TORNADO BRINGS DEATH IN WEST

Buried, May Die

ROCKFORD, Ill., Sept. 14 (UP). -Six persons were known to be dead, 30 others were injured, and a score of persons still buried in wreckage were either dead or injured in a tornado that swept thru the southeastern section of the city late today demolishing factory buildings and a score of residences. Rescue workers were digging in the ruins of the Rockford Chair and Furniture Company plant tonight and a thorough search of the stricken area may raise the death toll, it was feared.

ROCKFORD, III., Sept. 14 (UP) -Two persons were reported dead ously late today when a tornado swept through the southeastern sec-

British War Minister Aids Maneuvers

PARIS. Sept. 14.-While talk of useless disarmaments continues the French aerial authorities, following the lead of their British ally, will start aerial battles over Paris tomorrow morning in which 400 airplanes will participate and at which British experts will be present.

The maneuvers will continue for 48 hours, observed by the keen eye Sir Samuel Hoare, British air ninister, and a group of high-ranking British and French army officers. A theoretic attack on the city iscovering weaknesses in the defensive as well as the offensive abilties of the French air force.

Many observors here point to these maneuvers as the further proof of the Franco-British alliance, which has many more implications than have been made public.

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

For the Workers:

Mellon-Hoover-Coolidge Prosperity

Upon the return of Coolidge to the White House from his vacation he and Hoover had a conference with the real boss of the republican party, Andrew W. Mellon, regarding the

The calibre and tone of the discussion was revealed the next day when Mr. Mellon issued another of his optimistic statements to the Washington correspondents of the capitalist press on the "business situation of the country," which, as an example of studied lying, is a gem among capitalist party campaign material.

For a long time the various branches of the government, particularly the treasury department presided over by Mellon, as well as Hoover's department of commerce, have perverted figures regarding the economic condition of the country in an effort to perpetuate the myth of prosperity. Mr. Mellon reports that "business conditions are satisfactory and preparing to go forward on a sound economic basis," although he is compelled to refer to the pronounced crisis in coal and textiles as "a few weak spots." These, however, according to Mellon, are in process of being solved. He is rather vague on precisely how the textile problem is to be solved, but predicts that the coal crisis will be solved by the voluntary shutting down of a considerable number of mines and a subsequent curtailment of production. This is only another way of uttering the identical sentiments expressed by his union-wrecking lackey, John L. Lewis, who also urges a curtailment of production and states that hundreds of thousands of miners formerly engaged in coal production will remain idle. It is a method of serving notice on the coal diggers that the burden of rationalization of the coal industry will be placed upon their backs. So, while Mellon anticipates prosperity for the big coal operators he holds out no hope of prosperity for the men who delve in the ground to pile up profits for the parasitic owners of the industry.

It is fitting that Mellon and Coolidge and Hoover should remain noncommittal regarding the solution of the ills of the textile industry in view of the fact that the Fordney-McCumber tariff was hailed by the republicans and some democrats as a guarantee of high wages and sublime conditions for the workers in that industry. In the textile industry it is also the workers who bear the

In both industries the workers have fought and are fighting against the attempts to place the burdens of reorganization upon them. On the trade union field they have heroically fought against all the henchmen of the mine and mill owners. In many local instances the majority of the workers involved in these struggles have come to recognize the fact that the city and state governments are in the hands of their enemies. They must, in this campaign, as a result of their experiences, come to perceive that the government at Washington and the politicians of both old parties, whether republican or democrat, are their class enemies.

In his latest "prosperity" statement Mellon declares that as far as agriculture is concerned "there is nothing unfavorable in prospect for the farmers." On the identical day the statement was issued, the financial pages reported a downward plunge of cotton prices from 35 to 47 points; the condition of the world market, particularly as it affects American, Egyptian and Indian cotton, indicates a further marked decline. These facts completely refute the declarations of capitalist class economists that cotton prices will be high because of a small crop in the United States. It means the poor southern cotton growers will get even lower prices than usual in spite of their small crops.

World wheat production is such that prices of that product will be exceptionally low as far as the price to the farmer is concerned, so in spite of the huge American crop that is predicted, the average wheat grower will be no better off than before.

Prosperity exists only for the big capitalists and their hangers-on, but certainly not for the masses of the population of the coun-

The only solution for the economic ills of society is that presented by the Communists; and those members of the exploited population of the United States who are able to understand their own interests will support not the democrats or republicans or the socialists in this election, but the Work-Es (Communist) Party and its candidates.

The Reply to Gangsterism

Pat Toohey, secretary of the new National Miners Union, speaking at the funeral of George Moran, militant miner of Bentleyville, Pa., murdered by a gunman in the service of John L. Lewis and the operators, sounded the right note when he emphasized the necessity of the miners building up the new union into a powerful organization and continuing the fight in which Moran and so many others have lost their lives.

Such must be the reply of militants toward every gangster attack upon the labor movement. Backed by the operators, the police, the private armies of thugs and gunmen that infest the mine regions, the professional murderers feel they can ply their trade with impunity. And so they can as far as the capitalist police and courts are concerned.

But there is one force that can annihilate them. That is the embattled, bleeding and betrayed miners, organized into a determined fighting union. The one effective answer to gangsterism is the mass fury of the workers that will scourge from the mine regions every one of the Lewis gunmen.

The annual convention of the International Typographical Union now being held at Charleston, South Carolina, completely dominated by the so-called progressive forces under the leadership of the machine built up by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, and Charles P. Howard, president of the international union is one of the most viciously reactionary in the history of that organization.

Taking a more reactionary stand than most of the previous conventions of the Typographical Union and one that is in complete harmony with the interests of the publishers, the convention voted down by a raised high hopes, and it was be- of the public services are guarstaggering majority the proposals of the New York City (Bix Six) delegation for the forty-hour week. It also defeated a proposal to permit local unions to strike without the consent of the Executive Council of the In- the class composition of the Conternational Union, thereby continuing the reactionary policy of placing the interests of the membership at the mercy of the Morrison-Howard friends of the newspaper publishers. A form of compulsory arbitration was also established, inasmuch as the local unions dare not strike before all efforts to arbitrate disputes have been exhausted.

The refusal to endorse the forty-hour week is a decided step backwards for the I. T. U. It is a reversal of the former policy that the one effective way to solve the problem of increased production throwing thousands of men out of work is to shorten hours. That is the only way to solve the problem and the refusal of the Morrison-Howard machine to reaffirm the former decisions of the union is a slap in the face of the whole membership of the union.

Now that the "progs" are in complete control they have proved to be equally as reactionary, if not more so, that the infamous Wahneta machine that paralyzed the activity of the union for so many years. They are completely exposed as enemies of the workers. The next step in the Typographical Union is the creation of a new political party that will expose and defeat the new reactionary machine. The fight against the publishers cannot be effectively waged without at the same time fighting their agents now in control of the printers' union.

A Cathedral Designer Is for Smith

One Ralph Adams Cram, whose claim to fame is that he is the designer of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, announces that he will support the Tammanvite servant of the House of Morgan, Al Smith, for president of the United States, as a protest against "ignorance and superstition now rampant." The particular brand of superstition that Cram abhors is the protestant attack on the Roman Catholic religion of Smith. It is evidently possible for Cram to accept the superstition of the catholicism of Smith, which like protestantism has its roots in ignorance.

Politicians and others who try to befog the minds of the masses with quarrels over religion instead of facing the political issues of this campaign would be in a sorry plight indeed if it were not for rampant ignorance. Certainly Mr. Cram would have to find another occupation than that of cathedral designer were is not for that fact.

down the stairs. The witness said that ten or more men are sent to places where there is only one job, that sometimes several men are sent to places where there are no jobs and that the collusion between employment managers and agencies is known to have existed.

THIS is a well-known fact. Employment agents grow fat on the seeking work, but the law enforcement apparatus which is so effectively used to break strikes, by means of injunctions and police clubs, is strangely ineffective when it comes to protecting the workers against the swindling operations of nemployment sharks and other buzzards who fatten on the misery of the workers, even though there are laws on the statute books governing the operation of such agen-
