HAVING gotten a black eye at the polls last week Calvin Coolidge is looking around for some ointment that will heal his damaged reputation. So he pulled down from the shelf the old reliable remedy, labelled, "tax reducflon." We wish to state that this re duction will chiefly benefit the big fellow and not the little lad, little, not physically but financially. It is not right however to ignore the exigencies of Coolidge's political existence. This is a factor that the politician never ignores. Only a dogmastist would leave it out of his calculations.

* * *

In might not be out of place here to call attention to a tip offered by Lenin to dogmatic radicals shortly after the Russian revolution. They were British radicals and are now outside the Communist movement. They were more radical than Lenin if phrasemongering and frothing at the mouth were the only criterion of radicalism. Lloyd George was at this time on the top of the heap, much to the discomfort of the British bourgeoisie who looked on the wily Welshman as a sort of human polecat who was useful as long as the enemy was around but made a disagreeable guest at a garden party where the ladies wore delicate raiment.

PEOPLE like Sylvia Pankhurst held that all capitalist politicians at all times were the servants of the capitalists. But Lenin hit this theory with a well directed shot of logic and proved that at times a good demogogue may have the capitalists by the small of the back, and tho this demogogue is undoubtedly loyal to the system on which he battens, nevertheless he is monarch of all he surveys for the moment. Since he has the necessary mass following, he formulates policies that have as their first consideration his own political fortunes. The capitalists do not like to have such a person fastened on them permanently and they take the first opportunity that presents itself to get rid of him. That's just what they did to Lloyd

CALVIN COOLIDGE is no Lloyd George, but he's nobody's sap. Calvin has no ambition to hike back to Vermont and collect bills on a 25% commission as he did in the old days before he became a famous strike breaker. So after he gets slammed at the polls he dusts up the old tax reduction headgear and throws it into the ring. Those who pay much taxes, and even those who pay only little, translate the Coolidge gesture into a sicket to the movies or a chicken dinner. And it works, the perhaps not an eloquent tongue or a face that would decorate a banqueting board. Still, in this country there are people who take their fun-such as it is-in (Continued on page 8)

SPLIT ON TAX REBATE PLAN

Divisions Occur Over Treasury Surplus

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. - There were increasing signs today of republican differences over President Coolidge's proposal for a 10 to 121/2 per cent tax rebate on 1925 incomes, made possible thru the large treasury

On the heels of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's statement last night suggesting that instead of a rebate on 1925 incomes the most feasible plan would be to allow a "credit" on 1926 incomes, the presidential spokesman told callers at the White House today that Mr. Coolidge still considered the rebate plan as offering the best solution of what to do with the treasury surplus. Thus the difference of opinion between Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Mellon became ap-

Presidential Coolidge's proposal for 10 or 121/2 per cent rebate of this year's federal income taxes faces a stiffer fight to enactment today be cause opposition has developed within the administration's own ranks in ongress as well as from the republican insurgent group.

The White House plan was attack-

A similar view was expressed by Senator Charles L. McNary, R., of Oregon, a western adninistration leader.

Stalin's Speech

Reporting on the question of the opposition and the situation within the party, Stalin laid bare the history of the formation of the opposition bloc. The underlying ideas of that bloc were brought forth they proceed on the basis of opposition of indusfor the first time by Zinoviev at the 14th Party Congress and carried into effect in the July Plenum. The first attempts at preparatory underground work were blocked, whereupon the opposition started its activities at the end of September and the beginning of October in the factory groups in Leningrad and Moscow.

Having suffered a decisive defeat, the opposition then on the 16th of October presented the Central Committee with the well-known statement admitting errors. The Central Committee agreed to accept this statement altho it did not believe in the sincerity of the signers. The refusal of the opposition to recognize the incorrectness of their views forced the Central Committee to call upon the party to continue the ideological struggle against the opposition.

Lack of Principle.

Stalin pointed out the utter lack of principles of the opposition bloc, whose participants, Zinoviev and Kamenev, only very recently looked upon Trotskyism as a variety of menshevism, while Trotsky, on the other hand, looked upon his present allies as opportunist. Stalin emphasized that such lack of principles must inevitably lead to the decomposition and the final break-up of the opposi-

The statement of Medvedev and Shliapnikov, wherein they recognize their mistakes, is evidence of further differences within the bloc and adds another factor for its eventual decomposition.

The opposition is now merely awaiting a favor able moment to again act against the party. The main question of difference between the party and the opposition bloc is the question of the possibility of a victory of socialism in the U.S. S.R. Stalin quoted Lenin's works proving that there existed for a long time a divergence of concepts between Leninism and Trotskyism.

Leninism vs. Trotskyism.

Unlike Trotskyism, Leninism believes in the possibility of the victory of socialism in one country. It is convinced that the proletariat in Russia program, will undo the work of the declaration of In 1921, the Goodyear Rubber comhaving seized power, cannot only hold it, but can the opposition made on the 16th of October. use it to organize socialist economy. Trotsky's and the opposition blocs' views are characterized in the theses of the Central Committee as a drift toward social democratic views.

Leninism also rejects the theory of Trotskyism which maintains that there exists an inevitability of conflict between the workers and the peasantry. Leninism, on the contrary, admits the possibility of socialist construction in alliance with the peasantry, and under direction of the working class. rapid progress in industrialization and by the Stalin emphasizes the possibility of a victory of backwardness of the economic development of the socialist construction in the U. Anti-Communists Are Real Destroyers of the Fighting Spirit of Labor

ELECTION figures from Minnesota, as well as other sections of the country, show that there was a heavy falling off of the total vote cast in working class districts. The percentage of votes cast in nonlabor territory, on the other hand, held up well or showed actual in-

The straddling labor officialdom, that plays in both the old parties, comes to the front attacking the workers for this lack of interest. They never point the finger of blame at themselves, as they should. In Ohio, the American Federation of Labor called for the election of Pomerene to the United States senate. The railroad brotherhoods demanded that Willis be elected. In the resultant confusion it was only natural that workers should become disgusted and remain at home.

In Illinois the condition was somewhat similar. Hordes of labor officials flocked to the dollar standards of Frank L. Smith and stuck close even after the disclosure of wholesale subsidies from the Insull public utility interests. But George Brennan, the democrat, also boasted "labor" support, and was likewise able to display a host of "names" of "labor" officials endorsing his senate candidacy.

It was John H. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, who declared at the Detroit convention of the A. F. of L. that, "We are going to continue to follow the nonpartisan policy of the American Federation of Labor. We are going to give it a tryout."

That means that Walker is going to continue dividing, dissipating and discouraging the labor vote according to the bitter Ohio and Illinoisexperiences thru which the workers in these two typical states have just passed. And Walker is merely an example of the whole breed of "nonpartisan" labor politicians to be found crawling about the republican and democratic political tents.

It is this breed also that periodically works itself into an hysterical frenzy denouncing the Communists as destroyers of the organized labor movement, Such are Walker, Olander, Fitzpatrick and Nockels, yes, and Farrington, in Illinois, some of these having actively participated in the local, state and national leadership of the farmer-labor movement. The elections thru which the nation has just passed, however, reveal the labor officialdom, clinging to the political organizations of the master class, as the real destroyers of the unity of the labor, and the actual opponents of its development, They cry "wolf!" to drive the blame from their own doors.

This situation presents itself in another form even in those states where we have the farmer-labor party. Thus the Minnesota Union Advocate, in its issue of Nov. 4. giving some of the results of the recent election in that state, declares: 🏶

"There are more than 108,000 voters registered in St. Paul. Less than half this many voted Tuesday. About 5,000 less votes were cast than in the city election. "An analysis of the vote shows that the greatest decline occurred in the so-called labor wards, while in the non-labor wards there was an increase."

This is regrettable condition. It must be remedied. But how? This can only be done by developing the Minnesota Farmer-Labor Party, and all other labor party movements into unified, aggressive, fighting class organizations of the workers. This can only be accomplished by accepting the Workers (Communist) Party as an active, integral part of the movement, and recognizing that the Communists are a vital factor in building the class power of labor.

Those officials who denounce the rank and file the severest for their so-called lack of interest, are the same officals who have been so loud the past, in Minnesota, denouncing the Communists both as obstructionists and destructionists. Yet this same anti-Communist element is the same crowd that now stands revealed as the

would-be destroyers of the Farmer-Labor movement. Take a look at Van Lear, Townley, Gilbert, Quigley and others of their ilk. They have have completely deserted the farmer-labor cause and sold out, body and soul, to the enemy. When they were attacking the Communists. they were doing loyal service to the capitalist oppressors of the city and land workers. The same holds for the whole strata of the petty trade union officialdom in Minnesota, that jumped to obey the orders of the late Sam Gompers to drive the Communists out of the trade unions in

It was inevitable in Minnesota, as elsewhere, that the war waged against the Communists should have a paralyzing influence upon the Farmer-Labor Party as well as the trade union movement. When the so-called "leaders" spend more time fighting the Communists, the militant vanguard of the labor movement, than they do in organizing and developing the struggle against the exploiters' interests, then it is inevitable that the aggressive spirit of the rank and file workers should be seriously dulled. This is exactly what has happened

The workers and farmers must be wen for a spirited forward march against their class foes. This will not be brought about thru a continued attack on the Communists and a winking at the continued surrender of those launching these attacks, to the ranks of the capitalist

Hendrik Shipsted, the farmerlabor senator, exposed himself as an enemy of labor's cause when he did not enter actively into the recent farmer-labor campaign on behalf of the whole farmer-labor ticket. Instead he sulked. Reports say he addressed but one campaign meet-

He became a burden and an obstacle to the movement when he refused to make it known clearly and decisively that he would continue to fight as a farmer-laborite in 1928, when his present term expires, instead of desert to the republican camp, as is rumored. Even now Shipsted does not deny that he will. give his support to the republican bosses in congress during the two remaining years of his senate term. Thus Shipsted acts in the role of destructionists like Van Lear, Townley, Gilbert, Quigley and the others who have gone before him.

The greatest safeguard insuring the growth of the Minnesota Farmer-Labor Party, and of the labor admission of Communists to full rights in the Farmer-Labor Party, and the affiliation of the Workers (Communist) Party as an integral part of the Farmer-Labor Party.

It is the duty of the rank and file of labor in Minnesota to secure this action as part of the struggle to build the national labor party movement thruout the land, uniting all labor for an aggressive fight against capitalism and its lapdogs, the republican and democratic parties.

Second Strike Boom.

This is the second strike boom of the year. Last winter the anthracite strike caused part-time bituminous mines to go on full and idle mines to open to take advantage of the high prices for anthracite substitutes. Next winter there may be another shorttime boom when industrialists and coal operators begin stocking up for the bituminous strike generally expected here in April when the Jackconville contract expires.

Nothing worse could be said of the Mtuminous industry than this: that it coms only at the expense of strikers. Otherwise "too many mines and too many miners" for more than half time work on the basis of an eight-hour

STRIKE STRATEG

By WILLIAM Z. FOSTER

ARTICLE XI

THE STRIKE STRUGGLE INDER present conditions in the United States strikes are the very heart of the class struggle. They are brutal and open fights between exploiters and exploited. It is in strikes that the conflicting interests of the two classes are most manifest. The employer in his limitless greed and desire to exploit the workers even more intensely than the present unexampled rate, seeks to break their spirit and to force them to work upon his terms. To this end he emduplicity, illusory concessions. On their side, the workers have as their great weapon the cutting off of the employer's supply of labor-power. They seek to keep his plants shut down until his greed for profits, or the pressure from other capitalists who need his products, compels him to come to terms. But in order to do this they must be able to maintain an unbroken solidarity in the face of all the employer's many attacks, open and insidious. This is the chief objective of strike strategy during the heat of the open struggle.

THE QUESTION OF MORALE In all situations where the fighting qualities of human now unorganized. beings are called into play the question of morale assumes great importance. Military leaders understand this thoroly. They know that the strength of an army is not to be meas-among the troops, their morale, is a factor of decisive understanding. But more is necessary. The whole strike of backing up before their attacks. They fight on the deweight. Hence, during wars, strategists devote the closest attention to this matter.

Never was this better illustrated than during the world through with the special plan of improving the morale of the respective armies and home populations and of weakening that of the enemy. The leaders knew that if the fighting morale was gone the war would be lost.

Strike strategy, no less than military strategy, must give close concern to the question of morale. This is because strikes, like military campaigns though in a lesser degree, are tests of the courage and endurance of their parploys a formidable array of weapons: hunger, terrorism, ticipants. The tenacity, durability, discipline, and general effectiveness of a strike largely depend upon the morale of the workers involved. The power of resistance of a body of strikers, like that of an army in the field, can be measured pretty much by the state of their morale.

The question of morale is especially important among inexperienced, unorganized workers where the discipline bred of trade union experience is weak. "Soulless" strikes such as conservative leaders conduct among the organized crafts, when morale is at a low ebb and chiefly the organization sense of the workers holds them together, would be absolutely fatal among the great masses of unskilled

The question of morale is, therefore, a fundamental one in strike strategy. Our problem is how to create and maintain it. This determines the whole character of our nred simply by its numbers, or even by its favorable stra- strike strategy. Propaganda is not enough. True it is a tegic situation. FIGHTING ON THE DEFENSIVE

For the building of a strong strike morale we must base our strike strategy upon the theory of fighting upon the offensive. We must attack always, or at the worst be calculated increase in our fighting tempo and a sharp aspreparing to attack. This theory is just as applicable to sault upon the enemy's weakest point. It may take many the class war in industry as it is to military war on the forms, such as a strike of additional workers, and intensibattlefield. The workers, like soldiers, (and they are the fication of picketing, a greater stimulation of support from same human beings and subject to the same psychological the labor movement at large, aggressive publicity maneulaws) fight best on the offensive. If they force a lockout upon us we must turn it into a strike, placing counterdemands and involving more workers.

The offensive does not mean a reckless attack, but a

The nature of the offensive will change with the varying conditions in the strike. An offensive by the workers in Passaic now, after nine months of bitter struggle and when they are so much weakened, is a very different thing than it was in the opening months of the historic struggle when the offensive is just as valid now in Passaic as it ever was.

From time to time our forces will be so defeated that we will be confronted with little Brest-Litovsks. But we tactics in the struggle itself must be based upon the theory must understand them as Lenin did his, as offering breathing spells during which we shall rally our shattered bat-

PULLMAN CZARS CHANGE FRONT IN FAKE UNION

Militant Porters' Union Forces Fight

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.-Two Pulling company officials, czars in their dis tricts, have been forced to bac down in their campaigns to intimidat porters into voting in the Employed Representation Plan, according to reports received in the national head quarters of the Brotherhood of Sleet ing Car Porters.

Change Tactics.

Superintendent Mitchell Pennsylvania district, and Superintendent Burr of the St. Louis district noted for brow-beating and threatening porters who have refused to vote in the company union elections, have been forced to change their tactics by the militant campaign of the Brotherhood, exposing their Simon Legree methods.

At the beginning of the elections now in progress many porters were sent to the offices of Superintendent Mitchell with a notice "See Mitchell in regard to refusing to vote." The Brotherhood is in possession of sev eral of these notices.

Fake Elections.

The Pullman company has made the forcing of the vote a definite policy, both in the Employee Representation Plan and in its cousin, the Pullman Porters' Benefit Association. Elections for the latter were held in October, and were marked by all varieties of coercion and intimidation. Pay checks were held up and men held off their runs, in an attempt to force the men, who were disgusted by an open company steal of the primary, to register a vote

REVERE MEMORY OF CHICAGO'S 5

Observe the Memorable Day: Nov. 11, 1886

Albert R. Parsons, one of the most active spirits in the labor movement of the '80s of the last century, was a leader in the eight-hour day campaign of that period. An excellent speaker, agitator and organizer, he was one of the most popular working class figures in Chicago.

Framed-Up.

After the famous Haymarket riot, when a number of his comrades were arrested and charged with having thrown a bomb at the meeting, he voluntarily surrendered himself in court to be tried with his colleagues He was sentenced together with Louis Lingg, Engel, Spies and Adolph Fisher to be hung, after a thoroughly shame ful trial, with a prejudiced jury, and a judge whose reactionary class instincts were shown at every stage of the proceedings. Lings was either murdered, or committed suicide on the eve of his proposed execution. The other martyrs went bravely and unflinchingly to their death.

Just as the trap was sprung Spies called out from beneath the hood which enveloped his head:

Last Words.

"There will come a time when our silence will be more powerful than the voices you are throttling today!" .

Parsons' last words-"Let the voice and strangled him.

Young Upholsterers Enter Fourth Strike Week in Hartford

HARTFORD, Conn., - Faced with wo injunctions, with eight strikers arrested and with the union being sued for $20.000.00 the strike of the Upholsterers Local Union No. 35 enters in its fourth week of bitter

One of the firms, Goldman Bros. has dready signed an agreement with the mion, but two largest manufacturers, he Acme Upholstering Co., and B. Dworkin & Co. have secured injunctions forhidding picketing and suing the union for $10,000.00 apiece. The union's request to dissolve the injunction will be heard by the superior court on Wednesday, November 3. 1926. The case of several strikers charged with contempt of court will also be tried at that time.

Entire Industry Tied Up.

For two years the Upholsterers of Hartford have been trying to build a mion. Active union men were fired and the bosses tried to force yellow dog contracts upon the workers These attempt however all failed and now the entire industry in Hartford is tied up. The other shop of the B. Dworkin Co. in Springfield, Mass. has also been pulled out and this concern that has been fighting the union for years is crippled.

The Upholsterers International Un on is giving a great deal of organizational and financial aid to these strik ers. In fact all the local unions in this industry are taking a great interest in this strike, as because thru long hours, low wages and brutal ex ploitation of young workers, the Hartford manufacturers were able to com pete with the organized centers.

The secretary of the students' committee is J. Nelson Frank of the League for Industrial Democracy. The secretary of the labor committee is Sam Adel, business agent of the Painters' Union. The purpose of the conference to be called is "to conduct campaign against military training for young workers and students." Although the student and liberal youth will participate, an effort will be made o make the chief appeal to the labor organizations of Southern California o take up the fight against the militarization of the American youth.

Youth Won in Philly Membership Drive

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.,-Our league s awakening! The period of inactiviy, inevitable tho it was after the reorganization, is past. We may well say, that our comrades realize their tasks now, and with real revolutionary fervor have thrown themselves into ur various activities.

It is understood, that our main tasks at the present are the membership drive and the Young Worker sub ampaign. We started the membership drive officially) on International Youth Day. Altho we did not take in any new members then, but we succeeded in lining up our membership on the drive, and win some sympathizers. The campaign is conducted with the iew of feaching the real American vorking class youth, and the heavy industries are concentrated on mostly. Special leaflets are distributed at the shops and factories, and affairs to which the young workers are invited, are being arranged. Individual recruiting is stressed a great deal, as well as mass meetings.

Win Negro Youth.

Our compades seem to have fully understood the significance of the campaign, for already we have some good results. First we have succeeded in winning back a number of old league members who fell out during the reorganization, and we got them busy in all our activities. We have also taken in some new members, of to reach the masses of young Negro workers, and get them into our movement. The campaign has just started, and we have outlined full details of work for the entire campaign. Of great importance is a mass meeting of Oct. with Trumbull and Bentall as the principal speakers.

The campaign will end with a grand ball, which in itself will serve as re-The young upholsterers of Hartford cruiting means. We expect to have a portant, we will have an active mem-

PENNA. MINERS

Strike in Defiance of Slavery Pact

By A Worker Correspondent WILKES BARRE, Pa., Nov. 9 .- The miners here are beginning to take their affairs into their own hands. The five-year contract signed by the Lewis machine, deprives the miners of the right to strike for the period of five years. The bosses took advantage of this contract and did everything possible to exploit the miners and discharge those that did not obey their orders. But soon the bosses found out that altho Lewis might sign a contract not to strike for five years, the miners are going to strike. Miners Discharged. The miners of the Peach Orchard Colliery of Glen Alden Coal Co. of Parsons. Pa., went on strike when four miners were unjustly discharged. Capellini did everything to force the ers went, under protest, and served notice that if the discharged men would go on strike again. This did the trick. The discharged miners were tion. taken back to work, with pay for the days they lost because of being discharged. The bosses learned that it ER, who will be assisted by Harry does not pay to discharge men. The Kletzky, supervisor of the worker corminers learned that solidarity is the respondence of The DAILY WORKER. secret of their success and found out that the strike is a mighty power, which the officials of the union have sold out to the operators for five years.

The miners in Peach Orchard are not the only ones that are fighting. At present the miners of Randolf Colliery of South Penn Colliery Coal Co., in Port Carbon, near Pottsville, Pa., are also on strike. One of the men was discharged because he refused to work after qutting time. The next day the miners did not work but gathered in the hall and decided not to go to work until the discharged brother go this job back.

Bosses' Man Was Fined. At this meeting, one of the men, who was under the influence of the bosses, made a motion to go back to work and lay the matter of the discharged man aside, to go to the griev. ance committee which would settle with the bosses. No one seconded the motion. However, the motion was made to fine the man who made the $25 only on account of his family.

The miners of the Randolph Colliery are under the leadership of Thomas Powell, the well-known militant leader, and the bosses, thru saloon keepers and other agencies, are spreading news to discredit him. The basses call Howell a Bolshevik, a Communist, a Red. But the miners do not listen to them because they know that Howell is one of them and fighting with them, and if he is a "RED" so Cops Break Up Parade much the better.

"Fold your hands, like good little children," ordered Vee. and bow your heads." And then with slow and solemn intonation she began:

"Our Movie, which art Heaven, Hollywood be Thy Name. Let Koski come. His Will be done, in studio as in bed.

There was a gasp, and then a roar of laughter swept the table; no explanations were needed, they all knew their emperor, master of the destiny of hundreds of screen actresses. 'Go on!" shouted voices; and the girl continued to intone an invocation, which echoed in outline and rythm the Lord's prayer, and brought in the names of other rulers of their shadow world, always with an abscene implication. It was a kind of Black Mass, and performed the magic feat of lifting the conversation out of the ditch of Prohibition. They talked for a while about the sexual habits of their rulers; who was living with whom, and what scandals were threatened, and what shootings and attempted poisonings had resulted. There were thrilling crime mysteries, which would provide a topic of conversation for hours in any Hollywood gathering; you might hear half a dozen different solutions, each one positive and no two alike.

They adjourned to the larger cathedral, where the lights were dim, and there appeared, very appropriately in place of the altar, a large white screen. At the far end of the room was a projecting machine, and the guests diistributed themselves in lounging chairs, prepared to pay for their entertainment by watching the first two reels of Annabelle's new picture, and giving their professonal judgements on the "cutting." "Pangs of Passion" you may recall as a soul-shaking story about a society bud whose handsome young husband is led astray by a divorcee, and who, textile workers. Moore avoided head in order to make him pealous, begins a flirtation with a bootlegger, and is carried off in a rum-running vessel, and made the victim of the customary pulling and hauling and tearing of feminine costumes. "My God," said Vee Tracy, in an aside to Bunny, "Annabelle has been playing these society flappers since before they were born, and in all that time she's never had a story above V. R. Scheel of Botany Worsted Mills the intelligence of a twelve year old child! You'll think it's a John Fitzpatrick, president of the and Garfield Woolen Mills; Theodore joke, but I know it for a fact that Perry Duchane gets a bunch Chicago Federation of Labor, a Boettger and Joseph A. Brohel of of school children together and tells them the scenario, and if staunch supporter of the cause of the United Piece Dye Works, Lodi; Henry there's anything they don't like, he cuts it out."

And then to Annabelle she said, "It's up to standard, my Jersey Worsted Mills, and William dear; it will sell alright." And to Bunny, "That's one good Gaunt of Passaic Worsted Spinning thing about Annabelle, you can say that and she's satisfiedshe doesn't ask you if it's a work of art. But others do, and I've made mortal enemies because I won't lie to them. I say, 'Leave art out of it, dearie; we all know our stuff is trash.'

There was technical discussion, and Bunny had an opportunity to learn about the tricks of "cutting." Also he learned what had been the gross business on a number of Annabelle Ames' pictures, and the inside figures on other successes. Tommy Paley had recently indulged in the luxury of making an artistic and beautiful picture, whch the papers had called a "classic' he and a group of friends had come out something over a hundred thousand in the hole, and he had charged it up to education, and said, "Let the Germans do the art stuff after this!"

All this time there had been a silent spectral figure flitting about the cathedral, clad in white duck coat and trousers and padded purple slippers; the Chinese boy, bearing a tray with little glasses full of pink and yellow and purple and green liquid. He would move from guest to guest, offering his tray, and they would put down empty glasses and take up full ones, and during the entire course of the evening the spectre never made no sound, nor did anyone make a sound to it. Some three hundred years ago an English poet, long since forgotten by the movie world, had asked the question why a man should put an enemy into his mouth to steal away his brains; but here at the Monastery, the anxiety appeared to be that some one might forget to put the enemy into his mouth-hence this Chinese spectre to save the need of recollecting.

The Critical Situation in the British Coal Strike

The struggle of the British miners has entered a critical phase, of the anti-Soviet parties-emigrated So critical is the situation that the miners' executive has had to abroad. postpone the scheduled meeting of the Anglo-Russian miners' union meeting in Berlin and remain in Britain to take up the negotiations I with the mine owners and their government.

The struggle now, in the light of the basis for the negotiations of which have not recognized the Solaid down by the government, appears directly as a fight for life of viet regime, exception being extremely the miners' union.

The government is pressing for district settlement, thinly camouflaged as a national settlement with provisions for district etc.) at which there are not resoluagreements. Acceptance of these proposals by the miners' officials tions in which the participants express means practically complete surrender and a terrible blow to the their readiness to devote all their whole labor movement.

Time and again the striking miners, in spite of more than six months of semi-starvation and the intimidaton practiced by all government agencies, in spite of the desertion of the miners by the leadership of the Trades Union Congress, the failure of the labor movement to support the strike by an embargo on coal and the scanty relief coming from all quarters except the trade unions of tively easier, as the village workers Soviet Russia whose generous donations have alleviated the misery (doctors, teachers, agronomists) were in the coal fields, have voted against district settlements.

Will the miners' executive disregard the emphatic mandate from the membership and yield to the government proposals?

Will the leadership of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain pay more attention to the pressure for an immediate settlement on qualified scientific forces. In the almost any terms from the officialdom of the Trades Union Congress than they will to the splendidly indomitable spirit of the rank and file of the strikers?

These are the questions which every militant worker will be asking as the negotiations proceed.

We have the greatest hope that the miners' leaders, now that British industry is at a standstill as a resulut of the great fight of the miners, will not take the backward step of district settlements IN 1921, on the initiative of V. I. no matter in what smooth guise they are put forward.

One thing is certain: It is that British labor as a whole faces a most drastic test. The leaders have failed already, but from below is coming a great movement which will be steeled in the new struggles of which the settlement of the miners' strike marks the beginning and not the end.

Victory for the miners, the victory which is possible if there is no further defection from above, will give a great impetus to the new labor movement which is in the making in Great Britain.

The Intellectuals and the Soviet Union

THE intellectuals in the U.S. S. R. did not at once come over to the side of the Soviet regime after the October revolution. Those groups of intellectuals whose work was more closely bound up with the working and peasant masses, specially the village intelligentsia, adhered sooner to the new order; those groups, however, who stood nearer the old czarist regime or the order established by the bourgeois provisional government, resisted the Soviet regime during alnost a whole year, either actively (by means of boycott and sabotage), or passively (striking on the job). The particularly irreconcilable section of he intellectuals—the active workers

Now Support Socialist State.

T can now be quite definitely as serted that not a single intellectual profession has remained, the workers rare. Not a single congress of professional workers takes place (teachers, doctors, engineers, agronomists strength and knowledge to the cause of the new socialist construction.

The difficult years experienced by our country during the period of war, blockade and famine was naturally reflected in the position of the intellectuals. During those times the life of the rural intelligentsia was relanearer to the food stocks than the town workers. Therefore in those days the task of the Soviet regime was to give main support to the town workers and specially the most highly owns special rations were instituted, little more nutritive than those of the ordinary population, for doctors, engineers and technicians and for those serving in Soviet institutions. But particular care was taken to improve the position of scientific work Gorky, Khalakov (Food Commissariat), Semashko (Commissar of health), Pokrovsky (education comnissariat) and the late Prof. Karpov (supreme economic council). At the ime of formation the tasks of this commission included: alleviating the material position of scientists (supply of clothing, footwear, and also inreased rations, fairly high for those lays), as well as improving the living conditions of the scientists (defense of their housing rights, reductions and regime has been paying special attention to rural workers. Their position, both in a cultural and material respect, is, of course, worse than that of the towns. The economic and cultural revival of the countryside has lemanded that particular attention be paid to the rural intelligentsia. A number of measures have been taken in this direction.

First of all, the salaries of village loctors, agronomists and teachers workers of various specialties come have been raised. regime is continuing to display special care towards the scientific work-(supply of accommodation with lighting and heating, traveling expenses); privileges are given for the children of these workers (for entering schools and higher scholastic institutions). while periodical rises are given for ong service; there is also periodical granting of leave for these intellectual workers to perfect their knowledge inally social insurance in case of loss of labor capacity, etc.

Thanks to these measures, the vilages are afforded greater possibilities of obtaining the development of inellectual forces they need.

THE Soviet intellectuals are growing up in closer and closer unity with he toiling masses of the U.S.S.R. This process of unity is proceeding all the more rapidly as new cadres of intellectuals are coming from the ranks of the workers and peasants them selves. The workers and peasants of the U.S.S. R. are flooding more and more not only into the schools but also into the higher colleges. Of course, the conditions of life and work of the Soviet intelligentsia are still far from being ideal. But they know that he improvement of these conditions depends upon the successes of furher construction. Therefore they have bound up their cause with that of the workers and peasants of the U. S. S.
