Since the workingclass are the chief sufferers from the capitalist system and its by-products, war and poverty, upon them rests the main responsibility of getting rid of it. This can only be accomplished by struggle and no matter how much the capitalists may babble about peace the workers must prepare for war with their only enemy, world capitalism.

Strength and Constructive Activity of Unions and Cooperatives Highly Praised

Returning on board the Leviathan yesterday from a month's tour of the Union of Soviet Republics the American trade union delegation issued a partial report stressing the fear of Soviet Union's workers of an attack by imperialist Britain and their genuine desire for peace.

The delegation, headed by James H. Maurer, president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, working in five groups, made a thorough survey of conditions in the Soviet Union, visiting Moscow, Leningrad, the Urals, the Donetz coal basin, Crimea. the Caucasus and the Ukrainian agricultural belt.

"There was a very real fear on the part of the Russian workers whom the delegation met that Great Britain would attempt to isolate their country and to embroil them in war," the report stated. "But the delegation was impressed with the fact that the people are eager to remain at peace unless attacked.'

Denying reports of low wage rates in the Soviet Union, the delegation declared that the real wages of city workers in the Union had increased considerably over the pre-war level. Russian workers also receive protection in the form of social insurance, vacations with pay and free rents, which are given to a considerable number of wage-earners, the delegation's report pointed out.

> -Special dispatch to the New York Times from Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 24.

War is being carried on by the coal barons, their gunmen and the government, against the wives and children of the striking coal miners, against the miners themselves and against the union.

The open mobilization of the armed forces of local and state governments, the enlistment of federal judges and injunctions, has been carried on rather slowly up to the present but with the announcement Saturday of the decision of the Illinois coal operators' association to attempt to resume operations at a $5 wage scale, a merciless drive on a wide front will be started.

TRY TO FORCE YOUNG WORKER INTO NAVY FOR FASCIST FLIERS HIS DEFENSE OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—Homer Bartchy, 16, was forced to shake the dust of this open shop city off his feet recently. The police couldn't stand his radicalism any longer-especially his Communistic and Atheistic work among the children. He was expelled from the Roosevelt high school a few months ago. Too much Bull-Mooseism connected with that institution to stand for Communism and Atheism.

Young Bartchy was arrested twice during the last Sacco-Vanzetti dem-Schneider Cup Flight onstration here. A little later, the ultimatum was: "Join the navy or go to reform school!" He beat it away from both.

Comrade Bartchy was also the secretary of The DAILY WORKER Builders' Club. The reorganization of this club will start in earnest at headquarters, 322 West 2nd street, next Monday, Sept. 19. Get in touch with The DAILY WORKER agent at once! Will also try to-form a Worker Correspondent class in the near future.

Austria, Switzerland, Ravaged by Floods

LONDON, Sept. 26 .- Five thousand persons are reported to have pershed in a terrific typhoon which swept the territory 1,500 miles southwest of Hongkong, according to dispatches from that city today,

The disaster, according to the reports, occurred on September 20.

According to advices received from Hongkong, a tremendous tidal wave occurred off the city of Youngkong on the 20th. This was followed by a typhoon of terrific force sweeping in from the sea, in which more than 5,000 are reported to have been killed. The storm is reported to have swept away 20,000 flimsy houses. Four hundred junks and sampans in the harbor of Youngkong were destroyed, according to the reports.

The damage from the combined tidal wave and typhoon is reported to exceed $1,000,000.

Youngkong is 150 miles southwest of Hongkong. The country is isolated from any large cities, which might account for news of such a disaster not reaching the world for several days.

LENIN SAID:

No one can deny that the intellectuals, as a special section in modern capitalist society, are, as a rule, characterized by individualism and by the fact that they are not amenable to discipline and organization. Therein, in fact, this section of society distinguishes itself unfavorably from the proletariat; therein lies the explanation of the intellectuals' weakness and vacillation from which the proletariat has so often suffered. This peculiarity of the intellectuals is indissolubly bound up with their condition of life and their manner of earning a living, which in many respects approximates to the petty bourgeois manner of existence.—ORGANIZA-TION, p. 149.

Coming Tenth Anniversary of Russian Bolshevik Revolution

On November 7, 1927, the workers and peasants of the Soviet Union will celebrate the Tenth Anniversary of the Russian Revo-tive, in both the English and the Itallution. Millions of toilers throughout the world will celebrate ian languages. with them, this great victory of the world proletariat. Even in America, under the iron heel of the most powerful and ruthless ruling class, the workers will join in this world-wide demonstration of working class solidarity.

The workers of America will celebrate because to them, November 7, 1927, represents the beginning of the tenth year of socialist reconstruction, during which time the workers and peasants of the Soviet Union have demonstrated before the world their ability to successfully conduct their own affairs, free from the yoke of the capitalist class.

The Soviet Union, in which one hundred fifty millions of workers and peasants have wrested the control of the industries and the government from the hands of the ruling class, has compelled the exploiters to recognize that no longer is their oppressive rule secure, that a power has arisen that will challenge and ultimately end their domination.

The Soviet Union, established by the Russian workers and peasants, is the strongest guarantee of working class solidarity

A Trench Comedy

By HENRY GEORGE WEISS.

The rain was falling and the trenches flooded, Soaked to the skin we were standing to And shivering wet, our teeth chattering, For the keen wind pierced us thru and thru.

The heavy guns smote on the ears like thunder, Rat-tat went the machine guns in between, And the starflares flashed and tore asunder The curtain of night to light the scene.

The "Marias" hit and the sandbags hurtled Beneath the impact of every shell, And moaning and sobbing, and cursing and praying The wounded were borne from that black hell.

"Watchful on the outpost, there," said the sergeant, "'T is jes' the night that they'd come over. Damn the mud and the rain and the stench, I'd give My very soul to be under cover!"

It came—as if in answer to his prayer— A flash of light—the earth rose and fell With a thunderous crash and a rush of air, And the choking dust and the sulphur smell.

We looked for the sergeant when the dirt settled, But this was all of him that we found, A bit of his leg—oh his prayer was answered! The rest of him being under the ground.

Electrification of the Soviet Union. 140 Millions For New Electric Stations.

The State Planning Commission of the USSR has decided to assign in the budget for 1927-28, 140 million roubles for the construction of electrical stations on a large scale-40 millions more than last year. This sum will include 34 millions for the continuation of the work connected with the putting up of the Dniepropetrovsk hydro station, 22 million for the construction of electric stations in the Moscow district, etc.

Dniepropetrovsk Building Operations.

Work in connection with the putting up of the gigantic Dniepropetrovsk hydro-electric station goes on at an ever-increasing pace. Every day, American excavators and self-loading railway trucks, as well as pneumatic and other equipment for the mechanization of building operations, arrive from abroad.

Work on the Dnieprostroi will continue with unabated energy throughout the winter. Apart from the building of dwellings important building operations will go on in connection with the erection and equipment of auxiliary workshops. Work has already started in connection with the digging of a canal through the Hortitsa Island. Through this canal ships will pass into the new bed of the Dnieper.

International Working Class Solidarity. Finnish Workers' Excursion To Moscow. A Finnish workers' excursion, 45 strong, has arrived in Moscow. In conversation with a representative of the press, the leader of the excursion, Comrade Leinonen, member of the Administrative Board of the Vyborg Builders' Union, said that a desire for closer contact with the USSR has been noticeable for some time among Finnish workers. The organizers of this excursion are the Trade Councils of Vyborg and other Finnish towns. When workers were registering for this excursion, they endeavored to make it coincide with their holiday, and some workers even paid for substitutes so as not to be kept out of the excursion.

Fairly close contact has already existed some time between the Finnish workers and Soviet trade unions. For instance, the Finnish Builders' Congress held in May, 1927, was attended by representatives of the CC of the USSR Builders' Union. At this congress it was proposed to form a Norwegian-Finnish-Soviet Union Committee and to admit representatives of the Builders' Union of Soviet Russia to the International Builders Norwegian workers' delegation in the USSR for a further practical discussion of these questions.

BOOKS

OUR LITERARY CAVALIER APPRECIATES A PURITAN. Upton Sinclair: A Study in Social Protest, by Floyd Dell (Murray Hill Biographies). Doran & Co. $2. One wonders two things: why has there not until now been a biography

It would seem that the two men had little in common, except that both, while rather successful under capitalism, are revolutionists against it. But Several schools, hospitals and dental consultation Sinclair takes his revolt religiously, and sets out with the thundering charge and shock-effect of a troop of the Ironsides, to "bind their kings with chains and their nobles with links of iron." Dell prefers a more adroit maneuver; in fact, he seems to have a notion that if you win the women you weaken the men; his subtle arguments have raised him to the prominence of the literary spokesman of Bohemia.

So much is this so that in the very beginning of the book one finds that Dell's preoccupation with sex leads him to what seems to me a decidedly false analysis of the reasons for Sinclair's greater success in Europe than in America. / "One of these (psychological obstacles in the way of a general recognition of Sinclair in America) is his temperamental attitude toward life," says Dell, on page 13; "he is recognized as being a Puritan, and Puritanism . . . is just now very unpopular among the American intelligentsia. . . .

This is probably true about the intelligentsia. But it is no reason for Sinclair's appreciation in Europe, and relative lack of it in America, first, because the opinions of the intelligentsia count for practically nothing with the book-buying public, and secondly because the masses of people, that is the workers, are as free here as in Europe from judging literature on the basis of morality. The equal popularity of Harold Bell Wright and the Snappy Story sort of magazines indicates this. Workers are the most broadminded people there are; so long as you do not use police power on them they will all, outside of certain backwoods communities, allow you to pattern your life according to either St. Anthony or Don Juan, without injury to your reputation for that reason.

This sex bias, in spite of the fact that Dell obviously struggles against it, runs thru and modifies his whole analysis of Sinclair. It prevents him, Comrade Leilonen intends to utilize the stay of the for instance in this case we have selected, from observing that Sinclair's reputation abroad is largely due to the more advanced working class consciousness there, which affects even strata of the middle classes and professionals, and makes them interested in such industrial topics and settings as Sinclair chooses, and sympathetic with his social attitude.

While correcting for Dell's idiosyncrasies, we have to admit that he has Floyd Dell is always easy to read—his style is simple and clear beyond comparison with that of his groping contemporaries. Furthermore, he goes about in workmanlike manner to sketch Sinclair's development from halfbaked youth to dime novelist, to poet, and to novelist. The first period of novel writing, which reached its pinnacle in Manassas, showed a new, a powerful, but not a unique figure in American letters. Manassas is not characteristically Sinclairian, as we understand the word from his later works.

The Jungle was a step in the direction he was to advance. It created a terrific sensation. It was followed by a time of mal-adjusted matrimony, of mental and physical collapse. Most of the little novels written during that time should have been burned without publication.

Then the real Sinclair began to show himself, in what Dell aptly calls upon yourselves the initiative for the convocation of "The Great Pamphlets." The Brass Check, The Profits of Religion, The Goosestep, Mammonart-have accomplished what used to be considered a supreme test of literary worth—they have added their names as adjectives to the language: everybody knows now, whether friend or foe, what you are talking about when you speak of "the brass check press."

Then after that, the second period of novels-if that is what you want to call them. Oil, the latest and best, is neither quite a novel, nor quite a pamphlet-but it is successful, as a book, in capturing the interest of readers, and in carrying thru the propaganda ideas of Sinclair.

Dell comments on Sinclair's social theory, and the changes it has undergone, not even overlooking his support of the Allied cause in the World War; a thing plenty of other radicals were doing at the time, and atoned for by personal suffering and a return to revolutionary criticism. Sinclair, as Dell discovers, is at the limit of his radicalism in the muckraking of capitalist society; that is, in the negative side of revolutionary philosophy. On the positive side, he is not much beyond the yellow socialist stage-"It is by these views (dislike for a violent revolution) that Sinclair remains, despite his broad sympathies, identified with the pre-war socialist movement, as pected profits on the sums invested. carrying out the words of the social asm, preached by the party leaders. place. In these brutally hard, unsentimental days, the murder of Sacco and Vanzetti still vivid in our minds, one approaches a book of this kind with some misgiving. Nor do we become more enthusiastic when we find an introduction by one "Right Honorable Lord Buckmaster, P. C."-a sure index to the character of the book.

Workers are sadder but wiser men today. Murdered in industry and murdered legally and illegally, the lessons of the class struggle are so brutally obvious a "christian" plea for the abolition of capital punishment leaves us cold. Granting merit in other reasons for its abolition, we are too practically taught to have hope for its solution under a system that oppresses the great majority for the enrichment of a few. No appeal on the basis of 'morality" and "christian ethics" convinces fact-hardened realists.
