Medelros, now awaiting execution in the Dedham jail, made direct admission of his connection with the South Braintree holdup, describing the operations of the gang involved and charging a certain gang of as-sociates with the two slayings. He refused, in the affidavit, to name the gang. He charged that he had been bilked of his share of the spoils and had been thwarted after having followed the accomplices to New York and then to Chicago.

Weeks, in his affidavit, said that Medeiros had told him of his connection with the South Braintree slaying while they were planning the Wrentham holdup.

"I cartainly did not," replied Merter emphatically.

"Did Col. Miller ever say anything to indicate he had any knowledge of the contents of your claim papers before they were filed?"

Had No Recollection.

"I haven't any recollection that he showed any knowledge," Merton replied after several evasive answers. "Have you any knowledge that the attorney general knew the contents of the claim papers?"

"Not that I know of," answered Merton.

The witness related the "helping out" in arranging the claim papers by George Williams, of the alien property custodian's office as a "frank transac tion." He said Williams made him rewrite his first papers submitted because they lacked certain substantial details.

Speeding Up Fee.

He pictured the $391,004 given to King for "speeding up" the claim as a "fee," approximately five per cent of the $7,000,000 property wanted returned. Merton also explained $50,000 was given to King the time the claim was filed. The witness maintained that this "fee" was considered cheaper by him than the possible ten or fifteen per cent fee of lawyers.

Guaranteed Payment of Loss.

Merton testified he told Williams of the Swiss organization and the transfer that had been consummated from German to Swiss interests, he told him that the Swiss stockholders had been guaranteed payment of loss thru shares they would receive in American Metal company's assets held by the alien property custodian.

CHINA SPLIT

THE DAILY WORKER

REACTION IN

SHANGHAI, Sept 13. - Altho British marines have been landed at Hankow and the British in China are eager for intervention against the rising power of the Canton government, they admit that intervention is futile unless Japan and the United States participate.

Japan is in no hurry to aid the British, since Great Britain is her chief rival and a weakening of the British position leaves a freer field for Japanese trade, which Japan does not intend to lose by sharing in a British attack on China-not, at least, if she can help it.

Each Fears Rivals.

The United States is also in no haste to join in intervention, for fear that the Japanese would utilize their opportunity to send in enough forces to shut out America as well as the British. But the U.S., while claiming its neutrality, is watching the growth

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

WALTER DURANTY, the Moscow duction is increasing; (2) greater correspondent of the New York Times, is getting worried about the conditions in the Union of Soviet Republics. He is troubled by "the writing on the wall" of "clumsy peasant fingers" demanding "Give us goods!" Yet Duranty admits that the Soviet officials are not as much troubled as he by the "assertiveness" of the peasantry. Duranty says:

do not ignore the growing clamor and do not, I believe, really regret the increased political consciousness and self-assertiveness of the peasants, embarrassing as it is at the preent juncture. Considering that they have followed a policy of trying to educate and stimulate the peasants, it is guite illogical to supnose that they are unwilling to allow the expression of grievances which they know are genuine enough."

Duranty is chiefly worried because "agricultural production has rapidly increased until now it has reached 90 per cent of pre-war at a general cost-which is an important point-not much higher than prewar. Industrial production also improved satisfactorily enough, butwhich is an even more important point-by the time the manufactured goods reach the peasant their cost is three to four times pre-war."

Thus the whole attack of the capitalist press has changed its front. The charge is no longer made that Soviet rule has plunged agriculture and industry into chaos, from which neither can be extricated. That was the customary song of the anti-Soviet chorus. Duranty, a capitalist journalist friendly to the Soviet Union, now worries because agriculture is improving much more rapidly than industry, claiming that agriculture is making demands upon industry that the latter cannot meet. It was perviously charged that everything was disintegrating under Soviet rule; now it is admitted that construction is going forward rapidly in both city and country, the latter a little bit more rapidly than the former. The only trouble is that the city-country teammates are not running abreast and pulling together to the best advantage.

But Duranty offers no encouragement to the czarist emigres in the western capitals of reaction, in Paris, Berlin and London. Instead of attacking Soviet rule he pictures the peasants as saying:

numbers of workers are being drawn into the industries; (3) the cost of production is falling; (4) marked gains are being shown in the heavy industries, the last to recover from the heavy blows of the world war, the civil wars and foreign intervention. The hopes and ambitions of the not long ago are even now coming to pass. But there are new problems. * * *

The cement industry led the general increase, the output being 113 per cent greater than that of the same period last year. The rubber industry increased 96.5 per cent and the output of cast iron gained 92.6 per cent.

The coal industry, which advanced very little last year, increased by 44.4 per cent during the period, with an output of 12,410,000 tons.

The tobacco industry increased 43.4 per cent, branches of the textile industry showed gains of from 27 to 46 per cent, the output of Marten steel increased by 63.3 per cent and of rolled iron by 71.4 per cent.

. . . You may inquire as to where these production figures stand with relation to the pre-war output. What is the output of the industry under Soviet rule as compared to the output under the deposed czarist rule? Here are some of the figures:

The output of the paper industry advanced to nearly double the prewar rate. The newspapers today have a far greater circulation than under czarism, books and pamphlets are being published in increasing quantities and illiteracy is being rapidly wiped out.

The linen industry has advanced to one and one-half times pre-war, and the match industry to one and a quarter times the figures for 1913. The coal, oil, cement, textile and rubber industries each showed about 90 per cent of the pre-war output. The most backward industry is the metal industry, the cast iron output for the period being 48.5 per cent of pre-war and the output of Marten steel 65 per cent. But this condition is rapidly mending, as is shown by the above figures for the current fiscal year.

The peasants looking toward Moscow, as Duranty points out, learn that industrial production in April (this year) broke all monthly records since the Bolshevik revolution. April production was 3.26 per cent greater than that of March, and 50 per cent greater than that of April, knecht, who heads the Passaic strikers' relief committee that has been fetching thousands of dollars a week from the rest of the labor movement and conducting kitchens and childrens' camps told of the long struggle that had built a new big local into the official labor movement and said the Passaic strikers would aid the union in all efforts to organize the million workers in the textile industry.

Applaud Welsbord.

Wild applause greeted the name of Albert Weisbord who resigned as the price exacted by the United Textile Workers' Union for its entry into the fight. The cheering came when Gustav Deak, the 22-year old Botany woolen worker, who is now president of the new local union, lauded the splendid devotion and leadership of our former organizer, Albert Weisbord," and continuing said: "For seven months he led the strike and the fact that we are able to join the United Textile Workers of America with unbroken spirit and united ranks is a monument to him, and in his withdrawal we have additional proof of Albert Weisbord's unselfish devotion to our cause and to the cause of organized labor."

McMahon Critical.

President McMahon did not respond in similar vein. He lectured the strikers on the propaganda that had been employed and said that he disapproved of the methods used in criticizing the mill owners and the police of the town. He argued that the strikers could not expect their leaders and their opponents to get together and sit at the same time in mutual recognition if criticisms that he charged were of a scurrilous nature were continued. He emphasized that a diferent leadership had come into the strike but said that the United Textile Workers was determined to win recognition for the union. Relief activities will continue to be carried on by the old Passaic strikers' relief ommittee.

Floods in Missouri.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 13-With telegraph and telephone communication to East Central Kansas points badly crippled or demolished and trains running hours behind schedule or tied up by washouts, the flood area around Burlington, Iola, Emporia and Neosho Falls, Kan., assumed a more serious aspect.

At Iola, south of Emporia on the Neosho river, water was rising and grave fears were felt for villages and towns along the river.

POLISH SEJN Is Blow at Amnesty Work of Committee

(Special Cable to Polish Section International Labor Defense.)

PEASANT MEMBER

By STANISLAW BALLIN, Deputy WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 13 .- The police invaded the apartment of Deputy Ballin, president of the inter-party committee for amnesty for political prisoners in Poland and, after confiscating documents and records of the committee found in the rooms, arrested seven persons who were there quite by accident, having no connection with the committee.

Protest Parliament.

Deputies of the Independent Peasants' Party immediately protested in the Sejm that the raids on Deputy Ballin's quarters had been made without the consent of the president of the Sejm and therefore violated the law of parliamentary immunity.

The evident purpose of the raids is to make impossible the work of the inter-party committee which is an alliance of the left parties in an effort to release the hundreds of political prisoners now in Polish prisons. The committee asks the workers of the world to protest against the most recent excesses of the reactionary Polish government.

6,000 Political Prisoners.

There are some 6,000 political prisoners in Poland. The Pilsudski government, which came into power thru a military coup in May this year refused to grant amnesty to these prisoners. This act raised a protest thruout the country that resulted in the formation of an inter-party committee in the Polish Sejm. Deputy Ballin, a member of the Independent Peasant's Party is the chairman of the committee.

Threatens France in a Speech

IN ROME TALK

FASCIST SWORD

DUCE RATTLES

ROME, Sept. 13 .--- Using as his text the unsuccessful attempt made to assassinate him with a bomb by an individual terrorist who had come from France, Premier Mussolini delivered a speech from the balcony of the Chigi Palace, in which he used very undiplomatic language in speaking of the neighboring republic.

Another /Threat.

"We must put a stop to certain culpable tiresome conditions which we tolerate outside our own frontiers, said the Duce. "We would advise responsible governments to take note of this, because otherwise their friendly relations with the Italian people might become compromised." Meant France.

This referred directly to France, a fact which none of the thousands of fascists who heard his speech overlooked. There is even talk in the press of Italy demanding of France the right to extradite all anti-fascist Italians living in France.

This speech of Mussolini can only be considered another sword-rattling demonstration to raise the nationalist pitch of the fascist followers. There can certainly be no desire on the part of Mussolini for war with France at this time. All other things equal, the French army could over-run Italy in short order. International complications would, however, make this a decidedly untactful thing for France to do. Knowing this, Mussolini makes his arrogant threats and boosts his stock among Italian militarists free of charge.

The methods of the election show how little it can be a "free expression." The government is posting troops at all election booths to see that no opposition votes are cast. The catholic church has thrown its whole strength behind the dictator. # NEW YORK WOMEN SEEK TO RAISE MORE FUNDS FOR PASSAIC CHILDREN

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 .- "Children of the Passaic strike" will be the subject of speeches by Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Leona Smith, Jeanette Stuart Poynts, and several women strikers at a big open air meeting on Saturday evening, Sept. 18, at 110 Street and 5th Ave.

More than 1,000 children have been fed daily at the kitchens maintained by the United Council of Working class Housewives with the help of the United Women Conference in Passaic. A new kitchen must be opened soon to replace that at the playground which has just been closed. Funds are needed to carry on this work. Whether the strikers will attain the victory which now seems within reach, depends on the continued feeding of the children. If the children are left to starve, the strikers will be forced back into the mills.

Contributions for the childrens' kitchens should be sent to the United Council of Working Class Housewives, 80 E. 11th St. Room 436.

Many of the trade union delegates who signed the resolution stated that they were not members of any political party and the charge made by O'Mara is obviously not true.

In a Tight Flx.

O'Mara was in a very tight fix and had to lean on socialists for support. O'Mara stated that the socialist leaders such as Norman Thomas, when questioned by him at the lecture in New Haven, stated that it is industrial and not political action which is important, and that such of this type are welcome in the federation and not the Communists, who want independent political action. However, in spite of the treacherous act of the socialist party officials many socialist delegates voted for the resolution. The fraternal delegate of the socialist party had nothing to say.

SUCH was the way of Bunny's initiation into the adult life. Gone were the days of happy innocence when he could be content to sit holding hands with Rosie Taitor. "Holding nands" was now walking on a slippery ledge, over a dark abyss where pleasure and pain were so mingled you could hardly tell them apart. Bunny was frightened by the storm of emotion which seized upon him, and still more by the behavior of the girl in his arms; a kind of frenzy shook her, she clung to him in a convulsion of excitement, half sobbing, half laughing, with little cries as of an animal in pain. And Bunny must share this delirium, she would not have it otherwise, she was furious in her exactions, the mistress of these dark rites, and he must obey her "Unless you get a job soon," said will. The first time, the boy was overwhelmed by the realization ter husband at the door when he came Molly to Oscar one morning after he of what he had done, but she clung to him, whispering, "Oh, Bunny, don't be ashamed! No, no! I won't let you be ashamed! Why haven't we got a right to be happy? Oh, please, please, be happy!" So he had to promise, and do his best.

"Oh, Bunny, you are such a sweet lover! And we are going to have such good times." This was her crooning song, wrapped in his arms, there under the spring-time moon, which is the same in California as everywhere else in the world. And when the chill his wife sometimes. > Driving back to Beach City they talked about this advenon the Daily Messenger the night edi ture. Bunny hadn't thought much about sex, he had no philosophy ready at hand, but Eunice had hers, and told it to him simply and frankly. The old people taught you a lot of rubbish about it, and then they sneaked off and lived differently, and why should you let yourself be fooled by silly "don'ts?" Love was all right if you were decent about it, and when you had found out that you didn't have to have any babies, why must you bother to get married? Most married people were miserable anyhow,, and if the young people could find a way to be happy, it was up to them, and what the old folks didn't know wouldn't hurt them.

> > Did Bunny see anything wrong with that? Bunny answered that he didn't; the reason he had been "such an old prude," was just that he hadn't got to know Eunice. She said that men were supposed not to care for a girl who made advances to them; therefore, she added with her flash of mischief, it would be up to Bunny to make some advances from now on. He said he would do so, and would have started at once, only Eunice was driving at forty-some miles an hour, and it would be better to hurt her feelings than to upset the car.

Were there other girls like Eunice, Bunny wanted to know, and she said there were plenty, and named a few, and Bunny was He heard that kind of thing be surprised and a little shocked, because some of them were promi-After the various delegates nent in class affairs, and decorous-seeming. They called themselves "the Zulus," these bold spirits who had dared to do as they pleased; they kept one another's secrets faithfully, and helped the younger ones to that knowledge which was so essential to happiness. The old guarded this knowledge you got "caught." There was a secret lore about the art of love. and books that you bought in certain stores, or found stowed away behind other books in your father's den. Such volumes would be passed about and read by scores. It was a new ethical code that these young people were making for themselves, without any help from their parents. Eunice did not know, of course, that she was doing anything so imposing as that; she just talked about her feelings, and what she liked and what she feared. Was it right to love this way or that? And what did Bunny think about the possibility of loving two girls at the same time? Claire Reynolds said you couldn't, but Billy Rosen said you could, and they were wrangling all the time. But Mary Blake got along quite happily with two boys who loved her and had agreed not to be jealous. This was a new world into which Bunny was being introduced, and he asked a lot of questions, and could not help blushing at some of Eunice's matterof-fact replies. Bunny crept into the house at two o'clock in the morning. and no member of the family was the wiser. But he was equally as late the next night, and the next-had he not promised Eunice to "make the advances?" So of course the family realized that something was up, and it was interesting to see their reactions. Aunt Emma and Grandma were in a terrible "state," but they could not say why-such was the handicap the old generation imposed upon themselves. They both went to Dad, but could only talk about late hours and their effect on a boy's health. And Dad himself could not do much more. When Bunny said that he had been taking Eunice Hoyt driving, Dad asked about her, was she a "nice girl?" Bunny answered that she was the treasurer of the girl's basket-ball team, and her father was Mr. Hoyt, whom Dad knew, and she had her own car and had even tried to pay for the supper. So there could be no idea that Bunny was being "vamped," and all Dad said was, "Take it easy, son, don't try to live your whole life in a couple of weeks. Also there was Bunny's sister, and that was curious. Had some underground message come to Bertie, through connections with the "Zulus?" All that she said was, "I'm glad you've consented to take an interest in something beside oil and strikers for a change." But behind that sentence lay such an ocean of calm feminine knowledge! Bunny was started upon a new train of thought. Could it be that late hours meant the same thing for his sister that they had suddenly come to mean for him? Bertie was supposed to be dancing; and did she always come directly home, or did she also park by the wayside? Bunny had got over being shocked by the parking of Eunice's car, but it took him longer to get used to the idea of the parking of his sister's car. He bagn to notice, as he drove along the highways in the evening-what a great number of parked cars there were!
