700,000 Teachers of 20 BLASPHEMY TRIAL Million School Children Belong in Labor's Ranks

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

MONEY talks. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who sent the anthracite coal miners back to work without an increase in wages, demands that federal judges be given increased salaries. He claims that that will make the judges "fearless and independent." He argues that increased salaries will turn the decisions of the courts more toward the side of labor.

William Green, president of the American Federation Labor, has also petitioned congress to increase salaries of federal judges. He echoed the arguments advanced by Lewis. The stand of both was applauded by the employers' press.

Money talks. But an increased quantity does not tell judges to be considerate of the working class. It is a more powerful urge that they increase their loyalty, if this is necessary, to the class that has given them a place of power.

The New York Times "spills the beans," to use a slang expression, when it makes a terrific plea for increased wages for school teachers. It forgets how it interpreted money's talks to federal judges. It sounds a different note in explaining how money talks to school teachers.

The teachers should have higher wages, says The Times. Low wages are dangerous. The teachers now receive a starvation pittance. Teachers in rural schools get wages ranging from $755 to $1,114, which startles the Times to worry for the future of the country.

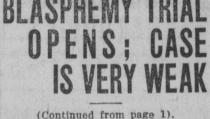

The Times argues that the teachers must be paid higher wages so that they will be more loyal to the capitalist government that employs them, not more considerate of the rights of the masses of the workers whose children they teach.

The Times applauds the declaration credited to Rene Viviani, the renegade socialist war premier of France, that the army of school children constituted the "scholastic front" during the war, following everywhere the line of the trenches. Poorly paid school teachers, struggling to provide themselves with the barest necessities of life, do not make good jingo shouters. They must have more pay.

Teachers must be bribed to poison with the virus of paytriotism the minds of the young. That is why the school superintendents, now meeting in Washington, D. C., are getting a big ovation. They are the "Superior Officers of the Army of Future Defense." They have under their control 700,000 school teachers directing 20,000,000 children. In 100,000 school houses these millions of children are being trained to serve the American capitalistic republic.

The teachers are getting wages now that represent the purchasing power of $441 before the war, while the lowest salary of a commissioned officer, who drills the soldiers in the army, was $1,700, with heat, light and quarters. The Times declares the army officers do not get too much. It feels that the "Army of Future Defense" isn't safe if the school teachers are discontented with the wages they get.

The wages of the school teachers cannot be too high. But it is noticeable that everywhere the teachers get an increase they are compelled to wage a bitter struggle before it is given them. When teachers therefore get a small increase, even at the suggestion of The Times, that worries about Wall Street's source of cannon fodder for the next imperialist war, they should take it and fight for more as part of the whole working class struggle for a little more than a bare dismissal of the charges, pointed out that when the blasphemy law was passed, church and state in Massachusetts had not yet been separated, that at that time nearly the whole population was of the congregationalist faith, while now there is a cosmopolitan population with many religious differences. He declared that anyone had the right to believe or disbelieve in a god, and ought to be guarded in that right.

Cannot Improve the Thing.

The prosecuting attorney, I. Manuel Rubin, declared Bimba was not on trial for heresy. He argued, however, that the people must be protected in their belief in god, and that the crime consists in utterances designed and calculated to destroy and disrupt the veneration that men may have in god. He said the law under which Bimba is being held was re-enacted by the state legislature in 1921. He declared that there can be no improvement upon this law, that it must stand for all time. He said it was upon the veneration for religion that the government is founded, and that Bimba in seeking to, destroy the government, was first seeking to destroy that veneration and the belief in god. In urging the court to go ahead with the sedition charges the prosecutor cited the case against Ben Gitlow in New York and William Bross Lloyd in Illinois.

Judge King announced that he wanted to get thru the trial as quickly as possible. He said he would be glad to grant both motions to dismiss. He had heard, he said, of the dissentions among the Lithuanians in the northeastern section of the city for the past six years. He said that the 1,838 blasphemy decisions had been made by a divided court and he was inclined to believe with the minority. But he said he would still have to abide by the decision made nearly a century ago. He didn't think that Bimba's speech was a "decent, orderly confession of faith or unfaith, and that it was possibly out of place at the time and occasion." So he wanted to go on with the case.

Question Sedition Charge.

In regard to the sedition charge he pointed out that it was passed in 1919 while war sentiment was still rife in the land. "Possibly at this time," he said, "there is no occasion for an enforcement of this statute."

"The language used," he continued. "is not the ordinary language of incitement. It is more the language of prophecy.'

Nevertheless, he overruled both motions and the trial got under way with the swearing in of 15 government witnesses.

First Witness Caught in Lie. Eucado told how he had attended the mass meeting at which Bimba made his speech. The gathering had been advertised as a protest against the white terror in Lithuania. The defense brot out that Bimba's declara-

COUNTER-REVOLUTIONISTS

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Feb. 24 .---Film producers in the Soviet Union are engaged on a number of new pictures. Among these are two pictures connected with the history of the October revolution, entitled "Kolchak's End," and "Wrangel." Both pictures will be based upon authentic historical facts, and actual participators of the events have been invited to take part in the production. There is also to be produced a series of films based on the works of classical and modern Russian writers. A large picture is to be produced, dealing with the sanguinary events in connection with the workers' strike at the Lena Goldfields in 1912. Another picture will deal with the suppression of peasant riots by czarist troops.

Speed Up Workers with Bonus System

By a Worker Correspondent After standing in line for a number of hours at the National Lead company, 18th and Peoria Sts., manufacturers of paints and lead, the boss came out and hired a number of workers among which were myself and my partner. When the boss came out and eyed us over, one would think that he was buying a horse or a cow.

The company doctor gave us a stomachs, looked at our teeth and declared we were ready to do anything in the plant.

We were then placed to work lugging around barrels of lead weighing from 150 to 200 lbs. For doing this for ten hours a day the company paid us 47½ cents an hour.

One of the workers, who was working on the vat where the lead is melted, dropped at his work and was is not able to go back to work he is brought up to the doctor by two men. paid a pension for the rest of his life.

When I had worked there for six hours or so I went to the boss and told him that the work was too heavy for a ten hour day and that the pay was too small. The boss declared sthat if I did not want to work for that pay or those hours to get out and stay out.

The next day my partner was fired. The reason the boss gave was that his partner had "objected to working ten hours a day at 471/2c an hour and we don't want any damned agitators around.'

A bonus system is maintained in the PERSECUTION OF HIS RACE AT plant. Thru this system the workers are forever speeded-up and the moment that one of them who does not care for the bonus system refuses to lug a double load around on a truck or to rush around as tho he was mad one of the company lickspittles shout "hurry up shake a leg."
