have not only failed to fight for nationalization, they have even given up the mild demand for application of the Plumb Plan. The Trade Union Educational League has raised the banner in these two basic industries for nathat such nationalization be undertaken under strict control of competent miners and railroad workers and will exclude bureaucratic commissions of lawyers and capitalist politicians. the retreat in the struggle for nationalization by the A. F. of L. Certainly if the convention at El Paso does not act in favor of nationalization of railroads and mines the workers in these industries cracy.

The "boom" seemed to be justified by the fact that the railways were placing orders for rails, locomotives ance pending the outcome of the election. Building plans were held up on the same grounds. Even tho the railways might have feared adverse legislation in case radicals were elected to congress, nevertheless such holding up of orders is also an election maneuver. It is a repetition of the Mark Hanna method of terrorizing the workers into voting the "right' ticket and scratching the "wrong" one, in fear of losing their jobs. The Annalist comes to the conclusion that "in the main, the problems and the prospects of business are precisely what they were before Nov. 4."

Dawes Plan to Cut Our Wages.

In prospect, however, of the Dawes olan and the general offensive of the capitalists against the workers, manufacturers all over the country reiterate the demand for the cutting of wages. With the assurance of the assistance of the reactionary government of Coolidge and Dawes, not only the workers but also the office personnel will have to face the issue of foreign competition. Longer hours and lower wages, and for the office forces in addition a cutting of personnel. The farmers will have to compete with the exportation of more than 1,000.000 demand for goods, and there is no they are holding tight to their money, tons of Russian grain. Russ Harvest Permits Exports. MOSCOW, Nov. 19. - The Russian export of agricultural products, in spite of the bad crop failure affecting the southeast, will not be less in value but greater than last year. The grain crop is nine per cent less than last year, tho the acres sown were seven per cent more. The total harvest is estimated at 2,700,000,000 poods (one pood, 36 lbs.) or 240,000,000 less than last year. But the harvest in other crops has notably increased, especially the crops producing vegetable oil, flax and hemp, cotton, milk, meat and leather. Despite these exports the famine areas will be cared for.
