SENATE STUDIES FORGED MEXICAN BRIBE CHARGES

Document Says 4 U.S. Senators Got Cash

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 .- A senatorial investigation was ordered today into the charges appearing in the Washington Herald and associated Hearst newspapers to the effect that the Mexican government ordered paid sums aggregating $1,215,000 to four United States senators in the furtherance of Mexican propaganda in this

Senator David A. Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, sponsored the resolution of investigation and it was adopted without a dissenting vote.

The fraudulent character of the Hearst letters, which was exposed in The DAILY WORKER several weeks ago, was disregarded in the discussion of the resolution.

A demand made upon Reed for an explanation as to why the Hearst papers smudged out the names of the senators bribed, if there were real names there in the first place, was Fascism Shown As First Local No. 2. answered by Reed with a plea of ig-

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.-Robert Dunn, author of "American Foreign Investments," "Company Unionism" and other books on socia problems, delivered a lecture here yes terday at a conference of "The Anti Monopoly League" on "Concessions In Russia." The following is an ex cerpt from his lecture:

'American concessions in the So viet Union are not to be compared with concessions in any other coun try. Their size and their peculia character indicate no progress on the part of United States business in terests in exploiting the Sovie Union as they would exploit a typi cal backward country. Certainly the government of the Soviet Union has made it clear from the beginning of its existence that it would not consider itself in a class with the defense less colonial countries-to be treated like the Great, Powers treat China Nicaragua, Liberia, Cuba or India The Soviet Government has no na tural resources to be developed on

More and Bigger Consolidations.

"More and bigger consolidations among producers, manufacturers and distributors, under proper conditions and with adequate legal safeguards, are permitted and indeed invited by the present attitude of the court and the government. By avoiding unlawful acquisitions of capital stock, and by taking care to leave outside enough competitors to insure effective outside competition, such consolidations can now be set up in many industries in entire conformity to the law.... Pat Devine Finds Many Workers Feel Need to Organize

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Dec. 9 .- Pat Devine, national organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party of America, interviewed here while making a stop on his swing through the Pennsylvania industrial and mining region, stated that he found everywhere the same situation: workers badly in need of organization on the industrial and political field, but not yet sufficiently aware of the methods for going about it.

Organize In Four Cities. Devine has held mass meetings in Atlantic City, Easton, Bethlehem and Allentown, leaving a trail of defense organization, workers' classes in English and the fundamentals of Communism especially, the beginnings of workers' schools, and various groups pledged to start the organization of ocal labor parties. He secured a considerable number of subscriptions to The DAILY WORKER and other Communist papers, and brought some new members into the Party.

Labor Party Sentiment. Devine says that especially in Easton, where the Labor Party movement will proceed through fraternal organizations at first, and in Bethlehem where the first steps are already taken, Labor Party sentiment is on the increase.

The youth movement is particularly good in Bethlehem, where many of the older generation is being drawn closer to Communism by the activities of the children in the family. However, in some places the opening of school interferes with the financing of the Pioneer work, as the children need money for school. Want Defense.

The Pioneer movement is spreading in Allentown.

Many workers have heard of the International Labor Defense, and a defense of workers under persecution for activity for their class interests. In Allentown and Bethlehem the

CHARGE BRATIANU REGIME INCITED STUDENTPOGROMS

Murders Planned and Paid for in Advance

BUCHAREST, Dec. 9 .-- Charging that the reactionary Bratianu government deliberately instigated the anti-Hungarian and anti-Jewish pogroms which Rumanian students have perpetrated in several Transylvanian towns, Prof. V. N. Madgearu of the National Peasants Party declared yesterday in parliament that the present regime has paid 3,000,000 lei ($18,000) for such purposes.

Madgearu further asserted that the government has incited the pogroms in order to justify the establishment of a new force of 10,000 gendarmes.

He pointed out that the government had taken no precautions to prevent the outrages altho M. Filderman, a Jewish deputy in parliament, had repeatedly warned that the students were preparing their at-

QUESTION TODAY

Pilsudski Arrives in Geneva; Meets Briand

GENEVA, Dec. 9.-Marshal Pilsudski of Poland arrived here today for the League of Nations Council discussion of the Polish-Lithuanian controversy which is scheduled to take place tomorrow morning.

Pilsudski who arrived at 12:45, immediately went to luncheon with Foreign Minister Briand of France. Later he was scheduled to hold a conference with Sir Austen Cham-

Little is expected to come of the Council session tomorrow since the council is known to favor the Polish retention of Vilna, which Premier Waldemaras of Lithuania declared his government will never recognize.

LONDON, Dec. 9 .- The end of the technical state of war which exists between Lithuania and Poland will be suggested at the meeting of the Council of the League of Nations tomorrow, according to a Geneva despatch in the Daily Telegraph. The appointment of a commission to investigate the reported mobilization of Polish troops along the Lithuanian session, the Telegraph states.

Since the Council will not discuss the Vilna question until March, little hope is seen here for the immediate settlement of the controversy be-tween Poland and Lithuania.

Catalonia Rebels Active Again; Bother deRivera

PERPIGNAN, France, Dec. 9 .-Separatists in Catalonia, who desire to detach the province from Spain and establish it as an independent state, are again becoming active and threaten further worries for Primo De Rivera's government early in 1928, according to travelers arriving here today from Barcelona.

The possibility that the Catalonian eparatists may appeal to the League of Nations has not been considered seriously and there is little likelihood that it will be done.

General Textile Workers Strike in Poland

By BICLSKA

The textileworkers' general strike which lasted two weeks has only just been liquidated by the government with the assistance of the reformists. the whole economic life of the country with serious upheavals.

The strike was officially led by the reformist leaders, but it was clear from the very beginning that the movement would expand and come out of the limits laid down by them. They were forced to put up with the strong influence of the left elements. Communist speakers, despite police repression, came forward at workers' meetings and their resolutions were passed by enormous majorities. The reformists were forced to adapt themselves to the spirit of the masses, and thus the movement was carried on not by the usual methods of the reformists.

The circumstances preceding the pages with hardly any deletions. writing of this letter were, in broad outline, the following: On Oct. 23, 1927 (Oct. 10, by the old Russian COMRADES: I have not yet been style), Lenin, at the risk of falling in the hands of the counter-revolutionary espionage, arrived in Petrothe C. C. of the Russian Social-Demowhere he delivered a speech in which he insisted upon the inevitability of insurrection and the necessity of making the technical preparations make use of the opportunity to send will only gain thereby. The Central Committee, against the two votes of Kamenev and Zinoviev, adopted the resolution drawn up by Lenin which declared that both the international situation and the inner situation of the Russian Revolution "placed armed revolt on the agenda":

"Recognizing that armed revolt is inevitable and that the time is fully ripe for it, the Central Committee instructs all Party organizations to let this serve as the guid-ing line and to consider and solve all practical questions (the Soviet Congress of the Northern district, the removal of the troops from Petrograd, demonstrations of the people of Moscow and Minsk) from this view-point."

On the following day, 11th (24th) October, Zinoviev and Kamenev, who were in the minority, appealed to the larger Party organizations with the well-known leaflet: "For the present moment". In this document, contrary to the decision of the C. C., they energetically opposed revolt.

CROOKS THAT HAVE FOUNDED THIS EMPIRE.

COMMODORE VANDERBILT: An Epoch of American Achievement. By Arthur D. Howden Smith. Robert McBride Co. $5.

THE great wealth accumulated by Cornelius Vanderbilt has so awed American writers that few of them have depicted him as the cut-throat buccanneer that he was. Aside from one or two studies such as that of Gustavus Myers, the prevailing tradition of the Commodore is that of a "great railroad builder" who "opened the continent" and "knitted together a na-

The present writer has fallen in line with this tradition as can be seen from the sub-title of his volume. This sub-title is somewhat misleading. It would seem to indicate a study of the economic forces operating during the age and the relation of the individual to these forces. On the contrary the author follows the present fashion in biography and devotes himself mainly to a study of the "soul" of the Commodore, which means that much of the book consists of petty personal details which the author has gathered with the purpose of "illuminating" the character of his subject. Among these details are many pages of imaginary conversa-tions between "Corneel" and his "Ma" which are mere drivel and could easily have been sacrificed for more important material.

This "psychological" treatment has its value, however, for it shows the mentality of one of our most famous "captains of industry." The author depicts him as a coarse, foul-mouthed, ignorant person, who was almost illiterate and never read a serious book. He believed in spooks, consulted voodco doctors and thought he could destroy his enemies by murmuring incantations over a photograph or a lock of their hair. He was niggardly, cheated his friends, exploited his wife, and when he was tired of her thrust her into an insane asylum. At first he was ignored by the society of his day but his great wealth soon opened wide the doors of all the social lackies.

In describing the methods by which Vanderbilt accumulated his fortune the author attempts to place him in as favorable a light as possible. He admits his selfishness and unscrupulousness but also declares that "Corneel was a builder. Whether consciously or unconsciously he sought to serve the public." And again: "He was honest in his dealings with all men; he would go to any extent to make good his word; he tried to set a fair price on his services." There is nothing in the record of Vanderbilt's financial operations, even in the castrated form in which they are told here to justify such statements. Again and again the author records instances of piratical attacks, blackmail, broken faith, bribery of opponents, corruption of legislatures, wrecking of rival roads, and looting of public funds-any one of which acts if performed by a worker against a member of the ruling class would result in his being branded as a criminal.

But the author calmly enumerates them and calls the perpetrator an honest man-for justice after all is only class justice. As for Vanderbilt serving the public, there is this to be said: where previously there were a hundred cut-throats indiscriminately looting the resources of the steamboats and the railroads now there was only one, looting on a larger and more refined scale, putting out hundreds of millions of watered stock, boosting freight and passenger rates, giving rebates to the great trusts and by a unified policy towards labor crushing the unions. As for his improving the railroads not one foot of road was ever built under his direction and the improvement he made in the roadbeds and rolling stock cost an infinitesimal percentage of the money looted from the people. Many of these improvements which the railroad was obliged to make itself according to its charter were paid for out of the public treasury. And the only cost to Vanderbilt was a few thousand dollars distributed among the legislators in Albany.

There are a number of important distortions and omissions. One of the distortions concerns what happened during the Civil War. Smith makes out Vanderbilt to have been an unselfish patriot. The truth is that he robbed the government of millions of dollars by supplying rotten transports at exorbitant prices, and in addition endangered the lives of thousands of soldiers who were compelled to ride on these transports. The documents in this scandal are given in detail by Gustavus Myers. The only answer that Smith has to the charges are that Vanderbilt was already too wealthy to have done such a thing.

Another distortion is of the part played by Vanderbilt in the looting of the Erie Railroad-one of the slimiest pages in the history of American capital. Smith makes out Vanderbilt to have been the honest man while Gould and Fiske were the villains. He admits that Vanderbilt bribed the legislature and worked in collusion with the malodorous Boss Tweed but he excuses him on the ground that the other fellows used the same tactics.

The most important omission is his failure to discuss Vanderbilt's labor policy. Throughout his career it was Vanderbilt's policy to beat down the workers, squeeze out every cent that he could from them and work them long ho ours. Of his policy when he was interested in steamboats Myers says: "Thousands of ship-wrights, mechanics, and other workers toiled for him fourteen to sixteen hours a day at $1.50 a day for many years." The same policy was continued when he switched to railroads and the result was a rebellion in the year 1877, one year after the death of

After the death of Cornelius his ill-gotten gains were passed on to his son who in a similar manner doubled the family fortune. Today the Vanderbilts are among the bluest of the blue blood, large owners of stock in the great trusts that dominate the country, intermarried with the royalty of Europe and able by their economic power and social prestige to prevent the production and sale of books which tell the truth about the way the family got its money .- CY OGDEN.

BALLYHOO! By Beth Brown. The Dial Press. $2.50.

BALLYHOO serves not only as a title for this novel of carnival life, but does also describe the contents. The plot, tho oft used, is a noble one: On the eve of her wedding, finding her prospective hubby in the arms of one of her bridesmaids, the poor thing (but of an old southern family) joins a wandering carnival, the lowest rung of theatrical life.

Miserable wages force the girls to-well you know what-but breeding tells! She remains unsoiled and unsullied to the very happy and pure end that finds her name in huge glittering lights on Broadway. Which

Perhaps this explains it: Beth Brown is "the author of three whimsical books, a well known writer of short stories and a film editor and scenarist." I'm sure the publishers are not deceiving us. This story could well have sold to one of the current women's magazines and the plot is the very same one of a thousand "successful" movies.

The jacket tells us that "carnival life has never before been done in a novel." I'll go further. It has not been done yet .- WALT CARMON.

INSIDE DOPE ON "THE FATHERS."

JOHN PAUL JONES: Man of Action. By Phillips Russell. Brentano, $5. THIS book is less the story of John Paul Jones, adventurer, than an inside picture of the backstairs politics of the American revolution

As a study of an individual, Russell's book, despite the thoro and very competent research involved, somehow misses fire. It is a scrapbag of incidents in Jones' life, gleaned from Jones' writings, from previous biographies, from the records of the continental congress, from the military and naval archives of the United States, France, and Russia; but it in no way fuses these incidents into a clear picture of the man Jones.

The book, however, is extremely valuable as a detailed, the narrow, picture of the intrigues, the petty jealousies etc., of period, presented, not in the form of the Harry Elmer Barnes type of iconoclasm, but in an honest informative way .-- H. F.

Fight Fascism and Its Financiers!

The trial of Greco and Carrillo which started yesterday promises to be another Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Back of the prosecution which is trying to send these two workers to the electric chair is the might of Italian fascism and its American connections, connections which The DAILY WORK-ER has shown run straight to the offices of J. Pierpont Morgan and Company—the financiers of fascism.

One aspect of the case which is in favor of these persecuted workers is that from the very first the International Labor Defense has been pointing out to thousands of their fellow workers the class nature of this case. Opposing the fascist frame-up at every point the International Labor Defense and the organizations which support it have made it impossible for the prosecution to disguise the anti-working class forces which back the prosecution.

The Greco-Carrillo case is a labor case and the defense of the two workers whose lives are menaced by the vengeful fascist agents and their associates in the United States must and will be carried forward on this basis.

Now is the time to raise the slogan of "Greco and Carrillo

We will not wait until the net of the American capitalists' agents close tighter around these workers and guide the hand of Mussolini to their throats.

Support the Greco-Carrillo defense.

What Happened to Walker in Paris?

Evidently Mayor James J. Walker of New York did not miss anything in the way of gayety while in Paris, which was an important stop on his recent roving tour of Europe. From the TWO or three years ago it happened day he landed in New York after his foreign tour there have been caterwaulings from the Tammany camp to the effect that the state department had its agents spying upon him. This story was repeated in Washington the other day by James A. Gallivan, democratic congressman from Massachusetts. Congressman Gallivan charged that the shadowing was ordered in order "to try and get something on this mayor who was a member forts failed; and some wag composed of Tammany Hall, a political body not in sympathy with the party

Probably the state department did set its spies upon Walker. Where the Lowells speak only to Such an act would certainly be no innovation. Adopt at spying. concocting forgeries and frame-ups of the most nefarious calibre, it is not at all unlikely that it spies upon political supporters as well as enemies. It is part of the capitalist political game to "get something on" even its own supporters in order to hold them in weeks in the venerable city, I submit line as well as to use information secured through its spy system to belabor its enemies. Walker's exploits may have become known to the republicans through their spy system or may accidentally have been exposed. The important fact is that someone has something on Walker and that it is to be used by the republicans in the coming campaign, when Al. Smith will probably run on the democratic ticket and not only have to defend the record of Tammany, but face the charge of being dripping wet. A story to the effect that the Tammany mayor of New York was on a spree in Paris will be welcome political ammunition in the provinces. In anticipation of such a campaign the democrats are already busy spreading the idea that the story is a frame-up.

Meanwhile, one guess is as good as another regarding precisely what did happen to Walker in Paris.

The Arrests For Distributing Anti-Injunction Leaflets

The arrest of four members of the Workers (Communist) Party charged with "conspiracy to undermine respect for the courts," as a result of their distribution of anti-injunction leaflets in Brooklyn shows that the struggle against the injunction men- the Knights of Columbus marching ace is to be no mere matter of speeches delivered by labor of- arm in arm with the Ku Klux Klan, ficials voicing formal defiance.

The comrades arrested are held in $500 bail each and the trials which will follow, because of the important issue involved, will be of major importance to the labor movement.

It is quite possible that these arrests are the start of a much more vicious drive on the part of the bosses for the maintenance of their injunction weapon than has been in evidence up to date.

Officials of the American Federation of Labor and leaders of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes have been holding meetings and urging violation of the J. R. T. injunction but none have been arrested. Four workers who distribute leaflets are jailed at once.

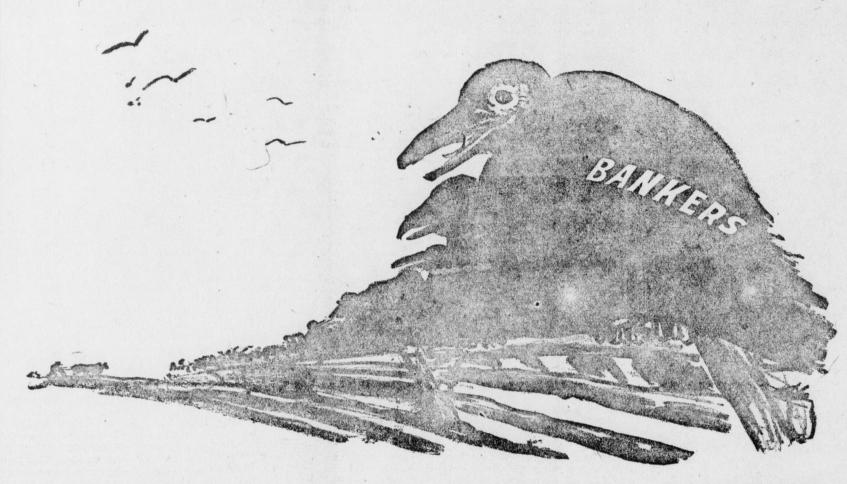

The reason is clear. The leaflet distributed by these comrades, the official expression of the Workers (Communist) Party, puts the injunction issue squarely before the workers, urges mass violation of these rulings, organization of the unorganized and mobilization of all labor forces for the fight against injunctions. The issue is thus brought out of the traction industry and made one for the whole working class.

The arrests of these four workers-two carpenters, a clerk and a machinist—is evidence of the effectiveness of mass methods of struggle against the injunction menace and the fear with which the capitalists and their courts regard this way of fighting.

The militant defense of these workers, of all other workers that may be arrested on similar charges and the extension of mass methods of struggle against the injunction will destroy this weapon of labor's enemies.

A Visit to Boston

that a Russian Jewish family, residing in Boston, sought to Americanize itself by changing its name from Kabotski to Cabot. This occasioned distress to the family which for three centuries had been speaking only to the Lowells, and they sought by court action to compel the interlopers to adopt some other name. Their efnew version of the old jingle:

Here's to the city of Boston, The land of the bean and the cod, Cabots. And the Cabots speak Yiddish,

Now, having alighted from my transcontinental train, and spent two third version, as follows:

Here's to the city of Boston. The land of the bean and the cod. Where the Lowells won't let you buy

And you send to New York, by God.

That is, quite literally, the situaion. The old-time, blue-blooded aristocracy of the city supports the Watch and Ward Society"; several Lowells and Cabots contribute their money to keep my socialist novel from reaching the common people of their city. And when I left Boston and rearned to New York, the first sigh I saw was a stack of my books, four feet high, in front of one of the newsstands in Grand Central station; I inquired of the clerk, and learned that this stack would last one day, and the cause of its rapid disappearance was people from Bosion who took a copy nome with them.

Besides the blue-bloods, who put up the money, there are two forces actively concerned, Catholic Mediaevnd Protestant and Cardinal O'Connell embracing Billy Sunday. And do not fool yourself with the idea that there is anyhing peculiar to Boston in this comination of bigotries. The same fores exist everywhere in America, and he Boston crowd are hell-bent to exend their methods to New York, so as to stop the flow of prohibited ooks. Reverend Chase died, and the police knows it?" and the booksellers, lacking his divine guidance, got into a dispute, and that is how the present situation arose, with so much free advertising for "An American Tragedy" and "Elmer Gantry" and "Oil!" But a truce has just been arranged, and the voice of God will again prevail in Boston's book business. The Watch and Ward Society has got a new secretary, the Reverend Charles Bodwell, and a reporter asked this gentleman what he thought of Upton Sinclair's idea that the Bible and Shakespeare are obscene under the Massachusetts law; he answered: "Certain paragraphs in both books should be cut out of editions that are open to the general

This Massachusetts law is built like a bear-trap. It specifies any book "containing"; so they can pick out any passage they don't like, without considering the whole book. The judge who issued the warrant in the case of "Oil!" admitted to me that he had read only the passages complained of by the police; and a lawyer who stood nearby and heard the conversation was very much excited, and offered to testify to this outrageous state of affairs. I replied by advising the lawyer to look up his Massachusetts law. Under this law, the judge was under no obligation to read the book. The instructions given to a jury, and upheld by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts were: "You are not trying any book except this, and only such parts of this as the government complains of." And in order to make quite certain that there could be no fairness in the trial, the iearned judge went on: "It makes no difference what the object in writing this book was, or what its whole tone

THE difficulty of inducing honest men to enter the public service has long been a problem in this country. Indeed it has always been a problem. If George Washington did not have a lot of good old Bourbon around the house it is possible that his selfishness would outweigh the slave-master's sense of civic duty and the "father of his country"-or at least a goodly portion of it-might have devoted his life to the task of whipping more work out of his slaves instead of whipping the British

BE THAT as it is, honest citizens have learned from experience that sacrificing themselves for the public welfare is seldom appreciated, the exceptions being cases where the martyrs charge a stiff price for their services. The citizen who works gratis for the community until he has not enough clothes to cover his shirt-tail is looked on with scorn and treated like a bum. And in some instances a man whose heart is burstng with a desire to render service to his fellow-men, for a reasonable consideration is lashed with the scorpion whip of scandal until he is compelled to flee from civilization. "Scarface Al" Capone of Chicago, booze and vice king, is in the latter category.

CAPONE was boss of the little town of Cicero where the cops are so hard-hearted that they beat up even the poor little Duncan Sisters and then accused the two comediennes of being with liquor. He delivered the vote to the political organization that could give him the most protection. He served the thirsty and the hungry and citizens tired of life, could be reasonably assured of a sudden and comparatively painless death, by appearing on the streets of his balliwick, disguised as prohibition agents, instead of having to go to the trouble of messing around with gas and delicatessen sandwiches. Yet, he was not appreciated.

I DID the best I could for the peo-ple" he told a reporter, as he tossed his two guns on the hotel desk before which he was sitting, to show could hit back. "Look here, Judge that he was unarmed," but evidently they don't appreciate a fellow who'se You have advertised my book as ob- on the square. They never got me for killing anybody and a man is supposed to be innocent until he's found I confronted the problem of the "Brass guilty. Everytime a flea is found dead in this city I am pinched and arrested, they called me a coward; charged with homicide. I gave the and when I couldn't get arrested, they people good booze, but they prefer said I had been foiled in my effort liquid T. N. T. I might have put up with the indifference of the citizens, but when I received a letter from an Englishwoman offering me a million dollars for killing her husband I decided to quit. "Al" Capone never wanted pay for his fun. And killing Englishmen in Chicago is no more of a sport than shooting chickens in

> MEN who don't hand over their pay ill envelopes to their wives, should narken to the story of how Frank Washkowsky of Brooklyn lost $350. The matriarchial system did not prevail in the Washkowsky home and Frank was boss. So instead of keeping a nickel for chewing gum and delivering the remainder of his wages to Josephine, his wife, the lord of the home surrepitiously put away a certain amount of his weekly stipend, for the rainy day. This Josephine knew and being a wise woman did not complain. But alas the thrifty have heir troubles even as the spendthrifty.

JOSEPHINE WASHKOWSKY walked into the parlor of a coboler named Finkelstein with a pair of hoes whose heels indicated that they ad collided with many bricks. Finkelstein, without any unusual show of excitement, wiped his nose in his pron and gave Mr. Washkowsky a heck for her shoes. When the male nember of the Washkowsky firm got nome that evening he looked where is old shoes used to be and fourld hem missing. His wife proudly /informed him that she took them to the cobbler and expected an appreciaive kiss for her display of wifely hrift. Instead her spouse threw a ively fit.

TWO palpitating hearts beat in the breasts of the Washkowsky family s they wended their way to Finkeltein's cobblery, to find the craftsnan busy at work on the Washkowsky shoes. No, he did not see any money n the shoes. Washkowsky's roll was vrapped up in one of his wife's garters. (The money would have been safer in her sock.) A detective found garter with Finkelstein and even if does not turn out to be the mate of the Washkowsky garter he will get into trouble anyhow. The moral of the tale is that no husband is fit to be his own banker, and the proper environment for a garter is a leg.

IN medieval days every solvent baron had his jester who made him laugh at times and at whose head he could throw his boots with impunity, when angry. So it is entirely fitting that Will Rogers should accompany "Baron" Dwight W. Morrow, our ambassador to Mexico on his tour of inspection in the southern republic.
