IT is sometimes cheaper to spend a little money than lose a lot. (It always is). This sagacious observation is prompted by reading about a person who felt he was too poor to buy a ticket for the Delaney-Maloney fight, but was separated from $1,500 by a burglar who did not agree with him. In all probability the burglar took a box seat and gave a hundred bucks to some worthy charity. It's a way burglars have.

J APAN accepts Coolidge's proposal for an arms parley. There is nothing that can beat the generosity of those imperialist powers when they fake that is worthy of its steel. Clever capitalist propagandists confine their attacks to the Communists regardless of race, creed or color. But this gink Woll, beside himself with rage, turned the vials of his wrath loose on the Jews and attributed the conflict between the fakers and the left wing to the alfakers and the left wing to the alleged fact that all the militants in the needle trades are Jews. the needle trades are Jews.

Matthew Woll is a catholic, tho not Irish. It may be "news" for many that not all the craw-thumpers come from the emerald isle. Woll belongs to that section of the A. It is a powerful combination, but not as powerful as the organized power of the millions of American wage earners organized and unorganized.

At a recent banquet given by the Civic Federation, Daniel Williard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, delivered a lecture on the benefits derived from the B. O. plan formulated by William M. Johnston, former president of the International Association of Machinists, or rather by an industrial expert by the name of Beyer. The railroad magnate declared that the plan proved its worth. One shop that was considered a dead ioss by the road began to show a profit after the B. & O. plan went into operation. Who benefitted by the increased efficiency was not made clear by Williard, but he did not show that the workers gained anything. Neither did they.

Mr. W. Z. Foster

Chicago Illinois.

Dear Triend Bill:

I was oloased to hear from you, and learn that you are still in the land of the living. I surely appreciate your interest in the battle I am engaged in for industrial freedom in the Connelsville Region where industrial slavery has been in existence for so long.

Bill it looks as though you have the right dope on this situation, as I am the only international organizer in the field. National Board Member O'Leary, and district Board Member Hynos along with two of the Member O'Leary, and district Board Member Hynes along with two of the Pittsburg district organizers, make up the crew that are fighting this battle against the most powerful coal companies in the country. Our mem are holding out remarkable. We are fighting with our backs to the wall. Without sufficient funds or help. I have appealed time and again for assistance, but to no avail. Five thousand miners and their famlies have been evicted from their homes, and fifteen thousand others have been served with eviction notices. Ten colonies are erected all over the region, and twenty-five hundred hired thugs and gummen have been deputized by the Sheriff of Fayette County. Two-hundred State Police are scattered over the field. The Jable are filled with striking miners. Six striking miners have been brutally murdered, and twenty-five others have been wounded. Hundreds have been beaten up many of them crippled for life. Wholesale evictions are taking place taking. We need funds, and need them bad, Appeals have been sent all over the country for assistance by us, and upon this, depends the very existence of the struggling men and women of the Connelsville Coke.

The recent settlement, by the district Officials of District #5 was a staggering blow to the miners of the Coke Region, when they signed for the large Hillman interests, in the old Pittsburg District and left out the twelve mines of that company that we have organized and left out the twelve mines of that company that we have organized solidly in the Connelsville field. This was the dannest blunder of the age. O'Leary and Hynes fought against this settlement, but the gang overwhelmed them. We are demanding a special convention, and it will be some Convention. There will be Hell to pay. I find both International and District organizers throwing cold water on this very important situation. International Secretary William Green is the only National Official that has paid us a visit, notwithstanding that Vice-President Murray, who lives but forty miles from the seat of War cannot find time to visit the field. Bill, I expect to be a candidate for district President, and believe me, there will be some fun. We for district President, and believe me, there will be some fun. We have recieved the galtry sum of three thousand dollars from district 5 to meln carry on the strike, with forty-five thousand men involved.

I must now draw to a close, for Gods sake if you can help us, do so, we need shelter food and clothing, children are without shoes, and unable to go to school. Wishing you every success, I remain,

Yours respectfully,

Tories and Czarist Russians Plot War

Catholics, Anglican Clerics, Government Officials Unite to Rupture Anglo-Soviet Relations

Special To The DAILY WORKER

MOSCOW, Feb. 20 .- The press of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics publishes correspondence of the former Czarist diplomat, Eugene Sablin, living in London, with Teirs "senior Russian diplomatic representative abroad," living in Paris.

These documents show the existence of very influential organizations in England, consisting of members of the British government, conservative members of parliament, bankers, oil interests, and other business men buying up shares of expropriated Russian owners, newspaper editors, such as those of the Daily Mail, and other papers, representatives of various churches in England, mainly Anglician and catholic, the Association of British Owners, and with them all, lastly, Russian, Ukrainian, and Georgian white guardist organizations.

Sablin supplies information in regard to the Soviet Union to the leader of the anti-Soviet campaign, Locker-Lampson and his other English friends who publish the materials in the English Press. Besides this, the white guards fabricate literature against the Soviet Union, among which is the leaflet "Destruction of the British Empire," by a Valentinoff Lange.

How strong the white guardist influence on the British government really is may be judged from Sablin's report that the Czarist Diplomatic members of the Furriers Joint Board Embassy has been gradually regain- are ready today to meet whatever asing the use of de facto rights, and is sailants may arrive with notices of meeting de facto recognition from suspension, or expulsion, or discharge, part of the British authorities.

CORRESPONDENCE FROM CANTON

Canton, China. THE incident reported this week I from Hankow is viewed here as on June 23. There are many expresof the Hankow foreign concessions. which adjoin the Chinese city, could not have remained cool.

From the reports reaching here, many of which are conflicting, it appears that the British concession authorities decided that the crowd was dangerous and sent an armored car with armed marines to disperse the demonstrators. The coming of the car into the Chinese city infuriated the crowd and a melee resulted in which several Chinese were wounded, some fatally, some slightly, and in which two or three marines are also reported to have been wounded. There evidently was considerable roughness in the tactics used by the marines.

Thanks to the rapid and effective measures taken by the Chinese authorities, the incident stopped at that point. The Chinese authorities did their best to pacify the people and requested them to remain quiet until negotiations, which had been immediately started with the foreign authorities, could be completed. There was, however, great excitement throughout the city, in large part due to the menacing concentration of warships, mainly British, in the harbor. There was wonderment if the Wanghsien incident was to be repeated. The fears of the people were partly calmed by the withdrawal of the marines from the concessions to boats in the harbor and the disarmament of the volunteers.

The consequences of the incident depend on the negotiations between the nationalist and foreign authorities. These negotiations are going on at the time of writing so that no report of their results can be given. There is a general feeling here that the commander at Hankow probably will not use the same ruthless measures employed at Wanghsien, because of the presence of the nationalist authorities at Hankow.

Against the British Memorandum. The nationalist government is following nationalist opinion in its protest against the British memorandum, which was recently handed to the representatives of the powers signatory to the Washington Treaty. In his note to Secretary of State Kellogg, Mr. Eugene Chen, nationalist minister for foreign affairs, warned the United States Government against approval of the proposals contained in the British memorandum regarding the immediate collection of the two and a half per cent

Putting aside the reports which have been confirmed, denied and reaffirmed, regarding disaccord in the ranks of the Fengtien leaders, we note that the arrival of Chang Tholin in Peking has not been followed by any important changes. The marshal entered the city, with great pomp and ceremony-all of it specifically ordered and exacted by the refree-but nothing has happened.

The military expedition, however, has started and seems to be divided into two fields of action. Chang Tsung-chang, military governor of Shangtung, is reported to have brought troops to Pukow. Sun Chuanfang, military governor of Chekiang, has apparently been put in charge or the defense of Shanghai and the surrounding districts. There have been no reports of serious engagements with either army. The nationalist forces are concentrating in the vicinity of Hangchow.

According to information received from the Yangtze, formidable nationalist movements are developing everywhere throughout central China. There has been a growing opposition to the coming of Fengtien troops into Chekiang, Kiangsu and Anhui. The people of these three provinces seem to be united in their resistance to any authority within their boundaries by Shantung or Mukden elements. FLAT JANITORS HEAD PASSES AWAY IN CHICAGO

Quesse Reactionary and Extremely Patriotic

CHICAGO (FP) .- Wm. F. Quesse, president, Building Service Employes Intl. Union, and president of the Chicago Flat Janitors Union which he had organized, died of cancer Feb. He had been a growing power in the Chicago and Illinois organized labor movements and was more or less closely involved with the political organization of Gov. Len Small. His place at the head of the Chicago flat janitors is taken temporarily by Ald. Oscar Nelson, vice amoidant of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Among Quesse's recent endeavors trouble in international relations by Fire Trap Proprietor was an elaborate argument to building owners in Detroit that recognition of his union would be an effective antidote to the growth of Bolshevism in America. He took the position that union conditions bring contentment to workers and that contentment provides a sterile field for theories of social change.

William F. Quesse was an outstanding figure in the "gas pipe" section of the Chicago trade union movement. He was not a frequent attendant at the meetings of the Chicago Federation of Labor; in fact he regarded the federation with more or less contempt. INTEREST concerning the Mc-Vary-Haugen Farm Relief Bil! now centers about the fate it will receive at the hands of President Coolidge.

That interest, however, is pushed somewhat into the background by the claim that Coolidge's veto of this bill, now passed by both houses of congress, will sumulate the organization of a third party for the 1928 elections.

The kind of a party that those who make this threat have in mind is not kept in the dark. It is quickly revealed by the statement that the two available candidates for president on such a third party ticket are Frank U. Lowden and Charles G. Dawes. Our reagers should be thoroly familiar with both of these gentiemen, prized worthies of the ruling class.

The third party threat is supposed to originate with Henry Wailace, of Des moines, lowa, son of the former secretary of agricuiture. Coonage's agricultural secrecary, Jarume, also halls from pur. Wallace states that if President Coolidge vetoes the farm bul and appears as the republican party's choice for president next year with Al J. Smith, of New fork running on the democratic ticket, then the farm states of the west would go into the field with a third party ticket headed by one of its two favorite sons.

. . . . Such a threat can hardly be taken seriously. It looks had pressure being brought to bear on Coolidge, in an effort to frighten him into signing the bill, or permitting it to become a law by railure to take any action on it either way during the ten days allotted him

It can be taken for granted that Coolidge is too loyal to the great capitalists of the East to pay much attention to what Wallace has to

Yet the promise of a farm revolt headed by Lowden or Dawes is deserving of some consideration. Lowden is a multi-millionaire, a "gentleman" farmer. He is not only a corn grower in Illinois and a cotton raiser in Arkansas, but, as head of the Pullman Co., he also farms Pullman porters, exploiting them to the limit. Dawes is no farmer at all, gentleman or otherwise. He is a plain Chicago banker, crooked as they make them, as the Lorimer scandal revealed. What

Recall Left Wing Delegate. In August, 1925, Local Painters' Union 1158 recalled Brother Fred Harris as a delegate to go to the brotherhood convention at Montreal under the pretense that no funds were on hand to finance such a trip. The real reason for this action was, however, that Harris was a Left Winger and not acceptable to the officialdom. At any rate, tho he had been elected by a unanimous vote, the red scare and the pretense of lack of funds kept Harris from attending the Morris had previously pretended support to the left wing, but ever since the attempt to recau harris as a delegate, had completely turned around and had now become a professional red baiter. He had sought in the meantime the support of the wire pullers and thus, carrying the credentials for Harris in his pocket, he actually did go to Montreal.

Attacks Communists.

At the convention he made a redhot attack against the Communists and gave acure support to the resolution introduced by Zausner, now exposed as a grafter, which resolution bars all Communists from membership in the prothernood. Thus Morris became a hero overnight. Pleads Foverty.

Upon his return to San Francisco re pleaded poverty, altho his fare, which had been paid by the convention expense tuna, allowed for a fair margin of about $100, this being the difference between the regular rate paid by the convention and the excursion rate charged by the railroad. hands in Expense Bill. Since the treasury at that time was very low, Morris waited his time, but thought it opportune last Fall to start action. He then handed his local union an expense account for $200 for his trip to Montreal of the previous year, which he had boasted to make at his own expense, and which was not to cost the union a dime. As a red baiter Morris must have had the "moral backing" of the machine for, altho the local's treasury could not pay that sum, yet the bill was accepted. Morris had "consented" to accept the payment of his "claim" in weekly instailments. He get the dough, anyway.

When Mind Doesn't Count

"Rags" Is a Jewish Idyll, Rich in Poetry and Character

F OR the third time during the last few years I've seen "Rags," by H. Leivick, now playing at the Yiddish Art Theatre. And for the third time I've succumbed to its graciousness, its charm, its deep and playful veracity. But now that my emotions have proved such easy marks, that portion of me known as my mind or intellect grows a little distrustful and suspicious.

But before I give my mind a chance to strut I want to say, for the edification of the general reader, that "Rags" is an early play by H. Leivick, author of "The Golem," produced by the Habima players, and of "Shop," which recently completed a long run at the Irving Place Theatre. Leivick won his first reputation in poetry, and both as poet and dramatist he is one of the most important in the Yiddish tongue. The present production of "Rags" is the annual revival, the play having become a permanent part of the repertoire of the Yeddish Art Theatre.

Sky High Rent Boosts Due Workers Tell Own Stories

Albany politicians backed by landlords, real estate sharks and the vicious forces of private greed, are determined to let the rent laws die June 1. Although the 'law is pitifully inadequate in prorecting New York workers against gouging landlords, even this shred of protection is to be denied.

"No emergency exists," say the landlords, echoed by their bought-and-paid-for legislators. But New York workers know there is a crisis. In interviews with DAILY WORKER reports and in letters they are telling their own personal experiences. Here are three more, to be followed by other letters from DAILY WORKER readers. Send in yours now, detailing your own struggle for a bit of air and roof for your little ones.

Rents and Housing-A Permanent Problem Under Capitalism.

Periodically the capitalist press refers to "the rent crisis" in New York city.

The impression created thereby, that the housing situation becomes bad only occasionally, is 100 per cent wrong. The housing situation is bad for the New York working class year in and year out. But it is only when certain sections of the middle class begin to feel the pinch that the press pays any great amount of Legislation "regulating" rents and housing conditions was enacted during the period when the war-boom increased the city population with great speed and rents shot skyward. But so far as any broad and efficient application of this legislation, in itself hopelessly inadequate, is concerned, no one can say truthfully that the pressure of high rents and the menace of miserable living conditions has been lifted from any considerable section of the

The housing schemes which came into being coincident with the regulative legislation themselves served the purposes of the real estate sharks very well by boosting land prices and consequently rents.

The struggle in Albany, which is to decide whether the regulative legislation is to be allowed to expire, appears as a conflict arising out of conditions peculiar to New York. Actually, housing conditions in New York are no better and no worse than in other congested centers. A tour thru the working class districts of will have. But the workers and farmers will think of a lot more. Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, Pittsburgh, etc., will convince anyone that the question of decent housing for workers and their families is a national one.

Under capitalism huge sections of the working class are condemned to live in mean and degrading surroundings. Those who do the most necessary work in modern civilized society live under the worst conditions.

But we need not wait for the abolition of capitalism to begin to remedy this evil. Here is a popular issue around which powerful forces can be gathered. It is necessary, however, that there which the Metropolitan Life Insube a common program and that its demand be apportioned among rance Co. describes as one of the the various sub-divisions of government-municipal, state and "fifteen roads to good will in indusnational.

It meant taking long rides in the country; and since Rachel was to one of the bosses, it was good for her to go along. They had time to talk-and a lot to talk about, since they were going to take charge of a bunch of young radicals, boys and girls of all ages -twenty-four hours a day.

They had looked at a couple of places, and there was another farther from the city, and Bunny remarked, "If we go to that, we'll be late getting home." Rachel answered, "If it's too late, we can go to some hotel, and finish up in the morning." Said Bunny, "That would start the gossips." But Rachel was not afraid of gossips, so she declared.

They drove to the new site. It was near the village called Mount Hope, in a little valley, with the plowed land running up the slopes of half a dozen hills. It was early November, and the rains had fallen and the new grain had sprouted. and there were lovely curving surfaces that might have been the muscles of great giants lying prone -giants with skins of the softest bright green velvet. There were orchards, and artesian water with a pumping plant, and a little ranch-house-the people had apparently gone to town, so the visitors would wander about and look at everything, and make a finda regular airdrome of a barn, gorgeous with revolutionary red paint! "Oh, Bunny, here's our meeting place, all ready made! We have only to put a floor in and we can have a dance the opening night!" Imagine Rachel thinking about dancing! They climbed one of the slopes, and here was a park, with dark live oaks and pale grey sycamores, and a carpet of new grass under foot. The valley opened out to the west, and the sun had just gone down, in a sky of flaming gold; the quail were giving their last calls, and deep down in Bunny's heart was an ache of lonelinessbecause quail meant Dad, and those beautiful hills of Paradise, and happiness he had dreamed in vain. Now it was Rachel dreaming "Oh, Bunny, this is too lovely! It's exactly what we want! Mount Hope College-we couldn't have made up a better name!"

Bunny laughed. "We don't want We must take to buy a name. samples of the soil."

"How many acres did you say?" "Six hundred and forty, a little over a hundred in cultivation. That s more than we'll be able to take care of for quite a while." "And only sixty-eight thousand! That's a bargain!" Rachel had learned to think on Bunny's imperial scale, since she had been racing over the state in his fast car, inspecting millionaire playgrounds and real estate promoters' paradises. "The price is not bad," said

Bunny, "if we are sure about the soil and water." "You could see the state of the growing things, before it got dark." 'Maybe so. We'll come back in the morning, and have a talk with the ranchman. Perhaps he's a tenant, and will tell us the truth." Not for nothing had Bunny spent his boyhood buying lands with his shrewd old father!

Twilight veiled this valley of new dreams, and across the way the hills were purple shadows. Bunny said, "There's just one thing worrying me about our plan now: I'm afraid there's going to be a scan-

"How do you mean?" "You and me being together all the time, and going off and being missing at night.'

"Oh, Bunny, what nonsense!" "No, really, I'm worried. I tol. Peter Nagle we'd have to conform to bourgeois standards, and we re beginning wrong. My Aunt Emma is a bourgeois standard, and she would never approve of this, and neither would your mother. We ought to go and get married."

"Oh, Bunny!" She was staring at him, but it was too dark to reveal any possible twinkle in his eyes. "Are you joking?"

"Rachel," he said, "will you take that much trouble to preserve the good name of our institution?" He came a step nearer, and she stammered, "Bunny, you don't— you don't mean that!"

"I don't see any other wayreally."

"Bunny-!" "Why not?" "Because-you don't want to marry a Jewess!" "Good Lord!" "Don't misunderstand me, I'm proud of my race. But all your friends would thing it was a mistake." "My friends, Rachel? Who the devil are my friends-except in the radical movement? And where would the radical movement be without the Jews?" "But, Bunny—your sister!"

"My sister is not my friend. Neither did she ask me to pick out her husband." Rachel stood, twisting her fingers together nervously. "Bunny, do you really-you aren't just speaking on an impulse?" "Well, I suppose it's an impulse. I seem to have to blurt it out. But it's an impulse I've had a good many times."

"And you won't be sorry?"
He laughed. "It depends upon your answer." "Stop joking, please-you frighten me. I can't afford to let you make a mistake. It's so dreadfully serious!"

But why take it that way?" "I can't help it; you don't know how a woman feels. I don't want you to do something out of a generous impulse, and then you'd feel bound, and you wouldn't be happy. You oughtn't to marry a girl out of the sweat-shops." "Good God, Rachel, my father was a mule-driver."

"Yes, but you're Anglo-Saxon; away back somewhere your ancestors were proud of themselves. You ought to marry a tall, fair woman that will stay beautiful all her life, and look right in a drawing-room. Jewish women bear two or three children, and then they get fat, and you wouldn't like me. He burst out laughing. "I have attended the weddings of some of those tall, fair Anglo-Saxon women; and the priest pronounces, very solemnly, 'Into this holy estate the two persons now present come now to be joined. If any man can show just cause, why they may not lawfully be joined together, let him now speak, or else hereafter forever hold his peace." "Bunny," she pleaded, "I'm trying to face the facts!"

Well, dear if you must be solemn-it happens that I never loved a fair woman. The two I picked out to live with were dark, the same as you. It must be nature's effort to mix things. I suppose you know about Vee Tracy?"

"Well, Vee had the looks all right, and she'll keep them-she makes a business of it. But you see, it didn't do me any good, she threw me over for a Roumanian prince." 'Why Bunny?" "Because I wouldn't give up the radical movement."

"Oh, how I hated that woman!" There was a note of melodrama in Rachel's usually serene voice, and Bunny was curious. "You did

"I could have choked her!" "Because she struck you?"

"No! Because I knew she was trying to take you out of the movement; and I thought for sure she She had everything I didn't have."

Bunny was thinking-by golly, it was queer! Vee had known itand he hadn't! Oh, these women! Aloud he said, politely, "No, she didn't have quite everything."

"I'll tell you-I'm so tired of being quarreled with. You can't have any idea-my whole life, since I began to think for myself, has been one wrangle with the people who loved me, or thought they had a right to direct me. You can't imagine what a sense of peace I get when I think of being with you; it's like settling down into nice soft cushions. I've hesitated about it, oecause of course I'm not very proud of the Ver. Tracy episode, and i didn't know if you'd take a man second hand-or thirdhand it really is, because there was a girl while I was in high school. I'm telling you my drawbacks, to balance your getting fat!"
