

Reports Conflict on Pilsudski Success

BULLETIN

WARSAW, May 13. - Marshal Pilsudski is in complete control of Warsaw and it is understood that he intends to take over the government functions tonight.

The Marshal has refused to negotiate with the Witos government, which has retired to that section of the city which is under the protection of loyal government troops.

(Special to The Daily Worker) BERLIN, May 13. - The strict censorship ring around Poland the past few days has made a definite calculation of the status of the political situation there difficult, but the basis of the political chaos is certainly Poland's economic exhaustion.

While a report from Dantzig re-Warsaw and that public buildings have been captured by rebei troops under ceived here today says that heavy Marshal Pilsudski, former Polish president, other reports state that a compromise has been reached in conference between Pilsudski and President Wojciechowski.

What is known is that following the crisis of last week when Premier Skrzinski, a representative of big business, was forced to resign, the whole political situation has been in turmoil and troops under the influence of Marshal Pilsudski have been demanding the resignation of the president also.

Whether Pilsudski's intention is to demand a dictatorship under his own sword or merely to introduce an inpolitical situation cannot yet be determined.

Conflicting Reports.

While the official government statements coming from Warsaw claim well in hand with a large regular army lier, head of the newly formed $200,- leaders, the Thomases and Ramsay MacDonalds, have made a compromise with the government which is a betrayal of the miners and the militant British workers who rallied to their support.

It is true that the general strike forced the government to make a retreat. The immediate reduction of wages and lengthening of hours of the miners, which the miners answered with a strike, are withdrawn by the mine owners and the government agrees to continue its subsidy to the mining industry during the negotiations for a settlement.

THE agreement between Baldwin and Thomas, however, goes further than that. It recognizes the possibility of the negotiations for a settlement of the struggle'in the mining industry resulting in a wage cut for the miners.

"There should be no revision of the previous wage rates unless there are sufficient assurances that the measures of reorganization proposed by the royal commission for reorganization of the coal industry will be effectively adopted.

"Any wage agreement should be, if practicable, on simpler lines than those hitherto followed. It should not adversely affect in any way the wages of the lowest paid men. It should fix reasonable THIS is the reported text of the agreement.

The miners have refused to call off their strike on the basis of this agreement. The acceptance of this agreement by the miners would be an acceptance of a wage cut in the future-the thing that they have been fighting against and which they struck against.

The calling off of the general strike by the General Council of the Trade Union Congress, without consultation with the miners and leaving them to continue the strike alone, is as base a betrayal of the miners as was the calling of the general strike a demonstration of solidarity.

The demonstrations in the Poplar district of London, the continuance of the strike by the railway workers because of efforts of discrimniations by the rallway companies, the massing of police and troops in working class sections by the government, indicate the general dissatisfaction among the workers with the calling off of the strike by the right wing leaders.

From the beginning of the strike it was clear that Thomas, Henderson and MacDonald were not working for a victory for the British workers. They were looking for a hole thru which they could crawl out of a struggle to which they were opposed. They had been forced into the strug-(Continued on page 3.)

LONDON, May 13 .- A special session of the Trades Union Congress general council has been called. It is the belief that it is gathering to consider the official resumption of the general strike in view of the lock-out campaign of the employers and the government, and the fact that the government has violated its promise not to allow an attack upon the trade unions after the strike cancellation order had been issued.

LONDON. May 13 .- The fact that the general strike has been called off has made no appreciable change in the situation. There has been no general movement of the workers to return to their jobs. The cabinet has been called into special session to consider this.

In effect, the general strike is still on. The situation is further complicated by the refusal of many large employers to allow their men to return to work under the old contracts which they claim have been violated by the sympathetic strike.

The government has practically given its support to the recalcitrant bosses by broadcasting a statement that it has no power to interfere. This amounts to a widespread lock-out with government support.

Oppose "Emergency Order."

Many of the workers had declared their intention of remaining out until the emergency order of the government is revoked. Others had previously stated that they would not return until some 400 political prisoners, jailed during the state of siege, were released.

The government has declared its intention of continuing the state of emergency. Scotland Yard has announced it will retain all special constables and soldiers demobilized. The food crisis is by no means over. The food Defense Motions for depots are still operating with volunteers under the protection of soldiers.

Coal Miners Meet Today.

The miners' executive met today and prepared a program to be considered by the miners' national conference tomorrow. The million miners have obeyed the orders of their executive and have not resumed work. How many union executives have instructed their men back cannot yet be determined, but the fact remains that there is no general resumption.

The police continued making arrests under the power of the emergency act. It is estimated that several hundred arrests were made today. The calling off of the general strike under the conditions, aggravated by the lockout move of the employers, has increased rather than decrased the number of

The present crisis began brewing last week when the Skrzinski cabinet was forced to resign. Several attempts were made, one by Grabski, another by Marek, a deputy from Cracow, to form a new cabinet and no was to have brought about a fascist one succeeded until Witos, Pilsudski's old enemy, and leader of the rich peasants, gathered together a cabinet that was, to say the most, unstable.

Economic Break-Down The basic reason for the instability of any Polish government is the breakdown of the national economy. There are many small parties in Poland, none of them with sufficient authority martial law was to be declared on the to run the government. Pilsudski, a former member of the socialist party but now a leader of a militarist group, probably has in mind something approaching a fascist dictatorship if his troops are successful in overthrowing the government.

The president represents no outstanding political group, one of the nary steps establishing the dictatorreasons why he was chosen, and it is doubtful whether or not he will be able to stand out against Pilsudski. actually took place. At the head of the trade unions and labor party, occupying the key positions in the British labor movement, are a powerful group of right wing leaders, such as McDonald, Clyne, Henderson, Thomas, et al. These men, in season and out, are desperate and unscrupulous enemies of the whole conception of the general strike. The fact that this great strike could be developed in spite of them indicates better than anything else the rapidly growing solidarity and revolutionary spirit of the British working class. These right wing leaders betrayed the workers in 1921, by blocking the proposed strike of the Triple Alliance in support of the miners. They would have done the same thing this time had they had the power. But the masses, driven onward by the hard economic conditions and capably led by the British Minority Movement, could not be stayed. The great strike took place a mistrial due to many untrue and

Chawke Shows Right of Negro to Self-Defense

DETROIT, Mich., May 10 (By Mail). -The lawyers representing Henry Sweet, younger brother of Dr. Ossian H. Sweet, who is now on trial for the alleged murder of Leon Breiner, are seeking a verdict of not guilty.

Thomas Chawke, a Negro lawyer defending Henry Sweet, in a most eloquent and able plea, attacked race hatred and showed the right of Henry Sweet and 10 co-defendants to defend themselves from a mob bent on lynching them.

With the opening of court five mo tions were presented by the defense, among which were:

That all testimony except the proof of death be stricken from the records because the state failed to prove that a conspiracy had been entered into by Sweet and others to kill Breiner and that no proof had been shown that Sweet fired the shot that killed him. That the court direct a verdict of not guilty.

That the jury be instructed not to consider charges of first degree murder, second degree murder or manslaughter.

State Evades Race Issue

Lester Moll, assistant prosecuting attorney, opened the arguments for the state and attempted to convince the jury that the main issue in the Sweet case was not the race question, but rather one based on the technical guilt or innocence of Henry Sweet, according to his indictment for homicide.

He said: "It is the contention of the state that Henry Sweet either fired the shot that killed Breiner or aided and abetted the one who did fire by the unions and the carriers. the shot. Much has been said of a man's rights, but I wish to say that any man's most sacred right is the right to live."

Moll sought to create a sentimental reaction to the death of Leon Breiner and thus railroad the young Negro to jail.

John Michale, his first time in jail, admittedly having made most mistakes in dodging the police which resulted in his arrest, felt keen satisfaction in his success in defeating other prisoners at checkers. Somewhere in the human stream that poured thru this jail there had been a checker enthusiast who had carved out a checker board on his bed of wood. Now this cell was empty and John Michale would challenge anyone to enter it and beat him at checkers, the checkers being mere slips of paper. So far as I know, no one succeeded in defeating him. That was John's great satisfaction. The young worker who was locked up because he had tried while drunk, to fight a policeman, found satisfaction in the declaration that "I just can't help it when I get drunk. I have to fight the cop." AUSTRALIAN SEDITION LAW HITS UNIONS Threaten Strikers With Jail Sentence

By W. FRANCIS AHERN.

SYDNEY-(FP)- The drastic provisions of the new crimes act indicate that the workers of Australia are in for savage repression. Under the act revolutionary workingclass organizations are outlawed while strikes rated as serious industrialist disturbances will make union leaders, propagandists and strikers liable to imprisonment or deportation or both.

Persons threatening boycotts are liable to a year's imprisonment, as are persons who induce others to strike.

To bring the king's name into hatred or contempt is classed as seditious intention. It is also seditious intention to create dissatisfaction against the king or his representatives in Australia or to promote hostility between classes of people. This crime is punshable by 3 years imprisonment.

Imprisonment for life awaits any person attempting to seduce a soldier rom his duty or incite him to mutiny. This means that if any person advises a soldier not to shoot his own father or brother on strike or not to serve in an unjust capitalist war or shoot down his working class comrades, he will be jailed for life.

It is now a crime to give money or goods to an unlawful association (such as the Communist party or the I. W. W.), sell any book, pamphlet or newspaper of such associations, or take up any collection for same or print and publish any literature of such organizations. The penalty is six months. The same penalty awaits any person performing similar acts to assist any union on strike. Police can arrest without warrant.

The Communist Party and the I. W. W. will function underground. The Communist newspaper at Sydney, the Workers' Weekly, has already suspended publication

Witnesses Commit Perjury.

Chawke brought to light testimony which showed how the police and the witnesses who had testified for the state were influenced by narrow prejudices and economic interests and had committed perjury.

Chawke showed how three of the defense witnesses, who were white men and having nothing to gain from the guilt or innocence of the Sweets. gave testimony to prove that there was a mob threatening the life and property of Dr. Sweet and justified the mental state which lead them to shoot in self-defense.

Police Blamed for Murder,

He brought to light the inconsistency, the conflicts, the contradictions of witnesses and intimated the gross negligence of the police who were present in the execution of their duty both Mrs. Hight and Sweetin. towards the Sweets. He even stated that this negligence was responsible for the shooting.

He said: "I believe that the officers of the law were in sympathy that night with the crowd and that is demonstrated by the evidence in the case.'

Chawke said that he had practiced in law courts for fourteen years and "never before had I seen so much falsehood in any case as in this case." Only on a working class willing to league. fight and slave for the idea of empire can British imperialism base its strategy and maneuvers for the mainte-nance of an unobstructed route to GENERAL ST India and without India Britain is no longer an empire.

For when it loses control of the road to India it loses likewise the entry to and the shortest approach to its African possessions.

Let us examine in some detail the elaborate structure-military and po litical-to build which the British ruling class has lavished its best diplo matic talent, untold wealth and the lives of thousands of workers:

The entrance to the Mediterranean is thru the straits of Gibralter, on Spanish territory.

Across on the African side French and Spanish armies are struggling to conquer the stubborn and courageous Riffian tribesmen, Modern guns on the African side could easily silence the fire of Gibralter and Great Britain, one can believe, is watching very carefully the Franco-Spanish campaign Sir Herbert Samuel, chairman of the in the Riff.

The third link in the chain is the Island Cyprus-belonging to Greece. One of the chief reasons for British backing of the Greeks against Turkey in their recent disastrous war should now be clear.

The British navy in the Mediterra nean is based on Gibralter, Malta and Cyprus-and all of them are vulnerable to attack from neighboring nations.

The Suez Canal is in Egypt-a colo nial nation, a Mohammedan nation, held in subjection by British troops and the British navy.

The troops and navy will keep Egypt in subjection only as long as the workers in the British Isles support the imperialist campaigns of their rulers.

The general strike was a greater blow to British prestige and British strength in Egypt than the loss of half the British navy.

We can look for a new upsurge of the national liberation movement in Egypt very soon, accompanied by support from the British labor movement, gle by the militant masses of the British workers, but it was not a struggle to their taste or liking.

THE right wing leader of the Trade Union Congress refused to recog-I nize the fact that a general strike in Britain under the circumstances in which it was called, was necessarily a political struggle against the government, and to act upon the implications of such a struggle. They tried, thru their propaganda, to convince the workers that the strike was an ordinary trade union struggle over wage questions. They refused contributions from other countries, notably from the Soviet Union, which were an expression of solidarity and would help win the struggle. They ignored the fact that it was the government which was acting for the mine owners, that it was the government which was mobilizing against the workers-that it was the government which was preparing the army and navy for use against the government which was preparing the army and navy for use against the workers.

They shrank back before the stubborn fact that the class struggle in Great Britain has developed to the stage in which it presents itself as a struggle for political power. They refused to prepare the workers for this struggle. They refused to lead the workers in this struggle. They preferred to betray the militant fighting spirit of the British workers-a betrayal which is written in the compromise with the government on the basis of which the strike was called off.

The Thomases; Hendersons and MacDonalds cannot, however, halt the forward march of the British workers thru their acting as the lackeys of the British ruling class.

"HE economic conditions, growing out of the world war, which are the basic causes of the revolutionization of the British workers, persist. Great Britain has lost her dominant position in world trade to the United States. Her basic industries are producing less than before 1914. There is a constant army of unemployed of over a million workers.

The British capitalists and their government cannot solve these problems. They have been striving in vain since the end of the war. They can be solved only by a proletarian revolution, and it is toward this proletarian revolution that the British workers are moving.

The British workers have tried a labor government as a means of securing relief from unbearable economic conditions. They found the labor government brought them no results. They have now tried a general strike which their leaders limited to a wage and hours struggle, resulting in a betrayal.

THE experiences of the labor government and the general strike are stages in the revolutionization of the British strike. Just as the failure of the labor government resulted in the growth of a tremendous left sentiment and the strengthening of the influence of the Communist Party, so the betrayal of the general strike will drive the British working masses to the left. The Thomases, Hendersons and MacDonalds have struck another blow at their influence among the British workers and strengthened the position of leadership which the Communist Party is winning.

The future in Great Britain will hold greater struggles than that which has just closed-struggles in which the right wing leaders will not have the opportunity to steal the workers' victories thru their compromises

The British workers have shown a splendid spirit of solidarity. Altho victory hsa been made harder of achievement for them by their right wing leaders, they will go forward in the struggle and the victory in the future will be theirs.

But even here there is one danger which must be prevented in time. If a concentration group consisting of four or five comrades is formed in a section where there are no big factories or shops, it has no field for mass activity. Such a group, then, will have no vital work and the comrades will not be very much interested in their group. The "Third International" is mentioned six times in this "Spanish" document, and each time the word used is not correct Spanish. The Spanish word is "Internacional." In the document it is spelled either "International"-which is English or German-or "Internationalo," which is nothing. No Spanish-speaking person could ever substitute a "t" for a "c," as is done here.

Again, Brazil is spelled in a strange fashion for a Spanish document. In the midst of its Spanish context it figures as "Bresil," which is the French spelling, and not Brazilian or Spanish.

Need of Farmer-Labor Party in Indiana Seen

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 13. 'Capacity to pay," is on the tongue of every farmer in the United States and especially in Indiana as election time for United States senator is rapidly approaching, with a revolt threatened against the administration and not much good feeling for the democrats. Opportunity presents itself, to the farmer-labor forces, for forming a party of their own, at this time, more than at any time for many years. The democrats have no leaders and the republicans are discredited.

The farmers say that legislation is made to protect the big corporations in their "capacity to pay." They want the same kind of treatment from congress, but do not get it. The debts

Weaknesses of the British Strike

The strength of the British general strike from the standpoint of the militancy and solidarity and discipline of the workers was the gentlemen at the throttle of the marvelous.

The weakness of the strike leadership, however, is something dismal abyss of social revolution." that no Communist should fail to point out. The weakness was in the lack of political direction, understanding and courage, which allowed the government to assail the strike as a revolutionary movement while the strike leadership contented itself with denials of any intention of challenging the state power.

As a matter of fact the general strike was and could be nothing else than a clash with the capitalist government for the obvious the current of revolution was long ago reason that the government is the instrument of the capitalist class for the crushing of just such revolts of the masses.

This role of capitalist government was never shown plainer than in the strike just ended. From the moment that the Trades a new breath of life, the Luther (Lo-Union Congress declared its intention of supporting the miners' union, the coal owners faded into the background and the British government with all its apparatus of police, special constabulary, army and navy, courts and special legislation, appeared as the foe blind can see a German crisis in the which the trade unions had to fight.

The government made the quarrel of the coal owners its own and in the government was concentrated all the power of the British selves-are relatively unimportant. ruling class.

When millions of workers are fighting they must know who the enemy is or demoralization will result. To strike at the coal owners of capitalist reaction are feverishly the short period which the strike has the trades unions had to first defeat the government.

That the government had to abandon its unqualified support of the coal capitalists and make concessions to the trade unions is a tribute to the fundamental soundness of the British labor movement brazen boldness-short of the actual and also a sign that under pressure of the masses serious conflicts re-establishment of the Hohenzollern of interests developed inside the British capitalist organization.

The reformist leaders of the Labor Party and the trade unions were neither conscious enough of this inevitable latter development in the national flag? nor courageous enough to take advantage of it. Neither did they have sufficient confidence in the British masses even after a display fight to the last drop of blood against forced to retreat to some extent tem of solidarity that has frightened the capitalist world and inspired any and all attempts of Horthyfication every honest worker.

The refusal to accept the contributions of the Russian workers is the most outstanding of a number of cowardly inanities which featured the conduct of the strike.

This supposed evidence of non-revolutionary tendencies was rewarded promptly by the government in the form of drastic measrewarded promptly by the government in the form of drastic meas-ures to prevent the trade unions receiving financial aid from the workers of any other country.

Right from the beginning the keynote of the strike should have been the defeat of the government as the primary necessity for winning the struggle.

It should be noted also that the strike has created a schism in the official leadership of the labor movement so wide that it is easily seen even from this side of the ocean; more correctly, it widened the already existing schism.

As for the MacDonalds and Thomases they may strut upon the stage for a brief period but their epitaphs in the labor movement were written by the good right hands of 5,000,000 workers who backed the miners against the government in one of the greatest struggles of labor of all time.

The Sacco-Vanzetti Verdict

After a six year fight, during which time their conviction on a charge of murder was proved to be a frame-up, Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti, have lost their last appeal in the courts of the state of Massachusetts, thru the decision of the supreme court deny ing them a new trial.

They now only await the sentence, which under the Massachusetts law can only be death in the electric chair.

It is evident that the state of the textile barons is determined judged when one remembers that a to wreak savage vengeance upon these two workers who fought to wide-sweeping industrial blacklist and organize their fellow slaves.

There is but one more chance for them and that is a slim one. Only the governor of the state of Massachusetts stands between aim of the labor espionage system them and death.

Organized labor, not only in the United States, but thruout the world, has rallied to the defense of these workers and thus far who got her evidence right in the prevented their being murdered at the hands of the mill owners' mill, and with Alice Barrows of the government.
