angry masses without hope of accomplishment, but is becoming a permanent historical event of the greatest world importance, is seen in the crystallization of national feeling thruout all bacco, wines and dried fruits, was China. On Monday a nation-wide general strike to last one day, with parades and memorial voted down by 277 to 93, with 20 meetings for the dead will paralyze the nation. The continued bitter strikes and growing demonlaborites voting with the conservstrations spreading everywhere, the unity of commercial and military elements with the students

+and workers against imperialism-especially Great Britainthe new tone of mastery in sharp notes sent by the government to foreign powers, the moving of Chinese troops to areas of conflict and the victory of the Kuomingtang armies at Canton over the mercenaries who were bribed to rebel with British and French money-all proves that China has set foot on the path of revolution which may or may not stop with bourgeois national independence, but is certain to tear away the foundation of western imperialism.

Feng Threatens War on England

The new spirit of national revolution was well voiced by the most powerful army leader of China, General Feng Yu-hsiang, at Kalgan, where -addressing a great mass meetinghe openly threatened war on England unless apology and indemnity for the murder of the Shanghai strikers and students at Shanghai and Hankow were given by Britain. General Feng frankly warned that the present army of China is to be reckoned with as far superior in equipment, training and morale to the formless and weak forces the imperialists scattered before them when they conquered China under the Ching dynasty.

General Feng directly commands approximately 120,000 troops, and the most powerful military influence in the Peking government which is in formal authority over the rest of the Chinese armies.

that where Spain and France have failed separately, they

French imperialism wants to send its troops onto Spanish territory to fight Abd-el-Krim. Even the tottering rule of Primo de Rivera, at Madrid, refuses to join heartily in this offer. French troops, if they succeed against the Riffs, may forget to leave the territory claimed by Spain.

The conveniently absent-minded diplomats at Paris, with the League of Nations ready to render a timely decision, may leave the French flag where the Spanish emblem desires to fly. That is Primo de Rivera's fear.

The French complain against his very successful "infiltration thru the French lines." It's the old story of their fear of "Communist propaganda." So-called "missionaries," not

'LOCO' PRESIDENT PASSES; BOSSES LOSE GOOD MAN Warren S. Stone Was

Business Leader

(Special to The Dally Worker) CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 14 .- In he death of Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the capitalist class has lost one of its most capable labor lieutenants.

One of Stone's proudest boasts was that he never lead a strike. He never lost his temper with the bosses but did not consider it beneath his dignity to get nasty with the radicals.

Stone was the proud father of labor banking and the most prominent of the business labor leaders which the labor movement in this country has thrown up during recent years. One of his accomplishments was the coal mining venture known as Coal River Colleries, which he ran open shop and thus got into a controversy with the United Mine Workers of America.

Two Fakers Quarrel.

The verbal battle between Lewis of the mine workers and Stone gave the capitalist class much aid and comfort. Both labor fakers cared nothing for the interests of the miners, but Lewis was a Coolidge republican while Stone was a La Follette republican. Furthermore, Lewis was obliged to make a bluff at fighting the nonunion operators while Stone had to show a profit to his union scab mine stockholders.

Stone was one of the strongest backers of the La Follette movement. It is a peculiar coincidence that the leader of that movement and its chief backer were both old men, standing on the brink of the grave. It symbolizes a class doomed to political extinction.

The class collaboration policies initiated by Stone will be carried out by his successors. Stone managed to retain a reputation for progressiveness until the end, among liberals and pseudo-radicals.

the shoulders of the rivalries of imperialist groups.

In addition, however, to these contradictions under cap-italism; the antagonisms between the different imperialist nations and groups of nations, and the efforts of the so-called "civilized" nations to hold in bondage the small, weak nations and colonial peoples, there is the added struggle between capital and labor in the home countries, creating powerful Communist parties that lead labor's march toward its own liberation. One of the most significant phases of the North African crisis confronting European imperialism, is the brilliant attack on French capitalism led by the Communists in France, not only in the French chamber of deputies, at Paris, but on the streets, and in the factories and

With fascist Spain hanging on the ropes after an unsuccessful struggle against these capitalist contradictions in the growing arena of struggles, imperialist France is still in the ring fighting desperately but no more successfully. Premier Painleve may take an airplane flight to the African front; the renegade "socialist" Briand may pull the wires at Geneva, capital city of the League of Nations, and a whole flock of Paris statesmen may descend on Madrid for consultations, but the franc keeps falling, and another government edges toward the abyss in Paris.

Lenin has called imperialism "perishing, decaying cap-italism." Truly that part of European imperialism that clings to North Africa smells to the heavens, just as much as it does in China and everywhere else. The job of cleaning up and eradicating this putrid mess from off the earth belongs to the epoch of World Soviet Rule under the International Proletarian Dictatorship. That job falls no less on the shoulders of American workers and poor farmers than it does on the backs of labor over the rest of the globe.

For the entire clothing group the drop was 12.4 per cent. Employment gains were reported from the automobile, food and building material industries.

Placements of men thru the free employment offices were 12 per cent less than in May, 1924, and less than half the number in 1923. There were 145 applicants for each 100 jobs. Hiring of unskilled labor at the Canal Street, Chicago, labor market was reported the lightest in years.

Less Jobs in N. Y. Factory employment in New York state fell 1 per cent in May following a decline of 2 per cent in April. Steel mills and railroad equipment shops again led the decline while clothing factories showed a heavy seasonal drop. Commenting on the advanced depression the industrial commissioner says:

"Metals again determined the course of factory employment. But decreases in industries such as furniture and pianos were equally important in indicating the widespread nature of the retraction of recent months. Both these industries were a little below May, 1924, when the de-pression was already well advanced." Steel Orders Fall Off.

Unfilled orders on the books of the U. S. Steel corporation, fell 396,768 tons in May the operations had been reduced to about 70 per cent of capacity. This was a much larger reduction in orders than predicted. It brings the ment. down to 4,049,800 tons compared with 5,284,771 tons on Feb. 28. In 1923, the orders on hand averaged about 6,000,000 tons and in 1920, 10,000,000 tons. In 1913, when the capacity of the mills was much smaller the average was 5,900.000.

Legislature Passed One Futile Labor Bill Grantcharov was one of the most active workers among the peasants

By CARL HAESSLER

Organized labor of Illinois is provided with but partial satisfaction for its wrecked legislative program by the passage at Springfield of the modified bill to limit injunctions in labor especially after the fascist putsch of disputes. The governor's signature is expected since it was his pressure that pamphlets on the question of the unitput it thru the house after passage ed front and also edited a whole numin the senate. Two of the four Negro ber of left wing peasant newspapers representatives voted in favor. The bill provides in essence that peaceful picketing shall not be restrained by injunction and that employes shall not be restrained by injunction from quitting their jobs or peacefully trying to get other employes to quit also.

Teeth Taken From Bill Labor's original measure prohibited injunctions of all sorts in labor disputes except to prevent irreparable injury to property. States like Wisconsin where anti-injunction statutes have long been on the books have found that judges always manage to get around the law when they want to. The Wisconsin State Federation of Labor's anti-injunction efforts, though successful in the legislature, have failed so far to make the lower or higher judges pay proper heed to the protective laws. achun, last federal war time political prisoner released from McNell Island prison in March, is on his way to the Soviet Union in accordance with an agreement between the war department and the American Civil Liberties Union, which secured his release. The war department insisted that Karachun leave the United States for Russia within 90 days of release on commutation of his 20 years sentence for deserting the American army in Siberia.

Karachun, a Russian citizen, enlisted in the American army when the United States was fighting with the allies, including Russia. He was sent to Siberia after the revolution and quit the army to join his countrymen. He says that the Americans can scarcely have been said to be holding the country-they were guarding some rusting tractors and machinery on the docks. When captured by American troops Karachun was sentenced to death after court martial in Manila. Military authorities lessened the sentence later.

The Russian served four years of his 20 and came out of McNeil Island prison almost too disgusted to speak of the American prison system. Conditions at McNeil Island, in Puget Sound, Washington, are as bad as in any of the other federal penitentiaries in Karachun's opinion but on a smaller scale. representing working class interests. Thus the "Federated Press" was formed in America, but its lack of capital scarcely permits it to compete with the great agencies. And in Germany there is the "social democratic parliament service," which has of late made the attempt to organize a foreign service. But all these organizations are but weak, and the "social democratic parliament service" is naturally social democratic.

Up to now the Communist parties have made no attempt at forming independent agencies for the news service. The German Communist Party forms a praiseworthy exception to this rule, for it has founded the "Communist Press Service," which at least reports the events of the German labor movement from their original sources The telegraphic agency of the "Inprecorr" took up this work lately, but has so far been obliged to confine most important events in the labor movement, on party life in Soviet Russia, on the white terror, etc.

At the present time the Communist press is thus dependent on the bourgeois sources for information regardplace in the labor movement of the this, or at least very little.

From my own observation I fail to notice that the federal government cares any more about the Negroes than the states. When I was in the army at Camp Jackson, S. The officer told me they could not but that their council "lilly white" had never asked to have them tried.

AS SURE AS DAY OR NIGHT -:- OR THE REVOLUTION

The development of proletarian writers proceeds with the growth of the Communist movement.

In this development the Little Red Library offers unequalled opportunities.

All subjects of working class interest can be covered: social and industrial problems, history, philosophy, fiction, poetry and art ... the field is well-nigh unlimited.

There are only these main requirements: the work must be clearly of working class character and interest, and . . . bear this in mind-

It must for the present at least, be limited to 10,000 to 30,000 words.

Original manuscripts will be given most careful consideration-and translations and suggestions for reprint most heartily welcomed.

BUILDERS AT WORK IN NEW YORK

THE Hungarian Yorkville branch of New York pledge that it will secure at least sixty new subscribers for the DAILY WORKER during Red Week. This news is just brought in by the wide awake DAILY WORKER agent of that branch, Comrade Szepesi. If every New York branch will follow the splendid example set by these Hungarian comrades then the circulation of the DAILY WORKER in New York will double next week.

A COMPLETE catalog of DAILY WORKER subscribers is kept up to date at the DAILY WORKER New York office thru the volunteer help of Comrades Frank Miller, Rose Chester, Fay Croll and Rose Schwartz. This catalog is available for the use of Branch DAILY WORKER agents and organizers. Every DAILY WORKER branch agent should bring the list of branch members, compare it with the subscription list, and then get after those members who are not yet subscribers until they do their duty.

THE New York office of the DAILY WORKER at 108 East 14th Street has a few sets of the Magazine Sections of the DAILY WORKER containing all instalments of Comrade Lassen's wonderful story, "Masters and Slaves" that have appeared to date. Get a few of these sets during Red Week, ask some of your friends, neighbors or shopmates to read Lassen's masterpiece and they will surely want to subscribe to the DAILY WORKER to get the rest of the story.

F you have not yet settled with your branch for the Paris Commune Press Pageant subscription tickets you must do so at once. Every subscription ticket must be returned or paid for. Naturally your branch can not balance its account until you do so. The New York District Executive Committee will be asked to take disciplinary measures against those who neglect to make this accounting.

English Branch in Boston Aids T. U. E. L. with Picnic Funds

WORCESTER, Mass .- The English Branch of this city at its last meeting decided that twenty-five per cent of the proceeds of the picnic to be held July 19 would be sent to the Trade Union Educational League. This action was taken on the basis of the letter sent to the branch by the district office instructing all branches and C. C. C.'s to arrange an affair for the benefit of the Trade Union Educational League.

An interseting debate has been arranged between A. F. Lewis, organizer for the remnants of the socialist party in this state, and Comrade Max Lerner, local organizer of the Workers Party. The debate will take place on June 19 at the M. C. O. F. Hall, 112 Front street. On this occasion the socialists will be given an opportunity to hear of the role they have been playing as the tools of the bosses in this country.

Open air meetings are being held every Sunday at the City Hall. Last Sunday Comrade Tom Bell, acting district organizer, was the chief speaker. Fine audiences are attending these meetings, and much literature and many copies of the DAILY WORKER are sold to the crowds who attend.

GERMAN PLUTES IN NEAR PANIC AS CRASH GROWS

Thousands of Workers Laid Off in Ruhr

BERLIN, June 14 .- A condition of industrial concerns built up since the war. The failure of the Stinnes interests has rocked the stock market and sent industrial issues to the rope. Stocks are on the toboggan and there is no relief in sight. The Dawes plan is groggy.

Ruhr and Rhineland firms are laying off men; one plant turning loose one thousand employes. Several other concerns have laid off their help. The industrialists are planning to use the present industrial crisis to return to a ten-hour day without an increase in wages.

The German steel concerns have failed to negotiate a deal with the French magnates and are now turning to England.

NEW YORK, June 14 .- The scrubwoman in the large skycrapers of New York are being replaced by men who operate an electric scrubbing machine. Each machine requires a three-man crew and cleans corridors and main halls where most of the foot traffic tracks in the dirt. The motorscrub is followed by a rubber "squeegee" which draws up the water and the last man finishes with a dry mop. The scrubwoman herself still does the hand work in wash rooms and tidying up office while the heavy labor is given the men. Three men do the work of 20 scrubwomen in the halls of the Equitable building.

Light by Radio.

NEW YORK, June 14-Lighting your house by radio is predicted by Bernays Johnson, radio engineer and wireless inventor, on his departure for France where he will buy mineral salts and chemicals for use in his new transmitter. The electrical worker will no longer have to wire the house to provide electrical illumination but bulbs will be lit anywhere in the house, even when you are carrying them in your hand, by means of radio. By connecting Johnson's transmitter with outside current feed wires, the bulbs will be lit all over the house. The new system can be installed for $22 the inventor claims.

Communist Deputy Exposes Their Plight

By ALFRED KNUTSON. (Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany (By Mail) .--- The farmers of Germany, just like the farmers of America, have to fight against high taxes, high rates of interest and high prices for industrial products. Ernst Putz, Communist member of the reichstag, himself a working farmer from Bayarn, on May 15, delivered a speech before the plenum of the reichstag on the bad condition of the farmer in Germany and showed how little the government is doing to alleviate the evil. During the speech, he read a statement which said in part:

"Because of high prices of industrial products, high taxes, interest and rent, as well as because of the damage done to crops, by unfavorable weather conditions, large numbers of small farmers in all parts of Germany are faced with utter ruin.

Peasants Face Ruin.

"The situation in many places is already such that houses and barns are deteriorating, land and cattle being sold and the children becoming sick from under-nourishment. Numberless families of small farmers have for months eaten only bread and potatoes.

It is to be expected early in the year, when the slim and half-spoiled food supply is used up and the taxes fall due, that the condition will be still worse. . . .

Putz also read several letters he had received from his farmer constituents, one of which read as follows: "You have no idea of the great poyerty in the farmers' homes. Our principal food is thin coffee, bread and potatoes. We work merely that taxes might be paid. Is it possible that there is no justice in the world?"

The big landowner in Germany is sitting pretty. He does not suffer like the small farmer. Putz showed, for instance, that "der Groszbauer (the large farmer) paid in taxes only 3.60 marks (about 90 cents) per unit of land surface, while the small farmer paid 24 and 25 marks ($6 and $6.25). and also that six-sevenths of the real estate taxes were paid by the small and middle farmers and that the big land-owners, who dispose of most of social democrats attempted to rob the the land paid only one-seventh of such taxes.

The Death of Stone

The death of Warren Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, may bring new alignments in the labor move- both military dictatorship and foreign Germany amounting to $170,000,000. ment. Gompers is gone and the personal enmity between the two has been liquidated by the grave.

Stone was popularly supposed to be more to the left than Gompers, but nevertheless it was Stone who engineered the first big class nese nationalists. collaboration scheme in the labor movement-the brotherhood bank with its connection with the Empire Trust company, of which Charles Schwab is a director. The success of this enterprise from the capitalistic viewpoint has been an inspiration to the other unions which have launched similar schemes without being able, however, to become an integral part of the Wall Street financial machinery.

Stone was typical of the middle class labor leader. His advocacy of a reform political party separate from the parties of big capital had the same basis as LaFollette's-the need of the middle class for a party expressing their class interest.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is probably the best example of an organization of the labor aristocracy. Under Stone it was difficult to discern any difference between its attitude towards the bosses and business generally and that of such middle class organizations as commercial clubs and other associations of merchants.

This group is in a constant struggle with the big capitalists, but diplomatic relations by China with the also hates the working class. Therefore when the individual members of the brotherhood formed a stock company, bought and operated coal mines in West Virginia with Stone as manager, it treated the United Mine Workers of America exactly as any other stock company would which was not strong enough to engage in an actual struggle-that is it paid somewhere near the union scale, but refused to recognize or deal with the union and its committees. In other words, Stone ran an open shop.

One of the achievements of Stone was the Locomotive Engineers' Magazine-a new venture in trade union journalism. Its political oreintation resembles that of the liberal British journal, the Manchester Guardian, and it has not as yet descended to the slimy depths China was to be a part while Japan to which the official A. F. of L. and socialist press has plunged in and the European powers wanted the war on the left wing and the Communists. It is difficult to say, however, how much of this was due to Stone and how much to the editorship of Albert Coyle. If we were asked to make an estimate we would say that the Locomotive Engineers' Journal represents fessing friendship for the Chinese the best there is in the middle class in the United States, but that its pacifist policy, its emphasis on co-operation and general intellectual tone is approved of by a very small section of that class.

It is probable that the new alignment of which we spoke above WHY THERE ARE ANTI-FOREIGN will be brought about by the inclusion of the Locomotive Engineers, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and one or two unions in a bloc either in or out of the American Federation of Labor continuing in mild manner the movement for a split with the two capitalist parties. President Green needs something of this kind to strengthen his machine against the old Gompers element and he is more likely to enter an alliance of this kind than to fight these groups.

Yuan's plans failed, however, and he died-some say of a broken heart. $B^{\rm UT}$ to come again to the events of the early months of 1917. The American embassy went to work in

THE intrigues that finally brought earnest to persuade or coerce a declaration of war from China. How the understanding that she would recover diplomatic part of the maneuver was the former territories stolen from her carried out is described as follows by > President Wilson was solely responsible for instructing on Feb. 4, 1917, all his agents in neutral countries to advise them to sever relations with Germany. How it was carried out in Peking was left to the responsibility of the American Minister, Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, sometimes acting with and sometimes without, the instructions of Secretary of State Lansing. To show America's abundant power and to hasten compliance on China's part, Dr. Reinsch secured an entourage of capable experts, skilled in man pulating Chinese political thought. He himself was "the apex of the wedge.".... Next in point of capacity was Dr. John C. Ferguson, counsellor of the Chinese Red Cross Society, and so in semi-official relations with the Chinese government. Next came Roy S. Anderson, son of a methodist missionary and familiar with the intricacies of Chinese officialdom. Along with these two Americans there were brought into the secret two Australians. One was Dr. George E. Morrison, a paid political adviser of President Li Luanhung to look after the special interests of China. The other was W. H. Donald, editor of the American magazine, the Far Eastern Review, and for some time correspondent of the New York Herald.

Then there came another duet, "writing men," Charles Stevenson Smith, representing the Associated Press and Samuel G. Blythe, representing the Saturday Evening Post.

TT surely would be hard to collect a smoother-tongued coterie, all of whose members were in a position to bring pressure in the press on the Chinese nation and its officials.

Fortunately for humble chroniclers of these events, the individuals engaged in the noble work of deceiving a peaceful nation in the interest of the imperialist bandits have not been backward in relating, for the edification and enlightenment of other patriots, the methods by which they carried the message and wishes of American "democracy" to the Chinese. WRITING in the Saturday Evening Post in April 1917, Blythe describes the campaign. For hours and hours, day and night, Peking resounded with speeches to timid Chinese made by these urgent Americans and the two invaluable Australians, urging, forcing, begging, cajoling, and showing the Chinese who were needful to toe the mark. There was no rest. There was no soft-pedal business. It was a big, hard, two-fisted campaign, and he who dallied was a dastard; and he who doubted was doubly damned!

Two secondary arguments were used to support the main one already mentioned

That China should form a tentative alliance with the United States and That China, aided by the United States, would be able to resist the encroachments of Japan.

OF this period Reinsch says:

.... I was in conference with the legation staff and with certain nonofficial Americas.... of great influ-

John C. Ferguson addressed himself directly to the premier and the president.... Mr. Roy S. Anderson and W. H. Donald.... who were close to the members of the Communication Party and the Kuo Ming Tang, addressed themselves especially to the leaders in parliament. Dr. G. E. Morrison.... had long worked to bring China into the war (remember the arrangement to make Yuan emperor .--- W. F. D.) he quietly used all his influence with the president and high officials, in order to make them understand what was at stake. Other Americans and British newspapermen, like Charles Stevenson Smith and Sam Blythe, who happened to be in Peking, tirelessly working in their own way with men whose confidence they enjoyed, urged the policy proposed by America. ("An American Diplomat in China," Pages 244-245.) THE steam-roller was in operation and the Chinese, proceeding upon the fallacious theory that America was their friend, began to yield to the pressure. But there were many doubters and that some of the Chinese officials sensed the danger to their country and the Chinese liberation movement is shown by the following extract from the book quoted above:

At a second interview with the president, he asked me: ""Would not a positive active foreign policy, particularly if it should lead to war, strengthen the militarist party?" I replied that in my opinion such a contingency would strengthen decisively the central government, enabling it to keep the military in their proper place as an organ of the state and preventing the further growth of the pseudo-feudalism inherited from Yuan Shih-kai. "But would the American government assist China in bearing the responsibilities of such a step?"

.... I had to cable the department of State for instructions as to what assurances I would be authorized to give to the Chinese government.... the scable connection -was broken and I failed to get any reply to assist me in the negotiations.

BUT the lack of instructions did not champer the American minister to any great extent and on February 7, he sent a note to the Chinese government which stated ... I do, however, feel waranted in assuming the responsibility of assuring you in behalf of my government that by the methods you have suggested, or otherwise, adequate means will be devised to enable China to fulfill the responsibilities consequent upon associating herself with the action of the United States | with in the next article.

government, without any impairment of her national independence and of her control of her military establishment and general administration.

THE United States had therefore made promises to China to aid her in achieving her independence-promises she had no intention of keeping and which she subsequently repudiated.

Meanwhile the flying squadron of mperialist lobbyists was keeping busy. The Chinese were given no rest and the most active of all was this great "friend" of China's Reinsch. the American minister and Wilsonian democrat.

Let us hear from Sam Blythe once nore

There was no let-up in the work. Dr. Reinsch was indefatigable. He had repeated audiences with the president and with the premier. He worked night and day, and he captained the squad that was working with him At this juncture Dr. Reinsch rose and declared himself in a vigorous and American manner. He told the Chinese exactly what was proposed to them; what the benefits to China would be. And he also told them that their attempts at compromise would not suffice. They must go the distance or not start. Also, the Flying Wedge enunciated the same sentiments-not in the diplomatic language of Dr. Reinsch, mayhap, but in words that were to the point What we wanted was an adequate declaration anat would align China with the United States, and were content to leave the question of breaking off diptomatic relations to a later date. The Chinese did not know this and they were much perturbed Chinese. They argued shrewdly that they had no grievance with Germany; that there had been no situation anterior; and that to do this thing would be like walking up and assaulting an old and unoffending friend.

THE Chinese government finally yielded to the pressure and broke off relations by the American method of writing a note demanding the cessation of submarine warfare-a demand that Germany could not and would not accede to.

China was not yet in the war but had taken the first step.

It is probable that most Chinese did not at this time believe that an actual declaration of war would follow but they were soon undeceived. The struggle between the pro-war and the antiwar factions with American diplomacy fanning the flames, and the terrible blow to the Chinese liberation movement which resulted, will be dealt

As for the banking and investment enterprises organized by Stone, they are too well established now to be affected by the death of one individual. Like the union which is their foundation, they are deriving their vitality from that of capitalism and a crisis in American capitalism will change the complacent outlook of the members and stockholders.

Japan Must Choose

Upon the reversal of their iron policy towards China and their ability to convince the Chinese that they have abandoned the idea of military conquest depends not only the future of Japan, but the course of present events in the Far East affecting Great Britain, respect to a strike or an organized China, Soviet Russia and the United States.

Japanese policy in China since 1894 has followed a straight line. The China-Japanese war of that year, in which China was defeated. gave Formosa to Japan and established her in Fukien province on the mainland. The Russo-Japenese war of 1904-05 gave Japan the dominant position in Manchuria and Korea. The world war of 1914 the one crossing it is called Wai-haibrought the defeat of Germany in China by Japan and Great Britain vei road. I could see the coolie pantand established Japan in Shangtung.

Two imperialist rivals were eliminated in these wars and Japan now is trying quite obviously to drive the British out, but due to trade. the rise of the strong nationalist movemnet which Soviet Russia sympathetically supports, she must choose between war and peace. The days of forcible penetration of China by Japan are over. She must enter a Russo-China-Japanese bloc against western imperialism or find herself isolated.

That the strong liberal bourgeois movement in Japan is pressing the Japanese government to follow the former course is shown by the anti-British articles in the Japanese press, the resolutions of Sikh is trotting by. He sees the narmerchants' associations supporting the Chinese protest movement rowly averted collision. and the hands-off tactics pursued by the Japanese military forces in China.

In connection with all this, if one wants actually to understand the mighty role played by the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in the present world situation one need only read between the lines frightens the gasping Chinese. of the dispatches from the Far East. The workers and peasants of Soviet Russia are shouldering their way to the Pacific and the Chinese masses are helping to clear the way.

The growing labor and revolutionary movement in Japan is another indication that Japanese workers and peasants will welcome the advent of this ally of the toiling masses of all the world.
