Cantonese Smash Thru Sun's Lines

Communist Party of China in New Appeal Says Revolutionary Spirit Unbreakable

SHANGHAI, Feb. 16.—The Cantonese armies by a clever outflanking movement have inflicted a disastrous defeat on the mercenary forces of Sun Chung-Fang and are now within 35 miles of Hangchow.

As previously cabled to The DAILY WORKER the recent Cantonese retreat was a tactical movement designed to draw the enemy into a trap. Sun walked into it and is now trying to walk out again as best he can.

Imperialist elements here are plainly worried over the turn events are taking. They hugged the delusion that Sun's troops were winning. Now the horrible truth is being told. Sun's troops are demoralized, Chang Tso-Lin's boasted "advance" is almost stationary, Wu-Pei-Fu is still in the questionable column and General Feng is reported to be giving his army the final "once-over" before setting it on Chang's tracks. Sun Chuan-Fang is reported rushing his troops southwards

Senator Defies Coolidge And Moves for Union Of Latin Americans

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16. - In the face of express presidential disapproval, Senator Shipstead, (F.L.), of Minnesota, today further pressed his proposal for a Federation of Central American Republics by offering in the senate a resolution calling upon President Coolidge to invite the five southern countries to send plenipotentiaries to Washington to arrange such a union. President Coolidge, through his official spokesman, recently let it be known that he felt such a proposal should go through the proper diplomatic channels without publicity rather than be aired and exploited through the press and from the senate floor.

Nine-Hour Day Allowed In Proposed Law

With a meeting of women's representatives scheduled at the Women's National Trade Union League's headquarters this morning, sentiment was rapidly crystallizing on the report of the industrial survey commission. The central theme of the commission's report, a denatured 8-hour law with liberal loopholes for the 9-hour day, is to be discussed and the league's attitude framed. A general meeting Monday will consider the report of day's meeting. Criticism against the evasive recommendation of the survey commission, controlled by reactionary republicians, were rife. Emanuel Kovaleskie, vice-president of the New York Federation of Labor, and labor's member on the commision, tore holes in the proposal to prevent any change in empensation rates for five years.

An analysis of the so-called 48-hour week provision for women workers reveals loopholes sure to destroy the law, in the opinion of labor attorneys. LOS ANGELES, Feb. 16 .- One man is known to have been killed and many others are believed to have met the same fate when a tremendous snow-slide wiped out an outlying construction camp on the Deep Creek tunnel project of the Southern California Edison Company, last night according to belated advices received at company headquarters here late today.

William Lukes met death in the slide. There were 250 other workers in the camp, which is approximately 75 miles northeast of Fresno and 7,000 feet up in the Sierra Nevada mountains. Relief parties have been sent to the scene from the main camp at Deep Creek.

Bankers are Victors in CongressThruManeuver With the Fake Farm Bloc

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

T is now being called the farm-Loank bloc. This is merely a confession of the existence of a condition that has prevailed in the legislative halls of congress ever since the present session convened.

The insidious forces that were rallied in support of the Mc-Nary-Haugen bill have been repeatedly exposed in these columns. It has been shown that the fact that Frank O. Lowden, multi-millionaire and former governor of Illinois, and Vice-president Charles W. Dawes, Chicago banker, supported this so-called "relief" measure, boded no good for the workers.

It was the organization of the farm-bank bloc that made it possible for the McNary-Haugen bill to pass the senate, with clear sailing at present in the house of representatives.

It has also made possible the passage thru the senate of the conference report on the McFadden-Pepper banking bill, which develops the power of the great financial institutions thruout the farm areas, thru establishing a system of branch banks, wiping out the small privately-owned banks.

Thus the banker crowd, using the McNary-Haugen bill as bait, won the support it desired for the passage of its own legislation to strengthen its own position to exploit the farmers.

None other than Senator Nye, of North Dakota, now admits that the attack made on this parljamentary combination, that can bring no good results to the dirt farmers is perfectly correct.

At this late day, Senator Nye now proclaims rather loudly:

"I resent the false information the friends of honest farm legislation entered into a deal with the banking interests to secure preferred places for the two bills. I resent it because I had no hand in such a deal. As one who believes it the intent of the international banker to crush and pauperize the American farmer and the farmers of the world I could not have brought myself to help such a deal.

"Frankly, I should prefer to see the NcNary-Haugen bill defeated than to see this banking bill made into law. Every advantage gained under the McNary-Haugen bill will be offset many times by the Mc-Fadden banking bill, which extends the privileges of the Federal Reserve System and condemns its damnable activities of 1920 and an invitation to the system to engage in another murderous program, at will, with the assurance that it will not be seriously molested for 60 years".

That sounds like an impetuous child bawling its eyes out after it has spilled its bread and milk and erashed the bowl. Frazier, LaFollette and Wheeler are found weeping along with Nye.

But it is exactly this outfit, the so-called LaFollette progressives, who made the farm-bioc deal possible. They have been heralding the McNary-Haugen Relief Bill, sponsored by the reactionary American Farm Labor Bureau, and supported by Dawes and Lowden, as a step forward. They have found it to be instead one of the biggest steps backward in the history of the . agrarian struggle.

At no time did these political worthies ever consider developing an independent viewpoint toward the question of farm relief. It was, of course, in keeping with their own class position, supporting the middle class of rich farmers, small bankers, landlords and little business, whom they hoped would be benefitted by the Mc-Nary-Haugen measure. They have in fact, played into the hands of the great capitalists, who are the actual winners.

The support of big business by these middle class politicians has not been passive. They have actually fought, openly and bitterly, against the workers and farmers themselves developing independent olitical action on their own behalf. In recent years the whole struggle of the LaFollette movement has been to crush the rising farmer-labor party movement.

Frazier and Nye, of North Dakota, have been among the worst offenders. When he could have devoted his time making a real fight for the wheat growers of his state, Nye was busy seeking political favors, in the shape of federal patronage, from Coolidge at the White House.

Some of the rotten fruits of the surrender of the LaFollette progressives to the republican "old guard" are just beginning to give off repulsive odors. The workers and farmers, the victims, will learn the real nature of the mess prepared for them by so-called "insurgents" in the old parties. Capitalism is driving to legislative victories in congress, but these victories will drive workers and farmers into a class Labor Party of their own to wage a real struggle for Bakers' Union Local 164, of German bakers in the Bronx yesterday invested $1,000 in "Save the Union" oonds of the Joint Board of cloak and dressmakers' unions.

A delegation from the local was sent to the headquarters of the bond issue to turn over the money and receive the bonds, and to assure the cloak and dressmakers that "we are with you until the fight is won," according to Julius Portnoy, secretary of the bond issue drive. The delegation said that more bonds would be bought by the local in the near future, and that an active campaign is being carried on among the members. The campaign for bonds is being carried into the shops, also, and the workers of the Fashionbuilt Shop have purchased 5 bonds and raised besides fifty dollars for the defense of their brothers in jail and for the protection of the union. Collections for defense of the prisoners are being made in many shops, Portnoy said.

Many workers are turning in shares of the Russian American Industrial Corporation in exchange for the bonds of the Joint Board, according to Portney. Shares have been received this week from Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston and Rochester and New York.

The Manager's Corner

Miniature typewritten editions of the Albuquerque, N. M., dailies have appeared in place of the regular editions. The two newspapers affected were the Evening Journal and the New Mexico State Tribune. These powerful capitalist journals failed to appear in their usual form, for one simple reason. Labor did not want them to appear. The pressmen, of the plant, having failed to reach an agreement with the publishers, walked out and thus the paper was forced to suspend publication in its printed form.

Last May the printers of London demonstrated in a similar way their power over the leading dailies of the British Empire, which were forced to suspend operations on account of the printers' strike. The foremost sheets of the Empire were virtually put out of existence by the irresistible power of organized labor.

But labor cannot depend solely upon its ability to stop the production of capitalist papers, in its struggle against their pernicious influence. Not every struggle of the workers involves the printers. The sense of solidarity among the various trades has not yet developed to the point where we can look forward confidently to the support of the newspaper workers, when other workers are on strike. The large mass of the workers therefore have no guarantee that labor's case will be properly presented unless . . . unless there is developed at the same time a strong labor press.

The workers must be taught to read labor newspapers at the same time that they build up their strength against these who control the channels of capitalist publicity. By building up this economic and political power and at the same time a real appetite for news from a labor viewpoint, the workers will soon be in a position to defy the present tremendous destructive power of the capitalist press.

Congress of Oppressed Plans China's Defense

BRUSSELS, Feb. 16 .- Demanding war in China and that a commission composed of George Bernard Shaw, Henri Barbusse and Fritjoff Nansen investigate conditions in the Dutch East Indies, the German Communist Deputy Munyenburg startled today's session of the Congress for Oppressed

A resolution passed by the executive committee to organize a world league to fight imperialism and to dependence was another feature of the session.

Horrors of Dutch Rule.

Describing the horrible conditions in the Dutch East Indies which have given birth to the recent revolts described as "bolshevist" in press dispatches, Deputy Munyenburg made a plea for the appointment of a committee which would investigate and expose the savage exploitation of natives by foreign capitalists.

Further evidence that the world faces a "white" rather than a "yellow peril"-if perils are to be described in racial rather than in social termswas presented by Theodore Lessing, the German philosopher, who declared that the expansion of the white race was far more noticeable than that of the yellow. "The tremendous growth of the white race in a hundred years from one sixth to one third of the population of the earth emphasizes that danger," he declared.

Lessing warned his audience that only liberty for all people and social equality could save the world from the white peril.

Africa for Africans.

The demand of exploited peoples of Africa for liberty was voiced by the Senegalese Negro Senghor, a former letter carrier and now a vigorous agitator for a league of black people against the French and the British.

"Africa for the Africans," was the slogan that he raised in his plea for the liberation of the black race. He described the exploitation of the African Negro by the British, French and Belgians and contrasted his economic condition with that of the American

What Does President Lewis Mean by "No Backward Step?"

The proposal made by President Lewis of the United Mine Workers at Miami to the coal operators' representatives, i. e., a commission of technical experts to devise ways and means of overcoming waste in the industry certainly is not in line with the "no backward step" slogan with which the rank and file delegates were beguiled at the Indianapolis convention.

This move of President Lewis is nothing less than acceptance of the principle of compulsory arbitration coupled with something still more dangerous—the organization of efficiency machinery in co-operation with the operators. That such a proposal can be made in the first few days of the negotiations is proof that the main line followed by the Lewis machine at the recent convention-that of bringing the UMWA into line with the workeremployer-co-operation-efficiency-unionism doctrine of the American Federation of Labor—is to be given its practical application in the negotiations in Miami.

There is no essential difference between the Lewis proposal and that of the operators who put forward a scheme for compulsory arbitration with persons appointed by the United States supreme court as the final board of appeal. President Lewis wants a board of technical experts. There is no difference except over the personnel of the commission. This of course is important but upon the main principle President Lewis and the coal barons are in agreement.

This is the beginning of the major operation that it is hoped the United Mine Workers will submit to without much protest. The efforts of the Lewis machine have been directed to chloroforming the membership so that, as is the usual case with major operations, the victim suffers no pain until he recovers conscious-

Rachel had published a brief article about Bunny's return from abroad, quoting him as saying that he intended to use his inheritance for the benefit of the movement. And this statement had attracted the attention of a bright young newspaper woman, who had written a facetious article:

MILLIONAIRE RED TO SAVE SOCIETY

And now it appeared that there were a great many people who had ideas as to how to save society, and they all wanted to see Bunny, and waited for him in the lobby of his hotel. One had a sure cure for cancer, and another a perpetual motion machine actually working; one wanted to raise bullfrogs for their legs, and another to raise skunks for their skins. There were dozens who wanted to prevent the next war, and several who wanted to start colonies; there were many with different ways of bringing about socialism, and several great poets and philosophers with manuscripts, and one to whom God had revealed Himself-the bearer of this message was six feet four and broad in proportion, and he towered over Bunny and whispered in an awe-stricken voice that the words which God had spoken had been set down and locked in a safe, and no human eye ever had beheld them, or ever would. Several others wrote that they were not able to call because they were unjustly confined to asylums, but if Bunny would get them out they would deliver their messages to the world through him.

There was one more "nut," and his name was J. Arnold Ross—no longer "junior." He had a plan, which he had been turning over and over in his mind; and now he gathered his friends to get their reaction. Old Chaim Menzies, who had been a long time in the movement, and watched most of its mistakes, Chaim was working in a clothing shop, as usual, and giving his spare time to getting up meetings. And Jacob Menzies, the pale student-Jacob had got a job teaching school for a year, but then he had been found out, and now was selling insurance. And Harry Seager, who was growing walnuts, and escaping the boycotts. And Peter Nagle, who was helping his father run a union plumbing business in an open shop city, and spending his earnings on a four page tabloid monthly ridiculing God. And Gregor Nikolaieff, who had done his socialist duty working for a year in a lumber camp, and was now assistant to an x-ray operator in a hospital. And Dan Irving, who had come from Washington at Bunny's expense-these six people sat down with Rachel and Bunny at a dinner party in a private dining room, to discuss how to save society with a million dollars.

Bunny explained with becoming modesty that he was not putting forth his plan as the best of all possible plans, but merely as the best for him. He wasn't going to evade the issue by giving his money away, putting off the job on other people; he had learned this much from Dad, that money by itself is nothing, to accomplish anything takes money plus management. Moreover, Bunny himself wanted something to do; he was tired of just looking on, and talking. He a big paper, but he had no knowlhad thought for a long time about edge of journalism, and would only be a blunderer. The one thing he did know was young people; he had been to college, and knew what a college ought to be, and wasn't. "What we're doing-Rachel and

Jacob and the rest of us Ypselsis trying to work on young minds; but the trouble is, we only get them a few hours in the week, and the things that count for most in their lives are the enemy's-I mean the schools, the job, the movies-everything. So I want to get some students together for a complete life, twenty-four hour a day; and see if we can't build a socialist discipline, a personal life, with service to the cause as its goal. Rachel will agree with me in this-I don't know if anyone else will-I think one reason the movement suffers is that we haven't made the new moral standards that we need. Our own members, many of them, are personally weak; the women have to have silk stockings and look like the bourgeoisie, and their idea of freedom is to adopt the bad habits of the men. If the movement really meant enough to socialists, they wouldn't have to spend money for tobacco, and booze, and imitation

"Dat let's me out!" said old Chaim Menzies, who had already lighted his ten-cent cigar.

The substance of what Bunny wanted was a labor college on a tract of land somewhere out in the country; but instead of spending his million on steel and concrete, he wanted to begin in tents, and have all the buildings put up by the labor of the students and teachers. Everybody on the place was to have four hours' manual labor and four of class work daily; and they were all to wear khaki, and have no fashionable society. Bunny had the idea of going out among the colleges and high schools, and talking to little groups of students, and here and there seducing one away from football and fraternities to a new dedication. Also the labor unions would be invited to select promising young men and women. It was a thing that should grow fast, and take little money, because, with the exception of building materials, everything could be produced on the place; they would have a farm, and a school of domestic arts-in short, teach all the necessary trades, and provide four hours' honest work of some sort for all students who wanted to Organizing the Unorganized.

Dear Comrades: Since the arrival of The DAILY WORKER in New York it has already accomplished big things for the workers of New York and the class struggle in general. The DAILY WORKER is not only writing labor news, but is also organizing the unorganized. Here is how it happened: The shops of "Myers Hats, Inc., where ladies' hats are made, has been for years a fiftyfifty shop, half slave and half free. The men operators were members of the Millinery Union, while the girls, copyists, were left in the cold and neglected by the bureaucrats of the union, unorganized for years and years, until the happy arrival of The DAILY WORKER on the news-stands of New York. One of the girls of the shop, Jean is her name, began buying and read-ing daily the only labor paper in New York and was deeply stirred by its message to the workers to organize. Jean at once began organizing the unorganized girls. Her appeal to the 20 girls of the shop to join the union and strike for better conditions was just the thing they were waiting for. Jean, with the ability of a leader and heart of a rebel, with the aid of a few other girls of Myers' shop succeeded in getting the girls to go to the millinery local union to register and organize into a body and demand recognition from the boss, that he is to deal with the girls thru their union, and not individually, as he used to do in the good old times. The boss, learning of the union movement, fired Jean and eight more girls and declared that they can never again work in his shop. The rest of the girls refused to go to work without Jean and the other fired girls who dared to agitate and organize the exploited and insulted girls into union, and a strike was declared.

The boss tried to fill the places with scabs and tried all kinds of tricks in order to confuse the striking girls and force them back to slave for him without a union, promising all kinds of sugared conditions, but seeing that his tricks didn't work, he recognized the union and took all the girls back and sent down his few

So, The DAILY WORKER was instrumental in organizing the unorganized girls who had been for years exploited and insulted and criminally neglected by the decaying bureaucratic officials of the Millinery Union. More power to you, comrades of The DAILY WORKER. Long live The DAILY WORKER.

ABE OLKEN.
