MOSCOW, Aug. 26 .- England fight ing America for the supremacy of the seas, for oil, for markets, for the right to be the world's banker-this is the picture in the foreground of Bolshevlsm's vision of the future.

Today Karl Radek adds his voice-to the ominous prophecy of Leon Trotsky that the next world struggle will be between the two giants of the English speaking race.

Money Interest Supreme. Neither he nor Trotsky allow other factors than those of economics to weigh in the balances. Strictly Marxian and rigidly materialistic, they argue that the money interest in the long run will outweigh the ties of blood, of language and of common tra-

Writing in Pravda, the official organ of the Communist Party, Radek declares: "The world's history does not know a case in which two mighty industrial powers, possessing the great fleets, have not struggled against each other for the supremacy of the world. That is why the Anglo-American conflicts must lead to war."

Seek to Co-operate Now. He admits that the time is not yet ripe for the fulfillment of his forecast. England and America now try conscientiously to cooperate, he says, but the relentless force of economics pushes them steadily apart.

Radek's views may be taken as typical of Bolshevik thot about America. "England," he cites, "has issued an embargo on the export of capital, whereas the United States during the last six months has exported not less than $1,070,000,000.

Australia Borrows in New York. "Australia," he continues, "could not receive a loan in London, but had to borrow $75,000,000 in New York. London could lend Australia only $25,000,000.

"The British pound depends entirely on the support of the Federal Reserve bank," he declares, adding that "Great Britain tries nevertheless to keep her military forces on a level independent of the grace of America. The British admiralty demands $250,-000,000 for the increase of Britain's fleet."

On the European continent, believes Radek, France and Germany will be the doubtful factors when it comes to a contest between America and England. "France," he says, "will be the chief European trump which the United States may play against England." hope that she may eventually be won for Russia, and intimacy with the Soviets would keep her from fighting on the side of England.

England Lost the War. "The struggle for gaining Germany will continue between us and England, and the worse grows the position of England, the more chances there will be for us to win."

For mankind in general Radek sees stormy future. And for England in particular he forecasts hurricanes. "Lady Macbeth has lost her sleep, and will never sleep any more," he exclaims. "England is that great power about which we can say, "This one lost the war."

SYNOPSIS.—The official report of the British trade union delegation to Soviet Russia described the workings of foreign trade, transportation, industry, finance and agriculture in the Soviet Union. The trade union leaders concluded that foreign trade is increasing, and that in agriculture and industry the level of production is being raised. The finances have been placed on a sound basis, the report showed. Harm is being done to England by the absence of full diplomatic relations, the union leaders stated.

Schools and universities, and literature, music and opera and the theatre were then discussed. Art collections, censorship, newspapers, wall newspapers, and freedom of the press were explained, with the conclusion that "the results of education are astounding." The report then took up hospitals, welfare work, sanitation, birth control, abortion, cleanliness and housing, rent regulations, family life, and prisons. "The Soviet government is achieving most remarkable results in respect to public health, housing, and the prison system," says the report. Regarding the trade unions and labor conditions, the report states, "The Delegation were much impressed tage to the workers in the various collieries, villages, and towns. The output of coal for 1924 is estimated at 141/2 million tons, and that for 1925 is expected to reach 16 million tons. There are employed in coal mines 140,000 employes. In all the other mines which have been named above 350,000 are employed.

The production of coal is as follows:

The policy is to have short agreements, six months, in no case more than twelve months. There are 17 classes of labor for wages purposes, each class istration and the Mine Workers' Association. There are very few coal-cutting machines in operation. Only a few conveyors are at work in the mines.

being in all cases granted a minimum fixed between the admin-

The depth of the mines vary from 200 ft. down to 2,800 ft., which is the deepest mine they have yet worked. The thickness of the coal varies in Russian collieries from 21 in. to 60 in. Most of the seams are of the thicker character.

The workers pay voluntarily to collectors 2 per cent of their actual wages earned to the association as contributions, and the annual income of the association is, in contributions and other miscellaneous incomes, £405,000 sterling per year. In their industrial bank, the money deposited for an 18 months' period is at the rate of 9 per cent, and then can be withdrawn on 14 days' notice at the same rate of interest. For a current account they receive 7 per cent. Out of the contributions received by the association, they pay from 10 to 20 per cent to the Central Committee of the All-Russian Miners' Union, which provides for education, rest homes, scholarships to university, and also accumulates a fund to assist districts for grants in aid of unemployment and strikes, if any, also grants to other international miners' organizations, retaining 80 per cent for strikes, benevolent purposes, administration, unemployment, etc.

The mine workers are supplied with coal free to their homes, amounting from seven to eight tons per year.

There are no pithead baths, but there are Russian steam baths in the various housing centers for the use of the mine workers and their families. But the housing is generally bad. This is recognized and there has been a good start made since the Soviet Government came into power to provide better accommodation.

No direct payment is made, but in every new agreement, such as we have described above, arrangements are made for extra pay for longer distances of traveling.

The rippers and dinters and tunnelers or drifters are paid so much per day, based on a certain length of work, and if they exceed that amount they are paid extra per foot or per inch, whatever is the custom of measurement.

All dirt and ripping stone is sent to the surface from the ripping lips in the various roadways-in other words, none is sent into coal face workings to be emptied.

The mine workers are housed in close proximity to the colliery. Hence there is no need to travel with 'buses or trains to their work.

The workers at the mines and other industries generally do their trading with the co-operative societies, showing that the Trade Unions realize that co-operation and industrial activity are a necessary alliance for the benefit of those participating therein. They have, however, complete liberty to buy where and from whom they please.

The pit committees are composed of workmen at the mines, both underground and on the surface, along with the management, and its powers are to consult with the management on general working conditions and safety. The pit committee is at liberty to make suggestions and discuss the same as to methods of working and safety, and failing satisfaction from the management can further appeal to the Central Committee. They are also consulted as to the appointment and management and dismissal of management, and while they have not the final selection or final voice in dismissal their requests are taken due notice of, and in many instances are accepted as to working matters, and so forth.

The mines are marked out in areas, and a Trust is appointed by the Government and the Central Miners' Union to work these areas. Some general lines of policy are marked out, but the workings of the same are left to the local Committee of Management and Mineworkers to work out to the best advantage. The pit committee is also taken into consideration when any new methods are being adopted for working collieries or for safety appliances and safety generally.

There are a few small mine owners yet. But very few, who own very small pits or outcrops

The contract of service is 14 days.

A worker who is dismissed for doing anything wrong can get work at any other colliery. There is no black list, and no victimization exists.

As to industrial diseases, there are very few cases of miners' nystagmus, and there are very few cases of beat hand. But when the workman cannot follow his usual work from any of the above causes, he is paid his full wages for the first three months and dealt with afterwards as an ordinary compensation worker. But in any case, where the man cannot work on account of beat hand, they find him some other work not affecting his complaint.

Number of men underground, 900. Number on surface, 800. Out of that number there were 260 coal hewers. The output from October 1st, 1923, to September 30th, 1924, was 250,000 tons. The colliery consumption of coal was 10 per cent of the total output. The mine has been producing coal 35 years, and the chief engineer has been there since 1910. The cost of production of coal into wagon at surface is about 18s. per ton. I went down three of these slanting workings along the face 280 yards depth. The hewer gets his coal, which slides down the working face in directed channels to a chute. The tram stands under this chute, and the coal falls into this tram. Thus neither the hewer nor anyone else uses a shovel for filling coal into them. There is no need for shovels in this mine except for cleaning up on haulage roads, etc.

When it is decided by the Medical Board that a workman is fit to return to work, he must be found work at that colliery where his accident or industrial disease happened at his usual rate of wages. There are no old age pensions, but when the worker cannot follow his employment, and it is decided by the Medical Board that such is the case, the workman is granted the ordinary minimum wage that is provided by the Minister of Labor. Each surface worker is allowed two full weeks' holiday per year with full pay; whereas each underground worker is allowed one month's holiday with full pay. The first class of inspectors are called safety inspectors, and must be qualified mining engineers, but are elected by consent of the Mine Workers' Association.

The next inspector is a practical miner who is elected by the district union for one year and paid by the Government to see that the miners are working under proper conditions and that the amenities of housing and special clothes and boots for wet work, etc., are carried out. A deputy has to be a good qualified miner. He is appointed

The workmen are not allowed to work in exceeding 3 per cent of gas, but if a workman finds that there is over 3 per cent and leaves his work he reports to the official in charge and is paid his full day's wages for same, whatever time it may be when he leaves his work.

With regard to timbering, he is also paid a day's wage for leaving his work when he is short of timber and reports to the official in charge, which, we are informed, has been a splendid safeguard in preventing accidents and loss of life. No one is allowed to go underground until arriving at the age of 18 years, when he must be paid not less than the district minimum wage received by the adult workers. No person is allowed to work on the surface at the mines under 18 years of age. Girls and women are employed on the surface in a few Visits to Coal Mines

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 .- Seemingly unconcerned as to what bloody events may follow the order by the Canton government that British ships shall not enter river ports in South China, Secretary Kellogg has given final instructions, in an office conference to be opened Oct. 26 in Peking. Strawn was rejected by the senate last year when named by President Coolidge as special prosecutor in the Fall-Sinclair-Doheny oil fraud cases. He was found to be connected with oil companies and oil banks in Chicago.

Los Angeles had plenty of water at the time the bond issue of tens of thousands of dollars was voted. And the water supply from the ground would have been sufficient, yet without going up into the mountains, hundreds of miles away, after it. But General Otis, the owner of the Los Angeles Times, double-crosser in the Philippines and all-around labor baiter, had a little kingdom of dry land in the San Fernando valley. So an artifficial water shortage was created; the people thought that they would have to die of thirst. The bonds were voted; the aqueduct built; the dry land irrigated, and Otis (now dead) collected his millions, because the land had been bought for a song. Officials, and other insiders, grabbed everything in sight farther up the line and grew fat, too, doing it.

CANADA SCHOOLS

Cadet Movement a Cloak for Training

CANADA, Aug. 26 .- The military authorities of Canada have invaded thru the cadet movement. Under the guise of "physical training" a species of military training is being imposed upon the boys of the Dominion.

Education in Canada was, by the Brtish North America Act, placed wholly within the jurisdiction of the provincial authorities. The Minister of Militia Mr. MacDonald, on June 24, 1925, told the Canadian parliament that his department "Took no initiative" in instituting cadet corps in the schools and entered no school until the application had been "endorsed by the Supt. of Education" in each province. A letter from Capt. J. Willis Chandler to school principals in Manitoba, bearing date March 27, 1925, urging the formation of cadet corps in the schools gives categorical denial to the claim that the department takes no initiative, and the statement of Mr. Cannon, Minister of Education for Manitoba, that neither he nor his department has given any authorization to the cadet system in Manitoba, seems to dispose of the whole case of the Minister of Militia.

School Heads Not Consulted.

The department of education in Manitoba knows nothing about the number of cadet corps in its schools, etc., and on April 7, 1925, the minister wrote to Capt. Chandler of the militia department asking for the necessary information. On May 18, Capt. Chandler replied that he was instructed by the district officer commanding to state that this information could schools without the sanction of the Department of Education, and in defi-"It has come to our attention that ance of the B. Botvin Charged with Killing Provocateur

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WARSAW, August 26 - Comrade Botvin a young shoemaker has been shot. The courtmartial in Lvov hur ried at top speed to execute the sentence which was dictated by the "highest considerations." Within three hours after the verdict was brot in, and in dead opposition to law, Mylord the democratic president walved the petition for pardon, presented by the council for defense.

Comrade Botvin's bullet caught the bourgeois landowning band on the raw spot. "The tragic death of our best worker"-thus spoke the Republic on the murder of the provocator, Czekhnovski.

Manufactured Many Plots.

Without a doubt Czekhnovski was their best employe even as Green and tens of other of the foulest figureheads of the czarist secret service were the best friends of the czarist regime. Czekhnovsky and the role played by him in the many trials, wherein he betrayed so many proletraians to hard labor and death-he and his role are still to be remem-

Czekhnovski's swift career began with the Baginski and Vetcherkevitch trial, under the direction of his "teacher," Piontkevitch, the chief of the secret service. No methods were too dirty, no forgeries too foul, to be used as weapons for Czekhnovsky. It was he who suddenly "exposed" the most unbelievable "Bolshevik" "plots," "committees" and nuclei.

You see, he did not visit Lvov in vain. "On the eve of his departure from Warsaw," writes the Republic. "Czekhnovski conferred with Piontkevitch." And further on, the Republic hints - "The Communists killed Czekhnovski, fearing that he would expose them during the Lvov trial for the attempt to assassinate the president.'

And it follows, Czekhnoviski's "superiors" were thinking of a "plan for a wonderful provocation" to prove the complicity of the Communist Party in the attempt on the president's life.

Foulest of Spies.

Czekhnovsky is unworthy neither as unit nor as a personality. In the person of this foulest of provocators we see a whole system. Czekhnovsky, Troyanovsky, Luschak (see the Engel case) there are notable representatives-the signs of dissensions and symptoms of the degeneration to which the gendarme system of the Polish landowners and bourgeois is slowly but surely sliding.

The secret of this mad haste, raised Mass Meetings in N. Y. against young, bold Comrade Botvin, lies in this very close connection between the Czekhnovski's and the system which begat them.

Socialist Defend Snv.

The whole of the trial took place in an atmosphere of unheard of provocapondent, by the executive board of tion. All the newspapers, not excludhe International Jewelry Workers' ing the Polish socialist party-Worker, raised their voices in a common Mass meetings, to organize the jew- howl against the murder fo their "most faithful servant." Interpartisian Club held a joint picnic called for the following days. Tues- touching union in defense of a provoday, Sept. 1; Tuesday, Sept. 8; Tues- cator against a worker-Communist. August, 23, at which a raffle was held day, Sept. 15, and Tuesday, Sept. 22. This never occurred during the whole existence of the czarist regime.

Botvin has been shot. The Polish bourgeoise, with this bloody death sentence, signs its accordance and full solidarity with the system of provoca-The Polish bourgeoisie has tion. taken this system under its material wing-safeguarding and legalizing it.

Next on the cause list we have the case of three other comrades heart and soul attached to the cause of the workers and peasants: Gibner, Knievski and Rutkovski. Their trial was postponed only owing to the "Accused's state of health." Badly wounded. they underwent such a fierce beating, even as Comrade Botwin received after his arrest. But the three comrades, wounded as they were, have also been murdered by the Polish white terror state.

Polish Workers Aroused.

The Polish proletariat most worthily defended itself against the bourgeoisie and their bodyguards-from the Polish socialist party. The selfdefense of the working class against the provocators has met with the sympathy of the masses. After the death of Czekhnovski 30 red flags suddenly appeared on telegraph poles and different houses, and many slogans were written on the walls-"Death to the traitors"—"Praise to the heroes."

The Warsaw Echo after the arrest of these three comrades did not confess in pain: "It is most necessary most decisively stigmatized. These districts constantly interfere by all the means in their power, against the police in the execution of their duties, thereby aiding the criminals in their escape.

Not only "Iron street and district." but the whole of the Polish proletarish secret service.
