WASHINGTON, March 9 .- "Is Great Britain's dispatch of the cruiser 'Colombo' to 'Nicaraguan waters a threat against the Monroe Doctrine?" asks Senator Henrik-Shipstead of Minnesota.

"Pooh!" he replies. "Great Britain disavows any such intention and undoubtedly disavows it sincerely. Nevertheless, the 'Colombo's' presence off Nicaragua gives the state department an excuse to plead that the United States must intervene in the new world's troubles or other powers will intervene to protect the new world's troubles or other their own nationals, thus violating the Monroe Doctrine.

Polish Workers Riot When Unemployed Are Lured by False "Ad"

WARSAW, March 9 .- The unemployment problem in Poland was given an ironic twist recently when a typographical error in an advertisement caused an American firm to be beseiged by a host of workers out of jobs.

Ulen & Co., who are doing sewer construction work in the city of Czenstochau, advertised for forty workers. Through some error this appeared as 400. A riot broke out when only forty were employed, and the angry workers, who believed themselves to have been cheated by a trick of the bosses, did considerable damage in the office of the company. Police interfered, and the disturbance was quelled, but not before a number of the workers had been hurt.

U.S. Oil Men in Mexico Discuss Obeying Law

Tellez Blames Knights Of Columbus For Friction

MEXICO CITY, March 9.—Reliable sources are quoted here to the effect that new negotiations are going on between the law breaking American oil companies and the government. It is not known at what stage the conversations are at present, but hope expressed that the Doheny, Sinclair, Mellon interests which still lead small group of oil men, nearly all Americans, to defy the Mexican constitution and refuse payment of taxes, will finally yield on essential points.

Former President Obregon is suposed to be taking part in the disassions, which are very secret.

Obregon Snubs King.

Obregon today declined to accept decoration of the Royal Order of Saints Maurice and Lazarus from King Victor Emanuel of Italy. He based his refusal on the ground that would be inconsistent for the head of the Mexican democratic revolution to accept an insignia from a faccist government which is inspired by ideals

General Obregon said he believed it was because he had occupied the position of revolutionary president the decoration, and for that reason he must refuse to accept. His refusal was contained in a letter written to the foreign office.

Tellez Blames Knights.

The ambassador to the United States, Manuel C. Tellez, in a public statement declared he would probably return to the United States, and said that the recent mysterious note of the U.S. department of state to the Mexican government was not of as much importance as the public thought.

He said, however, that there were difficulties made for the Mexican embassy by the Knights of Columbus and the Archbishop of Baltimere, and by certain senators in Washington.

Discussing these attacks, Tellez said: "I have been charged with many things. Baseless charges have been hurled about that we have been trying to influence Senator Borah with

British Plot Ruin of U. S. Capitalism

"At the outset the British government left the Nicaraguan situation exclusively to the United States, presumably because it considered the latter protecting everybody and British nationals then were not particularly insistent. Later, British residents began demanding protection under their own flag, with increasing urgency. On Feb. 15, the British charge d'affairs at Managua asked President Diaz of Nicaragua for guarantees. The United States gave assurances of protection, but avoided the word 'guarantees' as implying indemnification in event of Ambassador's Statement. "Subsequently, Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to the United States, informed the state department the British contemplated sending a cruiser. Then, that they had reluctantly decided to send it. He emphasized that no landing was intended, but that the cruiser was intended simply for rescue purposes in the event of danger."

LEAGUE ADMITS POVERTY MAKES PROSTITUTION

Organized Traffic Gets Women of Poor Lands

GENEVA, March 9 .- The appalling number of about ten thousand women are annually bought and sold like so many chattels in the nefarious international white slave traffic. That's the conclusion drawn by a voluminous detailed report to the council by the League of Nation's white slave committee, headed by Colonel Freeman Snow, of New York. Poverty Forces Them.

Economic conditions, much more than the innate badness of the women or their desire for such a life, is the chief factor in the supply. Countries with depreciated currencies and a surplus of women and where the outlook is the most gloomy are the sources where slavers

operate with the greatest results. The prices are said to range all the way from one hundred dollars to two thousand dollars, depending on the woman's youth and beauty and the demand. Prove Commercialization.

The investigation of the committee extended over thirty countries. One of the most important features of the report is that it ends the controversy of whether there is or not such a thing as an international traffic in women for immoral The committee answers strongly in the affirmative. The information gleaned indicates that not a few white slavers have made comfortable fortunes.

Socialists "Bankrupt," Hints V. F. Calverton In Lecture at C. P. Hall

"In spite of the bankruptcy of the socialist party of the United States," declared V. F. Calverton, editor of "The Modern Quarterly," speaking on "The New Negro," at the Workers' School, 108 E. 14th St., Sunday night, "there is no doubt that the Communist Party would join with it to fight some fundamental major issue.'

Calverton's lecture, which was an academic discussion of the early Ethiopian culture, brought forth spirited comment from the floor. A large number of speakers, active in the revolutionary movement, insisted that Calverton had neglected to emphasize the necessity for immediate struggle for the emancipation of the American Negroes as wage workers, side by side with their emancipation as a race.

The lecturer, besides being a contributor to "The Nation" and "Current History," also conducts a column for "The New Leader," a socialist weekly.

Calverton has also contributed to the magazine section of The DAILY WORKER.

"Pygmalion" Author Craves For the Comfort of the Cinema House

Motion Pictures Relieve Spectator of Worry and Self-Consciousness, Says Shaw.

George Bernard Shaw, author of "Pygmalion," which the Theatre Guild is reviving the entire week of March 21 to 27 for the benefit of the readers and sympathizers of The DAILY WORKER, may be a confirmed pessimist, but he believes in making the play-goer comfortable.

He boils the whole psychology of play-going thus: if a good play makes him forget his discomfort, a bad one makes him remember it and fear it next time.

With the rapid growth of the motion picture house, Shaw has often cast his reflection toward it. #### Arrest Three Gangsters For Attacking Workers

The union-smashing campaign of the united forces of reaction in the International Fur Workers' Union and the American Federation of Labor met with a two-fold defeat yester-day, when the largest fur shop in the world, A. Weckstein & Sons agreed to recognize only the furriers' Joint Board; and when the International's crew of notorious gangsters was utterly routed when they made an attack on a group of fur workers late yesterday afternoon.

It had been planned by the special committee in charge of "reorganizing" the fur workers' Joint Board, that the shop of A. Weckstein should be forced to register in full with the International as soon as its new headquarters opened. Since this is the largest fur shop in the city, and in would make the enrollment campaign sound successful from the start.

Terror Fails. Gangsters were brought to the shop last week to terrorize the workers, and the boss also used his influence workers of France. Two of the gangsters were arrested during the attack, Mintz being discovered with an open knife in his hand. A. Reicher, a leading member of the Furriers' Trade Union Group Isadore Flaxman and Morris Tauber, two of the fur workers who were attacked, were taken to the hospital for treatment of severe cuts. But the gangsters were so completely routed in the fray that they will probably think twice before they try these terrorist tactics again.

Each morning, noon and evening, the Defense Committee will be in the fur district to protect workers, and to warn the International that it cannot force the workers to register. So far the ten cent union headquarters are deserted except for the famous gangsters.

Ruthenberg Challenged Ruthenberg---the Leader U. S. Capitalism When It Felt Itself All-Powerful

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

CAPITALIST greed felt securely enthroned in New York City, on Tuesday night, March 8th. Its "bomb squad" was ever alert at the great Grand Central Station, and all along the line of march, from 42nd street It is the voice of a leader. to the Manhattan Lyceum on Fourth street, police were anxiously attentive, but the long procession of mourning son of a German longshoreman, who hands of capitalist justice. Yet in this very city Ruthenberg had predicted the never forget the impression he made came to socialism by way of books downfall of this powerful capitalist state, mightiest in the world today. His prediction was thrown as a challenge into the midst of court, prosecutor and jurymen, and he got a prison sentence for telling what he believed.

Built and strengthened for 150 years, with a seemingly disciplined police force today, a mighty army and powerful navy; armed forces on sea, land, air with apparently smoothly running administrations in villages, cities, counties, states and nation at Washington, the prosecutor of Ruthenberg could not imagine the time when deep feeling of personal, painful re- Hillquit and Berger were also op- short figure, his large head with its deep brow surof America would cease to function.

Mr. Rorke, the prosecutor, here yelled, "I object," but the court decreed that Ruthenberg might answer, and he did as follows:

"The capitalist system brings about this situation where workers are compelled to strike in order to secure enough to live on, and this paralyzes industry, and this will compel the workers to take steps to change the system in order to eliminate this paralysis of industry, this breakdown.

Ruthenberg was an excellent Marxist. This meant a whole lot in the American socialist movement. In the conglomeration of syndicalism, semianarchism and spineless reformism which swarmed within the socialist party, a good Marxist was a rare and valuable phenomenon. Ruthenberg came to the socialist party by way of Marx and he remained a Marxist till the end.

Ruthenberg was an energetic and courageous fighter. This even his bitterest opponents will admit. Intrepid and obstinate in struggle, he threw himself into the midst of every important labor fight disregarding his own life and security. In this he was like DeLeon, but what a big difference between the two of them. Unlike DeLeon, Ruthenberg was not sectarian. To him the letter of the Marxian theory was not a thing of first consideration, as it was to De Leon, Ruthenberg had an understanding and sympathetic ear for the immediate needs and demands of the masses. Ruthenberg's Marxism was rounded out by his Leninism.

To Ruthenberg mass-activity and mass-struggle were life itself. His road was the highway leading towards the American working masses. And this was extraordinary in a man who came to the socialist movement from a big executive position in the offices of a great clothing factory, the kind of a position that makes a person rather pedantic and detached from the channels of life of the early interests in accounts and figures and attached himself to the life ty were expressions of his great de-

BOOKS

CONTRIBUTORS WANTED.

We are looking for brief, intelligent, well-written book reviews. They should be no longer than 350 words. Books discussed must be timely (not necessarily hot off the press), and must be written from the point of view of those who have accepted the Marxist interpretation of society as a point of departure. Each review should carry with it the exact title of the book, author, publisher, year, and price. Also full name and address of reviewer.

Those who have been reading the BOOKS department can gather a general idea of what we should like to get from our contributors. * * *

POOR WHITES.

The Twilight of the White Races, by M. Muret. Charles Scribners & Sons.

Poor Woodrow Wilson. Little did he know, when his Attorney-General, A. Mitchell Palmer, was hounding Reds, that six years later his name would be mentioned as a collaborator of the Third International; little did he know when he kicked off that his innocuous phrases would, like the eyes of Helen of Troy, set the world aflame. Poor Wilson died before Muret published his "Twilight of the White Races."

Here is Muret's discovery: There is a black and brown as well as a yellow peril. Turkey, Etpt, India, Syria, Persia, Afghanistan, China are all rising against the white races. The African Negroes will rise soon.

How account for this menace to white supremacy? That's simple, says Muret. "Wilson's phrases about self-determination and Moscow propaganda done it." The yellow, brown and black races docilely submitted to the domination of the white race until Wilson came along, and started to mouth about the rights of small nations to determine their own destiny; until the posed to war, but what a great dif- mounted by a shock of unruly hair, his merry eyes and Third International came along and started to hand out gold to backward races in an effort to further their own nefarious schemes.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

"Your column is always entertaining, and sometimes informative," writes John Ramburg of Brooklyn. "There is one suggestion that I should like to make, however. And that is that you run occasional bibliography on subjects of current and vital interest.

"A bibliography on China, for instance, would be far more valuable and interesting just now than several columns of wise-cracks about Will Durant and George Jean Nathan."

A good suggestion.

We print below the names of a number of books on China. No one of them deals adequately with the subject; nor do all of them combined give the reader a complete picture of the events in China or the social and economic forces underlying them. They are, however, in our conception, the best books available on the subject.

Communist International for December 30. Contains a study of rural conditions and peasant organization, by R. Miff.

The Awakening of China, by James Dolsen. Probably the best analysis of the nationalist movement that has yet been published. Omits the peasantry and under-estimates the role of the middle classes, however.

Foreign Financial Control in China, by T. W. Overlach. The story of mperialist aggression in China.

China's Place in the Sun, by Stanley High. Material for historical background, and student movement.

Western Civilization and the Far East, by Stephen Hall-King. Historical background, the Revolution of 1911, the industrialization of China.

China Yesterday and Today, by E. T. Williams. Valuable summary of events since the Boxer rebellion. British Foreign Office: Report on Labor Conditions in China. Contains report of Shanghai Labor Commission; conditions in Shanghai mills, hours, Why China Sees Red, by Putnam Weale. A Soviet-gold interpretation of the events in China. Record of events 1924-25; the Shanghai massacre. Occidental Interpretation of the Far Eastern Problem, by Woodhead, Norton, Arnold. Prejudiced imperialist view of the revolution; contains some good material on industrialization by Julian Arnold, however. China and the Powers, by H. K. Norton. A history of China's relations with the powers-from an imperialist point of view.

ference and the Shantung question.

British Labour Monthly. Especially articles by R. Page Arnot and

These books should be read with a great deal of care. Many of them, particularly those by Weale, Woodhead and Norton, subscribe to the Sovietgold interpretation of the nationalist movement, which is delicately intertwined with fact. The reader should be careful to separate fact from imperialist propaganda.

MORE ABOUT "THE NEW MASSES."

"Your reviewer, Sender Garlin," writes Benjamin Weiss, "has said a few things about 'The New Masses' that have been waiting to be said for many months. The complete fatuousness of some of its attempts to be jazzy and up-to-date has been trying the patience of many who, like myself, hopefully greeted the birth of 'The New Masses' and waited in vain for some signs of its emergence from the nipple and diaper stage.

"Your reviewer, however, failed to point out a howling disparity. In the issue in which 'the correct revolutionary proletarian attitude towards sex' is so pompously discussed, there is not a single article about China. I realize, of course, that China has nothing to do with the correct revolutionary proletarian attitude towards sex, but am I cookoo or just a trifle stupid if I venture to suggest that the goings-on in China are vastly more important than any such florid nonsense. Is 'the New Masses' a revolutionary working-class magazine of the arts or is it merely another demented offspring of Greenwich Village?

"This hasn't been 'The New Masses' first offence. From the very beginning the magazine has seemed to consider it a moral obligation to be smarter than Mr. Mencken and more jazzy than the tabloids. What has been its contribution toward molding a positive working class culture and working class art? Sure the pictures have been funny. But one gets tired of wise-cracks and college-boy cynicism. And in its desire to be 'proletarian' at any cost 'The New Masses' has gone to ludicrous extremes, and printed stuff by Alfred Kreymborg and Waldo Frank that was no more proletarian than Otto Kahn is.

"And where has 'The New Masses' been in the battles of the working class against reaction? What part has it played in the fight the left wing in the needle trades is making against the right wing renegades and stoolpigeons of the A. F. of L.? Why could it not have led the protest against the threatened assassination of Sacco and Vanzetti instead of leaving this job to the sanctimonious old lady of Park Row, the New York World? Yes, I remember it did publish one article on Sacco and Vanzetti, a highly literary interview with them by John Dos Passos. It was very pretty

"Personally I think your reviewer was too easy with 'The New Masses.' The magazine, which is not yet a year old, seems to have definitely entered

The Boss: This trade union preservation was a great idea! Now we don't need to be afraid of that big fellow.
