

Workers of New York! All Out Today in Red Welcome Parade for Foster and Gitlow!

WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.

With a big red welcome parade scheduled for this afternoon, rain or shine, a huge demonstration at Madison Square Garden tomorrow afternoon, a Communist election drive, the most successful in the history of the American working class movement just drawing to an eventful conclusion, with dozens of unions and other organizations proclaiming their support of their standard bearers, Foster and Gitlow, the Workers (Communist) Party of America is completing its first great Red election campaign which has carried the message of class struggle to hundreds of cities and in practically every state of the union.

The election tours of Foster and Gitlow, presidential and vice-presidential candidates of the Workers Party, have demonstrated that the American working class is receptive to the message of the Communists. By the opposition, the resistance, the terror of the bosses and the capitalist parties, as well as by the sympathetic attention of thousands of workers hitherto untouched, has this fact been demonstrated.

In the land of lynch-law the Communist standard bearers have carried the message of emancipation to the Negro workers and have been heard with a growing hope. Among the mine workers, among the textile slaves, before the steel workers, among the western lumber workers, and eastern needle trades workers, before women workers and young workers, the Red message of working class emancipation has been proclaimed and echoed from the masses of the proletariat.

Welcome back Foster and Gitlow, Red standard bearers!

Forward with the program of the Workers (Communist) Party of America!

BEN GITLOW.

RED DEMONSTRATION ON NEW YORK STREETS TODAY

HAYWOOD ASHES NOW ON WAY TO UNITED STATES

Will Arrive in New York City Nov. 7; to Be on View

Last Wish Is Fulfilled Will Later Be Taken to Chicago

"Big" Bill Haywood is about to come home. The urn containing the ashes of the noted American revolutionist who died in Moscow last May is now on the way here and will arrive in New York on November 7, as learned yesterday.

One of the last requests of Haywood was that half his remains be interred at the Red Square in Moscow while the other half be returned for burial in the country in which for a quarter of a century he fought, sacrificed and was imprisoned for the working class. Part of his wish has already been fulfilled. Beside the grave of Ruthenberg and McManus and a few feet behind the grave of Jack Reed, lies half of the remains of the American militant.

The urn containing his ashes which is now in charge of Karl Reeve, well-known American Communist who has been at the Leni School at Moscow during the past three years, will be taken to Chicago and will be buried there beside the graves of the Haymarket Martyrs, who were executed forty years ago. The ceremony marking the burial of Haywood's remains coincides with the observance of the fortieth anniversary of the execution of the five labor leaders, including Albert Parsons and August Spies, who were executed because they led the movement in Chicago for the eight hour day. The Chicago martyrs were executed November 11, 1887.

A Lifelong Militant. Haywood, born in Salt Lake City, Utah, in 1869, was already active in 1892 in strikes of metal miners in the west. In 1896 he joined the Western Federation of Miners, the militant industrial union, of which he was secretary-treasurer from 1901 to 1907. Haywood said of the Western Federation of Miners: "We PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 2.—Scott Nearing, Workers (Communist) Party candidate for governor of New Jersey, will speak to the workers of Paterson on the program and platform of the Workers (Communist) Party, tonight at Carpenter's Hall 54 Van Houten St.

The workers of Paterson are feeling the pinch of republican "prosperity." They have been suffering from open shop conditions, low wages, labor spy system and unemployment and can find no way out except thru the program of the Workers (Communist) Party. Nearing will prove this in his speeches before the workers of Paterson.

SANDINO CALLS LATIN AMERICA TO JOIN FIGHT

Sends Sharp Rebuke to 15 Presidents of Republics

"Fail in Your Duty" Tyrants Not Nations; Scores Renegades

(The letter of Sandino has special interest at this moment in view of the fake elections under control by U. S. marines taking place Sunday in Nicaragua.)

The All-American Anti-Imperialist League has received from General Sandino of Nicaragua, waging a stubborn and heroic struggle against American imperialism and its native lackeys, a copy of an open letter addressed to the presidents of fifteen Latin American nations. The nations whose executives are receiving this letter, which the Daily Worker gives below, are as follows: Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Costa Rica, Colombia, Venezuela, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Paraguay, Uruguay, Argentina, Brazil and Chile. Sandino's letter says:

"Messrs. Presidents.—S i n c e, among the Latin American nations, yours would be most affected in case the Yankees are permitted to make a colony of Nicaragua, I take the liberty of addressing this letter to you, not with hypocritical and false diplomatic courtesies, but with the rude frankness of a soldier.

Not Only a Canal.

"With a remnant of shame, the Yankees wish to disguise their designs behind the project of building an inter-oceanic canal through Nicaraguan territory, but such canal would also effect an isolation between the Indo-Spanish republics. The Yankees, who overlook no opportunity, will benefit from the division of our peoples to accomplish the dream of conquest which is inculcated in their children in their primary schools; that when all Spanish America has become an Anglo-Saxon colony, the blue sky of their flag will have but one star.

"For 15 months the army defending the national sovereignty of Nicaragua, before the cold indifference of the Spanish American governments and left to its own forces and resources, has been able, with honor and brilliancy, to face the terrible blonde beasts and the clique of traitorous Nicaraguan renegades who aid the invader's sinister designs.

"You Failed in Your Duty." "During this time, sirs, you have not fulfilled your duty, because as representatives that you are, of free and sovereign peoples, you are under the obligation of protesting diplomatically, or with arms that the people has confided to you, if necessary, against the unheard-of crimes that the government of the White House orders, in cold blood, to be committed in our unfortunate Nicaragua, and for no other reason than that our country does not wish to kiss the whip that lashes us, nor the hand of the Yankee that strikes us.

William D. Haywood A TRIBUTE

Haywood, hard-rock miner and rebel, towers like a granite cliff over the stony steeps of American labor history. His life is his own monument, a symbol of the struggle of his class. Never for one instant did he waver in loyalty to the working class. He was born with the workers and died with the workers.

Haywood fought for his class. He was its blunt, rugged fist, striking straight from the shoulder at the direct personification of capitalism—the boss.

Born on the frontier of the Old West, a miner at nine years of age, deprived by toil and hardships of an education, Haywood, like his class, learned as he fought. His school was the struggle itself.

Impressed in his boyhood with the martyrdom of the militant miners who were maligned and murdered in Pennsylvania as "Molly Maguires," he absorbed the lessons of class justice meted out to the Haymarket victims in 1887 during the struggle for the 8-hour day, and matched these epic battles between capital and labor into the drama of his own life.

BECAME REVOLUTIONIST.

When, far underground in the hot stopes of a mine at Silver City, Idaho, he turned off his air drill one night in the early years of this century to take up work as an official of the Western Federation of Miners, he was already a socialist, in the days when that word stood for class struggle.

He had seen the capitalist class dictatorship in all its naked brutality with its soldiery and bull-pens in the Coeur d'Alenes. Before Moyer, making common cause with the reactionary bureaucracy of the A. F. of L., devitalized the old Western Federation of Miners and betrayed the miners to the operators, the Western Federation of Miners, under Haywood's leadership, was the vanguard of the trade union movement of America.

The Western Federation of Miners was a trade union so true to labor's interests that thousands would fly to arms to defend it with their lives. Its militancy, as shown by the bitter struggles of Cripple Creek, Butte, Goldfield and other battle fronts of labor history, can well serve as a lesson to the unorganized workers of America today in their struggle under Communist and left wing leadership to organize new unions on the basis of class struggle.

OUTSTAGED BY YELLOW LEADERS.

In those struggles, Haywood became a socialist far more advanced than the sniveling reformists who headed

Eleven Years After All Power Went to Soviets

By SOL AUERBACH.

November 7 will be a day of rejoicing thruout the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. On the eleventh anniversary of the day the Soviet seized power and proclaimed a Workers' and Peasants' government, every city, town and village from Leningrad east to Vladivostok, south to Yalta, the Donetz Basin, the villages of the Caucasus and of the Uralis, every Soviet House in the far-flung Fatherland of the Proletariat will be the scene of mass demonstrations and meetings in appreciation of the workers' and peasants' accomplishments.

During that same week the revolutionary proletariat of the world will take the opportunity to demonstrate its unity of aim and purpose, and pledging itself in the support of the Soviet Union and at the same time continue its revolutionary work with renewed vigor, backed by the knowledge that in one vast country the proletariat has already conquered and is now engaged in the construction of a socialist society.

Armored Tenacles. It is not all rejoicing. Our fellow-workers in the Soviet Union are menaced by the militarist octopus of the imperialist powers, whose armored tenacles rise all along the

GITLOW SPEAKS TO NEW BEDFORD MILL WORKERS

"Fight Must Continue Till Mills Belong to the Workers"

Raps Batty and Binns

"Only One Party Now Fights Capitalism"

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 2.—Enthusiasm and mass solidarity reminiscent of the recent textile strike greeted Benjamin Gitlow, Communist vice presidential candidate, here last night at a Red campaign rally in which thousands of textile workers participated. A demonstration at the station and a parade preceded the meeting.

Denouncing the union officials who betrayed the strike, as well as the police, for their brutality in the struggle, Gitlow declared that the fight against the wage cuts and for improved working conditions was only beginning. "This fight will extend its bounds," Gitlow said, "until it has culminated in a full victory for the whole working class; the mills will then belong to the workers and the government will be a workers' and farmers' government. Then there will be no police clubbing and no wage cuts," Gitlow declared.

Thomas Corrigan acted as chairman of the meeting which was repeatedly interrupted by outbursts of applause by the workers. Fred Beal, union organizer and Communist candidate for mayor of New Bedford, received an ovation. Joseph Fineran spoke as the representative of the Young Workers (Communist) League. Anthony Samieras gave a talk in Portuguese.

Both Gitlow and Beal exposed the treachery of Binns and Batty, the A. F. of L. misleaders, and the so-

25,000 ARE EXPECTED AT "GARDEN" RALLY SUNDAY

Windup of Red Election Drive Will Be Greatest Militant Demonstration Yet Held

All Communist Candidates on Deck; Red Pageant; Sacco and Vanzetti Protest

With reports of growing enthusiasm within the ranks of militant New York workers rapidly accumulating, plans for the welcoming parade this afternoon to William Z. Foster, and Benjamin Gitlow, Communist candidates for president and vice president, indicate one of the most powerful workers' demonstrations yet held here.

"I look forward with great pleasure to greeting my comrades, the workers of New York, Saturday afternoon," was the message wired yesterday by Foster to William W. Weinstein, organizer of District 2 of the Workers Party. "Saturday's parade will be a smashing proof to the boss parties that our movement is growing more powerful every day. We are in the last stages of one of the most successful revolutionary campaigns yet waged in this country."

Many Thousands in Line. With similar greetings from Gitlow, the committee in charge of the parade announced yesterday that yesterday that several thousands of workers are expected to participate. The demonstration will form at the southwest corner of 42nd St. and Park Ave. at 2 o'clock on the arrival of Foster and Gitlow at the Grand Central Station, each from an extended tour of the country during which the candidates spoke in scores of cities in practically every state of the union.

All workers' activities indicate that this parade will be one of the most spectacular street events in the history of the New York labor movement. A veritable stream of workers and workers' representatives flowed into the parade headquarters yesterday, pledging support and attendance in the march.

The parade is the prelude to the mass meeting and demonstration which will be held at Madison Square Garden tomorrow at 2 p. m. at which Foster and Gitlow will wind up the most successful workers' election campaign ever waged in the annals of the American labor movement.

The Garden meeting will be also the scene of an emphatic protest against the murder of Sacco and Vanzetti, particularly in the light of the recently discovered additional evidence in proof of these two martyred workers' innocence.

Unions in Line. Additional pledges from unions to take part in the parade continued to come into parade headquarters until a late hour yesterday. Among those who will take part in this marching street demonstration will be:

- (1) Brass band. (2) Body guard of workers from specific industries, needle, metal, etc.—a woman worker, a young worker, a Pioneer, and a Chinese worker. (3) Central Executive Committee. (4) District Executive Committee. (5) William Z. Foster—in an auto, containing same as in point 2. (6) Body-guard of workers same as point 2. MURDER CHARGE AGAINST WORKER

Klan Uses Pressure on Grand Jury

FREEHOLD, N. J., Nov. 2.—The Ku Klux Klan may not have to murder Joseph Farrugio, Italian worker, after all. This little job may be done "legally" and "officially" by the state with the Klan merely pulling the proper strings.

Such is the course of even's "fore-shadowed by the action of the Monmouth County grand jury which today brought in an indictment of first degree murder against the 54-year-old worker who shot Harold Johnson, son of a wealthy Asbury Park family, who seduced Farrugio's 16-year-old daughter, Marianne, and enraged the father by jeering at his grief.

The finding of the grand jury, announced by Prosecutor John J. Quinn, came after an unusually brief investigation, and as if in response to the demands of the Ku Klux Klan, in addition to threatening foreign-born workers, declared that Farrugio would pay with his that party, the Hillquits, Bergers and Oneals! Facing realities, battling militia and police at times with his own hands, Haywood expressed the militant spirit of the revolutionary class struggle. Knowing that Haywood championed revolutionary political action as opposed to their petty-bourgeois parliamentary reformism, the reformist leaders hastened to oust him from position in the socialist party.

Tribute to Haywood, U. S. Militant Leader

Haywood's bluff honesty was nauseated at the corruption of the American Federation of Labor under Gompers, and its servile trucking to employers and the capitalist government, and he took part with DeLeon and Debs in forming the Industrial Workers of the World, although he remained a "political actionist" in the revolutionary sense; and far from trusting in the syndicalist belief that "folded arms" would overthrow capitalism, he believed that a genuine general strike was but a forerunner of revolution, but not revolution itself.

The more he fought them the more he learned. His ideas were clarified through the experiences of the Russian Revolution and the acceptance of Leninist teachings. His mind was ever young and ready to grasp new weapons to face new problems. Already a revolutionary socialist at the time of his trial with Moyer and Pettibone, he used that trial to make thousands of other workers into revolutionaries. That was why the Bergers and Hillquits feared him.

JOINED REVOLUTIONARY PARTY.

Likewise, after his imprisonment with the I. W. W. during the imperialist war, and after his absorption of the lessons of the Bolshevik revolution, Haywood on his release joined the Workers (Communist) Party, became a member of the Communist International and an adherent of the Red International of Labor Unions. That was why some reactionary leaders of the I. W. W., who are misleading the organization, whispered slanders about him and deprecated his role in labor history.

In 1921 Haywood took refuge under the red banner of the First Workers' and Peasants' Republic. When he died he was a member of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, upholding the policies of Lenin and that Party against the Trotsky opposition.

ASHES TO BE DIVIDED.

Haywood died, but before his death requested that his ashes be divided. One part, as he had asked, was buried in the Kremlin Wall at a great memorial demonstration in the Red Square at Moscow during July. The other part, he directed to be interred beside the graves of the Haymarket victims at the Waldheim cemetery in Chicago.

The Workers (Communist) Party pays its tribute to Haywood, revolutionary fighter and Communist. At New York City on November 7, when his ashes will be received from Moscow, workers will pay honor to the memory of Haywood in commemorating the Eleventh Anniversary of the Soviet Union, which Haywood cherished as the fatherland of the world proletariat.

BIG DEMONSTRATIONS.

From New York, Haywood's ashes will be conveyed westward, to be met with mass memorial demonstrations at Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Detroit. At Chicago on Nov. 11, the anniversary of the legal murder of the Chicago martyrs of 1887, in the presence of delegations of workers from workers' organizations, a great demonstration in memory of the Haymarket victims and of Haywood, will be held before his ashes are at last laid beside the bones of Parsons, Spies and their comrades.

In the present election campaign, American workers can best honor the memory of a valiant American proletarian revolutionary by supporting the program and candidates of the Party of which Haywood was a member—the Workers (Communist) Party. Haywood stood for the class struggle and was an implacable foe of class peace; he fought against the imperialist war, the danger of which hangs over the workers of the world today; as a Communist he understood—and as a fighter he experienced upon himself the nature of the capitalist state and never ceased exposing American democracy; he acclaimed the proletarian revolution in Russia and called upon the workers always to defend the First Workers' Republic from all enemies.

The Workers (Communist) Party calls upon American workers who stand for the things for which "Big Bill" Haywood lived and fought, to rally to do honor to his memory and those of the Haymarket victims of the hangmen of capitalism, and to show their loyalty to the working class as Haywood did, by joining the struggle to overthrow capitalism by adhering to the Workers (Communist) Party. Vote Communist on November 6th!

General Sandino Appeals to All Latin-American Peoples

terests of the bankers of North America. "Yankee colonization advances rapidly over our peoples without encountering at every step, as it should, a wall of bayonets; and thus each one of our countries, in its turn, is conquered with little trouble to the conqueror in view of the fact that, even today, each one has defended itself alone.

"If the governments of the leading Spanish-American countries were headed by a Simon Bolivar, a Benito Juarez or a San Martin, ours would be a different destiny; because they would know that when Central America would be dominated by the blonde pirates, in turn would fall Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela, etc.

Danger to Mexico.

"What will happen to Mexico if the Yankees attain their bastardly designs of colonizing Central America? The heroic Mexican people would be able to do nothing, despite its virility, because it would be caught in the iron circle of Uncle Sam, and the aid it might expect to receive from the sister nations could not pass the obstacle of the Nicaraguan canal and the naval base of the Gulf of Fonseca; it would be left to fight alone against Yankee imperialism, isolated from the other peoples of Spanish America and left to its own devices, as is happening to us now."

Cowards Laughed At.

"Perhaps the governments of Spanish America do not know that the Yankees laugh at their timid policy adopted in cases such as that of Nicaragua? It is true that, for the moment, Brazil, Venezuela and Peru have no problem of intervention, as they declared through their representatives to the Pan-American Conference held in Havana; but if those governments had more understanding of their historic responsibility they would not delay until the conquest would be making inroads on their own soil, but would hasten to the defense of a brother people who are fighting with valor and tenacity against a criminal enemy a hundred times greater and armed with every modern weapon.

"The governments that express themselves at such a tragic and crucial hour of history in the terms used by Brazil, Venezuela, Peru and Cuba, will they tomorrow have any moral authority with their brother peoples? Will they have any right to be heard?

"Today it is the peoples of Spanish America I address: When a government does not answer to the aspirations of its citizens, these, who gave it power, have the right cause themselves to be represented by men with courage and effective democratic ideas, and not by useless puppets lacking in moral vigor and patriotism who bring shame to a race.

"We are 50,000,000 Latin Americans and must consider our unification. We must understand that Yankee imperialism is the most brutal enemy now menacing us, the only one promising to put an end by conquest to our racial honor and the liberty of our peoples.

"Liberty Not Won With Flowers." "Tyrants do not represent nations, and liberty is not won with flowers.

"Therefore, in order to form a united front and to check the advance of the conqueror upon our homelands, we must begin by cleaning our own house and by not permitting that bloody despot such as Juan Vicente Gomez and degenerates such as Leguia, Machado and others make us ridiculous before the world, as they did in the pantomime in Havana.

"As men worthy of Latin America we must follow the example of Bolivar, Hidalgo, San Martin and the sons of Mexico who on the 13th of September, 1847, fell, pierced by Yankee bullets at Chapultepec, dying to defend their homeland and their race rather than submissively accept a life filled with disgrace and shame under the iron heel of Yankee imperialism.

"For fatherland and freedom, "A. C. SANDINO."

"International" Books for Soviet Anniversary

THE Eleventh Anniversary of the Russian Revolution will reveal a growing interest in books popularizing the revolution, according to International Publishers, 381 Fourth Ave., New York. Believing that American workers are eager to learn about the first workers' republic and that the building of a socialist society over one-sixth of the earth is of profoundest significance for the toilers of this country, International Publishers are sparing no pains to produce an extensive and informative literature of the Russian Revolution and the workers' state.

History, literature, art, memoirs and graphic eye witness accounts, trade union delegation reports and expert studies on special phases of Soviet life, economics and politics, labor protection, social and industrial conditions, foreign relations, every phase of this titanic event is represented.

Among the books planned for publication in the immediate future are two outstanding books, dealing with Soviet Russia: "The Russian Revolution of 1917," by V. I. Lenin, containing his writings from the moment he returned to Russia in April, 1917, to the July days. The other work is a translation of the comprehensive history of Russia by Prof. M. N. Pokrovsky.

A TWO-VOLUME "Illustrated History of the Russian Revolution," representing the combined efforts of the outstanding revolutionary leaders, Rykov, Stalin, Bukharin, Lunacharsky, Tomsky, Krupskaya and others, is of particular interest as a simply written and well-documented Marxian history of the Revolution by the leaders themselves, including several hundred photographs of revolutionary events and facsimiles of original documents.

"Leninism," by Joseph Stalin, is more than a work of theory. It is a document of the Russian Revolution. Not only the fundamental theories and policies which have influenced the course of the Revolution, but also the recent political controversy with the Trotsky opposition. "The speeches of V. I. Lenin," Volume VIII of the well-known series "Voices of Revolt," contains his outstanding utterances from 1917 to 1923. "Ten Days that Shook the World," by John Reed, has now become a universal classic and the only authentic account of the ten days of the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917. Prof. Frederick Lewis Schuman's Study, "American Policy Towards Russia Since 1917," has evoked a widespread interest and discussion as a study in diplomatic history and public opinion covering the entire field of Russian-American relations since the Revolution.

Every year finds an increasing number of visitors going to the Soviet Union. For their benefit a thousand-page "Guide to the Soviet Union" has been issued, taking up in detail all points of interest, historical and contemporary, and supplying information regarding the social, cultural, political and economic phases of Russian life, as well as facts for the everyday needs of the traveler.

Russian composers have always been noted for their musical pre-eminence, and "Modern Russian Composers," by Leonid Sabaneyeff, himself a Russian composer with the gift of a brilliant style, has created an extensive interest in its aesthetic characterizations of outstanding representatives of Russian music. Lovers of Russian poetry have welcomed the selection of lyrics by Rabbete Deutsch and Avrahm Yarnolinsky in their anthology of "Russian Poetry," which covers the period from Pushkin to the present day. "Memoirs of a Revolutionist," by Vera Figner, offers a fascinating picture of Russia's revolutionary pioneers and the pre-revolutionary background of the historic upheaval. In "Broken Earth" Maurice Hindon has given us an intimate account of peasant life in the new Russia. The Russian educational experinounced her suffering from malnutrition and nervous collapse. As Mrs. Farrugio is pregnant, the doctors declare there is grave danger both she and her unborn child may die.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST WORKER

The eleven Farrugio children are reported to be destitute and on the verge of starvation. The prosecution will probably ask a death sentence for the worker who is now being held incommunicado. While this new blow descended on the Farrugio family which has been led to believe that the charge against the jailed worker would be no greater than manslaughter, the news was kept from Mrs. Farrugio who is hovering between life and death in the Freehold Hospital.

Mrs. Farrugio came to Freehold yesterday with her daughter, Marianne, from their home in Neptune, N. J., in answer to a subpoena despite the fact that her physical condition demanded that she remain at home. She collapsed in front of the court house and was rushed to the hospital where the doctors prominent has been universally recognized as the greatest of its kind in history. In "Education in Soviet Russia," Scott Nearing has described this experiment with telling effect.

"The New Theatre and Cinema of Soviet Russia," by Huntly Carter, has been justly called "a veritable encyclopedia of the Russian theatre today."

No worker will want to do without the reports of the trade union delegations, "Russia After Ten Years, the report of the American Labor Delegation to Soviet Russia," "Russia Today," the official report of the British trade union delegation on social and economic conditions in Soviet Russia, and the "Report of the First American Rank and File Labor Delegation to Soviet Russia."

A complete catalog of all books by International Publishers, dealing with Marxism, Leninism, Labor Problems, as well as Soviet Russia, can be had on request.

TWO SCENES OUT OF USSR FILM 'OCTOBER'

By S. EISENSTEIN and G. ALEXANDROV.

(Fragments of the Scenario) These two fragments of the scenario of October are part of the action and events centering about the revolution of October, 1917. The Soviet Film, produced by S. Eisenstein and G. Alexandrov, is created out of the principal events and phases of the civil war. These two episodes are based on historic facts related by participants and witnesses.

I. Now, nature, indifferent to the enterprises of men lives its life. . . Immovable, the outposts of the Red Guard stand at attention in the silences of the night.

Immovable, the cold cannon are mounted on a base of snow. The Soviet soldiers search for the enemy thru the shadows.

But, weary, they fall asleep. Their eyelids close, their muscles are relaxed. But thru the torpor which has grasped them and thru the great silence of the night, a song is heard.

Illusion? Dream? Hallucination? From the obscurity these sounds come: Oh, misery mine, Oh, Father. . . What is that?

They raise their heads. . . They open their eyes. . . Oh, misery mine, Oh, Father. . . Then comes from the whole plain: Peace be with you, people! . . .

Out of the distance, under the light of the winter moon, in a burst of church garments, under the protection of the shadow punctuated by lanterns and wax tapers, a crowd advances.

The trenches come to life, figures run to the right and to the left. What is it? I do not understand.

What is to be done? It is necessary to explain this. They approach, they approach! The figures can now be distinguished.

Ikons, altar candles, crosses, incense burners, priests in scintillating robes, and behind them, in the front column, a mass of robust monks in black gowns.

Those who march in front carry adorned crosses and hold high their burning censers. Oh, misery mine Oh, Father. . . They approach, they approach! In the trench the Red Guards run to right and to left.

Those who have just come from their villages look at each other. They are excited, they do not understand. . . What is to be done?

The procession is now some twenty meters from the trench. Peace be with you, people! A courier hurries towards the headquarters in the rear.

Comrade Commissar. . . The Commissar does not listen to the end; he runs toward the trenches. With a bound he is on the parapet. He sees. He understands. He cries:

Halt! The procession stops. The monks grit their teeth and half close their eyes. The Commissar makes a step forward.

Suddenly, from under a church robe, a flashing revolver is uncovered. Suddenly, the brilliant "curtain" of the front rank, is put aside. The withdrawal of the curtain reveals a line of bayonets and a row of rifles.

The Red Guards do not have time to run to their guns, they do not have time to awaken entirely: a rain of lead falls on them, the monks fire. Crippled by a ball, the Commissar rolls into a ditch.

The priests' marksmen continue a rumbling fire. Overcome by surprise at this act of treachery, the Red fighters begin to retreat. Army of the Lord Jesus Christ! And the attackers flood the trenches. Like savage beasts the monks and the long-haired priests throw themselves on the stupified Red Guards. One strikes, one thrusts, one cuts, one shoots.

The leaders cannot establish order. The Red fighters, overcome with panic, flee. The Cossack cavalry, pouring from behind the front lines, finish the work of the priests.

Artillery. The attack is redoubled in violence. The Red Army fights, while retreating.

II. On a clear and very cold day a mass of men, who are marching slowly, see some soldiers in the distance. The leaders give the order to prepare for combat.

And the mass continues to advance. The soldiers in the distance do not fire. They do not fire!

The faces become gay, eyes shine. They are ours. . . They run, rush towards these immovable men.

Reds. . . Ours. . . Reds, Reds, Reds. . . Toward a standing Red Guard, runs a joyous cavalier of Kouban, and he stops, not understanding. . .

The man, as of stone, remains immovable in his cloak powdered with snow. A whole regiment of red fighters are solidified with the frost.

Diverse attitudes. Faces as white as paper, hands of white wax. The horses, the camel and the cows rummage about for fodder.

Disconcerted, terrified, masses of men come and go, look at these human forms for ever frigid with the frost. And night came.

The men made fires. They blaze with straw in order to warm hands and frozen feet. Monuments in the twilight, frozen corpses leaning against each other.

In vacillating light of the pyres, the faces of the dead seem to grimace horribly. Terrible. . .

Skinny men warm themselves at the pyres. And like marble statues, there, immovable, bodies chained by the frost. On the white snow, race terrifying shadows, projected by the flames of the fires.

And looking. . . Terrified eyes. . . blanching faces. . . chattering teeth. . . a woman, maddened, cries out and flees. On all the cry of the woman had been a blow of the whip.

In a body, men bound from their places, and begin to run, seized with fright. . . The wagons, the camels, the cows are gone, bounding over the steppes. And the torment of the snow is resumed.

The furious wind effaces all traces. As if at attention, stand the frozen bodies of the Red fighters. And, like black idols, the high silhouettes of the frozen camels also. In the cold shadows the fires burn themselves out.

Violent Earthquake in Bogota, Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia, Nov. 2.—Slight earth tremors continued here last night after a violent quake early in the day. A second quake late in the afternoon shook houses here and did considerable damage at Tunja, where one house had been demolished by the first shock. The second quake threw the residents into a panic and sent them running into the streets.

PHILHARMONIC.

The Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Wilhelm Mengelberg, assisted by the Society's Chorus, will perform at its Carnegie Hall concert this Thursday afternoon and Friday evening and next Sunday afternoon for the first time in America Richard Strauss' latest composition, "Die Tageszeiten," Op. 76. On the same program will be given Brahms' rarely heard Rhapsody for Alto and Male Chorus, with Sophie Braslau as soloist, and the same composer's Variations on a Theme by Haydn.

"Die Tageszeiten" is a setting of men's voices, and full symphonic orchestra, of a cycle of four nature poems by Joseph von Eichendorff. The German poet who inspired some of the finest songs by Hugo Wolf.

Tomorrow afternoon at the first of a series of seven Sunday concerts at the Metropolitan Opera House, Cornelius Van Vliet, cellist of the Philharmonic Symphony, will be the soloist, playing the D'Albert Concerto. Kodaly's "Haydne" Suite and Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony complete the program.

Next Saturday afternoon Walter Damrosch will conduct the third of his Young People's Concerts at Carnegie Hall.

THE FINAL BALANCE

David Pinski's Allegorical Drama Presented By Provincetown Players.

UNDER the rather weak and non-descriptive title, "The Final Balance," the well known Yiddish playwright David Pinski wrote an allegorical drama which the Provincetown Playhouse is producing now.

"The Final Balance" is built around a quaint concept. A merchant who owns a bakery has a dream in which his good old mother appears from the grave and tells him that all bread made from this year's flour will cause instant insanity and that the only cure is a piece of bread made from last year's flour.

The merchant, acted by E. J. Ballantine, slops around in a dressing gown, pretending illness, so that he can flirt with the pretty wife of his roomer, a private tutor, and dodge his own wife, a grasping shrew.

But he is able, just the same, to make a partnership with the next most concrete character in the play, the moneylender (William Franklin) and corner the market on last year's flour.

Then the whole world goes mad. An enormous fortune is made by the conspirators in the sale at drug store prices of the curative flour; the secret being kept, cured people go crazy again.

But the merchant, after tricking his wife and the money lender, also the roomer into eating the fatal loaf, discovers the roomer's wife can't be had. She looks over a world of drizzling lunatics, and tells the merchant he "ought to be ashamed of himself." So he is, and hangs himself, leaving the world to rave on.

The plot is too light for a play. The combination of realism with shadowy symbolism makes for a constant uncomfortable contradiction in feeling and sense. The theory that a bakery laborer will only talk strike when he is crazy will not go well with radicals, and the theory that as soon as he loses his inhibitions he begins to talk strike will not suit the conservative.

The general effect is that of a satire on modern society, but the introduction of real paths, the attempt to rouse sympathy for the merchant, takes the edge off it.

The actors don't seem to know just what to do, they move through it as though they were movie heroes, waiting always for the voice of the director. And the whole thing leaves a general impression of wasted time and futility, not as part of the play, but on the audience.

The costumes show the effect of good planning, and an artistic touch. The costumes and the painted shadows on the scenery are the best things about, "The Final Balance." V. S.

RUSSIAN PROGRAM AT THE 55TH STREET PLAYHOUSE.

An all-Russian program is to be presented this afternoon at the 55th Street Playhouse. The feature piece is "Bondage," a German UFA production which will have its first American showing. This film depicts the Imperial Russia of the 1850's when serfdom held the nation in thrall. The story was adapted from the drama "The Danischeffs" by Pierre Newsky, a Russian poet.

Heinrich George, a noted film actor of Germany, plays the principal role. Mona Marris and Harry Halm are in the supporting cast.

On the same bill is a new issue of Russian Newsreels, direct from Russia, produced by Sovkino. This week's news depict the celebration of Tolstoy's hundredth birthday which took place at Moscow in the most elaborate way under the auspices of high state officials.

Zola on the Cameo Screen

A number of efforts have been and are being made in European studios to bring Zola to the screen. One effort of well known indifferent reports have been received concerns "Nana" with Werner Kraus. Another now being produced by Marcel L'Herbier is "Gold," but according to the European press the most effective thus far achieved is "Therese Raquin," which the Film Arts Guild will present for its American premiere at the Cameo Theatre today under the title of "Shadows of Fear."

This cinema bears the individual direction of Jacques Feyder, whose unique screen tendencies we have seen in such films as Anatole France's "Craqueville," "Carmen" with Raquel Meller and the forthcoming "Faces of Children," likewise to be presented at the Cameo Theatre in a few weeks.

As the Berliner Tageblatt says of "Therese Raquin": "What makes this film so outstanding, what lifts it entirely out of the old fashioned production scheme and beyond the stereotyped film material is the remarkable way in which direction, photography, background and acting have been developed into a schematic unit, with every small detail clearly studied to make an artistic whole."

The deep penetration of Feyder's art is evident in the way his minor characters are treated. They are all the subject of careful study and fit closely into the atmosphere of the picture. The settings in particular designed by Andrej Andrejev and Erick Zander.

WHEN THE SOVIETS SIEZED ALL POWER

even to cook its own breakfast. Factories did not work, fields did not produce, there was nothing to eat, nothing to wear. The workers and peasants had lived through seven years of war and civil war.

Vibrating With Energy.
But now! The Soviet Union is a fast developing industrial-agricultural country. All the technical advantages of modern science are being introduced. Even last year, when I was there, not a sign of destructive havoc was to be seen. All traces of war had been wiped out. The land vibrated with the energy of construction. Everything had been rebuilt and new things were in the stages of construction—all from the point of view and on the concrete basis of a socialist society.

It is an accomplishment that will go down in history as one of the most wonderful achievements of all time, produced by the collective energy and will of the masses. Masses with a unified goal, with but one ideal and one aim, shouting in one voice, "On with the construction of socialism! Down with all our enemies and traitors!"

Growth of Production.

In the short space of one year the achievements of the workers and peasants of the Soviet Union are great. At the same time they have been faced with a sharpening of the anti-Soviet campaign.

The first achievements to be recorded for the year are the growing productivity of the socialized industry, the growth of new industry and of special cultures in the villages, and at the same time the growth of the co-operatives.

During the last year productivity increased 17.6 per cent over 1926-27, while wages increased 11.2 per cent instead of the 7.2 per cent provided for in the plan. Especially to be noted is the fact that the production of agricultural machinery increased to 42.3 per cent of last year, while industrial construction increased from 22 to 23 per cent.

From the few figures given above the general impetuous development of Soviet industry, together with the increase in wages for the workers, part and parcel of a socialist society, can be seen. Among individual instances of development we can cite the unprecedented growth of the naphtha industry, the growth of the machine building industry, whose importance cannot be overstressed, and which is virtually a new industry. Agricultural machines have overstepped the pre-war level threefold. Strong foundations have been laid for the electrical and chemical industries, and pipe-lines have been laid in the Gvozny oil fields. Electrification, both in city and village, has increased with astonishing pace, considering the immense difficulties to be faced.

Seven-Hour Day.

While all this is going on the seven-hour day has been introduced into industry, and all the new plants are opened on the new schedule. Wages are going up.

The same can be shown in agriculture. Thirty thousand tractors have been introduced to the broad steppes of the Soviet Union, ripping them up in one sweep and harvesting them in another. The cultivation of the technical crops for industrial purposes, which had been especially hard hit by the war, is going on with renewed vigor and has achieved a level above pre-war. Such crops as cotton and sugar-beet, so important to the construction of agricultural industry, are now on a high productive level.

The failure of the winter crops in the Ukraine has been counteracted by excellent crops in Siberia and other wheat sections and by the fall harvest in Ukraine. During the last month grain collections have been much higher than was originally expected. And now the co-operative and collecting machinery has been improved to assure plenty of bread for the industrial centers.

The Shakhty Trial.

These are only a few facts. Enough to demonstrate that the workers and peasants of the Soviet Union have pushed the throttle all the way and are express-bound towards the construction of socialist society, with a modernized and efficient industry and agriculture.

There have been barriers set on the tracks of the socialist express, but the watchfulness and determination of the loyal track walkers have cleared the path all the way.

The trial of the Donetz Basin conspirators demonstrated clearly to the workers and peasants that there were still counter-revolutionary elements within their own ranks, who by sabotage, espionage and even direct destruction, attempted to hinder the construction of Socialism. Again we had the experience of seeing the masses react to this threat against their society. The Shakhty trial was the center of all interest. There, in the conspirators, was impersonated the counter-revolutionary enemy, who had eaten his way into one of the most industrial centers in the Soviet Union.

But the Workers' and Peasants' government was equal to the occasion. The conspiracy had been discovered. The criminals were punished. The workers heaved a sigh of relief, went back to their workbenches with renewed determination and the consciousness that every step must count, all energy must be directed to the construction of Socialism, just as before they had directed all their strength towards the destruction of invading armies and counter-revolutionary hordes.

Enemies Arm!

In the relation of the Soviet Union to the capitalist world the three outstanding developments in the last year are: the strengthening of the anti-USSR military bloc of aggression under the impetus of the British and French imperialists; the growth of the revolutionary working class movement and the heroic accomplishments of the Krassin and Malynin expeditions.

We all know of the machinations of the British imperialists, trembling for the safety of their colonial empire, against the Soviet Union. Poland, financed by French gold and whose army has been constructed by French loans and officered by French military men, has taken every occasion to provoke the Soviet Union. Rumania, another center of black reaction and aggression against the Soviet Union, has recently been allied to Poland, by their kind parents, the British and French. This marriage is a military pact of aggression, having as its aim the invasion of the Soviet Union. According to the terms of the compact, should this invasion be successful, then Soviet Ukraine would become a protectorate under Polish rule and Odessa become Rumania's port on the Black Sea.

Western Bloc.

The Czechoslovakian government, until recently hesitant to join the military bloc because of the powerful working class movement in the country, has finally been induced by Baldwin and Briand to sign an agreement with Rumania, by which it agrees to provide ammunition and if necessary troops.

There is also the tacit consent of the French government to attack the Soviet Union from the north, while the Polish and Rumanian armies attack on the west. And then there is the Franco-British naval pact, "naval" only in name, for it contains provisions for joint action on all frontiers. Briand's speech at Geneva, a direct threat at the Soviet Union, and the breathless manufacture of war materials, the building of armaments, all enhance the danger from the west.

To Bomb Moscow.

Baldwin's government has now begun to build long-distance planes, which can remain in the air for three days. They began to develop these planes when England received the message from the Soviet workers and peasants entitled "An answer to Chamberlain"—in which Chamberlain's war talk was answered by the construction of more planes by the workers and peasants. These long-distance planes of Baldwin—to bomb Moscow from the air, using Warsaw as a base! And then there is the threat of the British imperialists from the East, where they have united the governments of Afghanistan, Egypt, Persia and Turkey in another anti-USSR bloc.

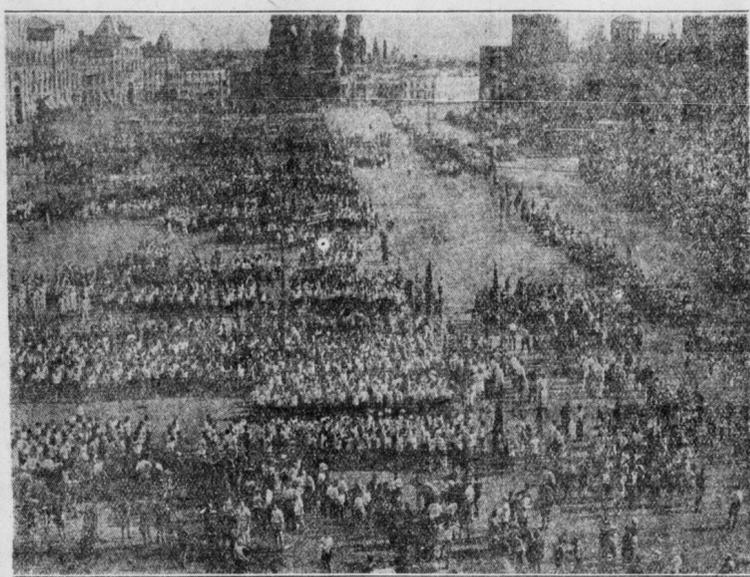

Danger in East.

Recently we have heard that this eastern bloc is likely to include Japan, and the reactionary Nanking regime of China, which is being financed by the United States bankers.

And just two days ago it was learned that the British imperialists have put a finishing touch to their military bloc by uniting the eastern and western blocs in a series of treaties between Afghanistan and Poland.

British and French imperialists are directing the war stage. The buffer states to attack from the west, the eastern countries to be used as bases for attack from the

Red Athletes of Many Countries at Huge Proletarian Sports Meet

East, Japan menacing through Siberia, Nanking through Mongolia; the French and British navies to swoop down from the north.

The United States, the most dangerous and powerful imperialist state in the world, its dominant position gained at the expense of the British empire, looms as the most solid bulwark of the capitalist reaction which, without the slightest doubt, will sooner or later plunge the world into a sea of blood in the effort to exterminate the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. This is true even if its direct hand cannot so clearly be seen in some of the European machinations against the Soviet Union. By its very nature the imperialist Wall Street power is the mortal enemy of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. It stands at the other pole of social organization. It has not recognized the Soviet Union, and attempts to crush all sentiment for such recognition at home. In China, where the United States has taken an open reactionary role in supporting and financing the reactionary Nanking regime, the United States militarists are preparing the war against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

The Reformist Betrayers.
As an integral part of the capitalist system, playing a subtle role as defenders of capitalism and betrayers of the working class, stands the second international. In Germany, where it plays a dominant role in the government, the "socialist" party is now the sponsor for the building of 10,000-ton armored cruisers for the capitalist state. The social-democrats have expressed their enmity to the Soviet Union in more blatant tones than the imperialists. The "socialists" support the anti-Soviet League of Nations. MacDonald and his followers in England are now concerned with preserving the British empire and the continuation of an aggressive policy towards the Workers' and Peasants' Government.

The workers and peasants of the Soviet Union know these things and in spite of the social-democratic parties the revolutionary workers in the capitalist countries must be made to understand them. The imperialists have not dared to attack the workers and peasants of the Soviet Union are all too ready to fight for the socialist fatherland, the workers all over the world are too ready to join hands and extend the chain of Soviets, in unbreakable links, around the world!

Soviet Peace Policy.

Thus far between Poland and the Soviet Union and a consequent world war have only been avoided by the strong desire for peace in the Soviet Union, and by its careful handling of Poland's provocative action. What other government, but one pledged to peace, could have withstood the insinuating provocation of the Pilsudski dictatorship?

The Soviet Union signed the Kellogg pact to "outlaw" war. But at the same time it explained to the workers of the world that such a pact could never outlaw war as long as the capitalist system continues; that the specific reservations in the pact made by the British and French imperialists in regards to certain areas was only a further proof that the Kellogg pact is, from the side of the capitalist powers, but a maneuver for imperialist war.

The "Krassin."

Cutting its way thru the ice of capitalist enmity, the "Krassin" bore to the workers of the world an extreme proof of the bravery, the endurance, the nerve and determination of Soviet workers. Where the machinery of the capitalist nations was inadequate, the sturdy ice-breaker Krassin, manned by a brave crew, broke its way thru the Polar ice and accomplished the task. All enemies were cast aside by the Soviet expedition. And it rescued its arch-enemies, members of an expedition sent by a fascist dictatorship on an imperialist venture.

The Krassin expedition stands as an additional proof of the internal development of the Soviet Union, as another token of the strength of an industry and technical development

SPORTS IN THE USSR

By G. W. SINFIELD.

(Manager of the British Workers' Sports Team in Russia)

THE first Spartakiade—the Workers' Sports International—to be held in the Soviet Union will remain long in the memories of all those fortunate enough to be present.

It is almost impossible adequately to describe the feelings and impressions so vividly created among the delegation by this wonderful spectacle.

The Spartakiade games and contests were preceded by a mass demonstration through the streets of Moscow in which there participated, in addition to many thousands of Russian workers all in their athletic costumes, some 500 worker sportsmen from twenty-seven different countries.

Over 30,000 workers gathered in the Red Square to witness the march past. This scene will never be forgotten.

Our own British delegation, which, due to their small numbers—there were only four—gave a good account of themselves, were tumultuously cheered by the Russian workers.

It became apparent as the "Spartakiade" progressed that Russian athletes were to be reckoned with.

Their speed and stamina were amazing. This is all the more remarkable when we remember that sport and physical culture among the workers were practically unknown before the revolution.

Teddy Lewis, light-weight, and Harry Brown, bantam, the two competitors concerned, gave a splendid exhibition and they were very well received. The sole, light-weight, and Dai Thomas, feather, were also successful.

Finished third on the list of competing countries, Russia was first, Finland second, and Germany a good fourth.

As a result of our four weeks experience in Soviet Russia we have learned much which will be useful to us in our task of developing a mass workers' sports movement in Great Britain.

sponsored by workers and peasants with the ideal of Socialism as their main support.

All these points we must keep in mind as we celebrate the eleventh anniversary of the Russian Revolution. The difficulties as well as the achievements, the danger of war, the need for a strong working class revolutionary movement to assure more anniversary celebrations, not only of the Russian revolution but also of the German, the French, the British, the American revolutions.

L. D. Plans Protest Meet Against Fascist Terror in Webster Manor Sunday, Nov. 11

WORKERS WILL IT BRUTALITY OF TWO MURDERS

Also to Commemorate Haymarket Victims

A mass meeting to protest against the fascist terror in Italy and the United States will be held Sunday, Nov. 11, at 2 p. m., at Webster Manor, 125 E. 11th St., under the auspices of the New York section of the International Labor Defense, 799 Broadway, and the Anti-Fascist Alliance of North America.

The meeting will particularly protest against the latest acts of violence of Mussolini's international error machine; the execution in Italy of Della Maggiore, Italian Communist, and the shooting of two anti-fascist workers during a black-race parade in Detroit on Columbus Day. One of the workers, Tony Barra, recently died as a result of his wounds and the other, Angelo Centricia, is confined in a prison hospital in a critical state.

Since the mass meeting is being held Nov. 11, the anniversary of the execution of the Haymarket martyrs, it will also commemorate this historic American frame-up. Well-known speakers will address the meeting.

know the class struggle in the West. The Western Federation of Miners was born in jail and we are proud of its birth." In 1905 the Western Federation of Miners affiliated with the Industrial Workers of the World, organized in that year. Haywood became the chairman of the first convention.

Later while leading a strike of the western miners he was kidnapped and spirited into the state of Idaho and there framed on the charge of murdering the ex-governor of that state, Steenbergh. The present Senator William Borah, was the prosecutor who attempted to send Haywood to the gallows.

Throughout his career Haywood was continually being arrested for his leadership of militant strikes, such as the Lawrence textile strike of 1912. A bitter opponent of the imperialist world war, Haywood was arrested on Nov. 3, 1917, together with other leaders of the I. W. W. and later sentenced by Judge Landis to twenty years in prison.

Joined Workers Party.
Before his departure for the Soviet Union in 1920, Haywood joined the Communist Party of America, recognizing his former syndicalist errors, and in Russia he was a member of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union. In Russia Haywood worked for the International Red Aid (Mop) and in the closing year of his life completed his autobiography. It will be issued this month by the International Publishers.

The urn containing Haywood's ashes will be displayed in a meeting hall in New York, to be announced within a few days. Enroute to Chicago meetings will be held in several large cities.

FIGHT PILSUDSKI BAND IN LEMBERG

Police Shoot Ukraina Autonomists

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 2.—Fighting in Lemberg between Ukrainian students, protesting against the Polish regime in Western Ukraina, and highly reactionary Polish students has resulted in the wounding of 80 persons and the arrest of 80 Ukrainian students, the Polish press reported today.

The fighting began Wednesday night when the Polish government celebrated the Polish defense of the town against the revolutionary Ukrainian troops. In the fight which ensued the Ukrainian students poured ink over one statue celebrating the overthrow of the Ukrainian government in Lemberg.

The fighting was renewed Thursday morning near St. George's Cathedral. Three hundred shots were exchanged and ten policemen and Ukrainians were wounded.

At 7 p. m. Thursday, the reactionary Polish students in alliance with the police attacked the Ukrainian student dormitories. Police fired 100 shots and the students retaliated, with the result that 30 students and 18 policemen were wounded.

During that night bands of armed fascists attacked Ukrainian centers and police began to make mass arrests. Police surrounded 60 Ukrainian students who were holding a meeting and arrested all of them.

Eleventh Anniversary of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics

Eleven years ago the red flag of proletarian revolution was raised in triumph over the ruins of the Russian czar's empire.

We celebrate the anniversary of November 7, 1917. We celebrate the concrete realization within one enormous country, nearly three times the size of this one in which we live, of the hopes and plans of the conscious sections of the working class of the whole world during the past hundred years. We celebrate the founding of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics which is rightfully regarded by every conscious, sincere, intelligent worker in every land of the earth as the Socialist Fatherland.

The revolutionary state of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics is the strong right arm of the working class of the world in its class struggle against the capitalist class of the world.

The proletarian revolution has won its great stronghold not by "lucky chance," but by the most courageous action, incredible sacrifice and skillful use of the science of proletarian revolution. The Bolshevik (Communist) Party under the leadership of Lenin continued and developed the revolutionary science and courage of Marx and Engels despite all of the corrupting influences of the agents of the capitalist class in the labor movement. When the "leaders" of the international socialist movement in 1924 betrayed the workers of all countries by making themselves the agents of the imperialist general staffs, the Bolshevik Party alone remained true to revolutionary Marxian traditions and thus was able to lead the successful revolution.

Without the revolutionary Bolshevik (Communist) Party there could not be today a territory covering one-sixth of the surface of the globe under the red flag of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

But as the revolution is the international revolution, so the revolutionary party is the international party of the working class of the entire world. The victory of the revolution in Russia, clearing the minds of the advanced workers of all countries, was followed by the firm establishment of the revolutionary party of Marx and Lenin in all lands of the world.

No longer can intelligent, sincere workers be made to believe in the lying words that defend capitalist "democracy" against proletarian democracy. The successful revolution has indelibly imprinted on the pages of history the fact that the construction of Socialism cannot be begun under the rule of the capitalist class and the establishment of the working class as the ruling class, can the building of the socialist system begin.

The new socialist order is being built up in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. The tremendous industrial development, accompanied by the simultaneous process of socialization, blasts all the arguments of enemies of the Soviet system. Such attacks come under two heads: (1) that economic life in the Soviet Union is paralyzed, and (2) that capitalism is being re-established.

The data available on this eleventh anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution shows that within the past year all expectations have been surpassed.

Heavy industry, which last year surpassed the pre-war level, has since made tremendous strides forward. Most significant as indicating the solid foundation on which industry is being built is the rapid development of those industries engaged in producing machinery of production. This guarantees the freedom of the Soviet Union from dependence upon the capitalist world for its machinery of production.

The great electrification projects, first launched by Lenin, have gone forward at a tremendous pace, until electricity has penetrated many of the remotest sections, with gigantic power stations dotting the country.

The oil industry has passed through a veritable technical revolution. Especially in the Baku district the equipment for producing oil is equal to the highest American standards.

Simultaneous with the great revolution in industry proceeds the agricultural revolution. One of the outstanding characteristics of the industrial revolution is the production of agricultural machinery which has surpassed by more than three times the pre-war level. As Comrade Bukharin says in an article, "Before the Eleventh Anniversary of the October Revolution:"

"The technical and economic revolution is penetrating the villages. It is supporting and developing the cooperative associations of the peasantry. It has already sent 30,000 tractors into the fields and steppes of our country, and the tractor workers, these fighting troops of technical revolution, are no longer rare guests in the most backward and truly barbaric regions of our union. For the first time the steam plough penetrates the soil of the Ukrainian steppes, the land of the cossacks and the banks of the Volga."

In place of the old anarchy of capitalist production, wherein there is a wide gap between industrial and agricultural development, we see in the Soviet Union the magnificent results of a correct co-ordination of the various spheres of production, a dynamic economic equilibrium as a result of conscious planning of the whole national economy.

When we further consider the fact that the rehabilitation of all other European countries was attained with the aid of billions of American investment capital, and that the Soviet Union, boycotted by the capitalist world, had to depend upon its own resources, we get some idea of the mighty strides forward that have been made by the Bolshevik government in the land formerly ruled by the czars.

So also have the attainments of the eleven years of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics given the lie to the prophets of the lost faith—to those wavering "leaders" who lose faith in the creative powers of the working class and who whisper to the workers that socialism cannot be built up in one country. That the upbuilding of socialism in one country is impossible, is the verdict of history.

Neither those who seek to mobilize the dregs of pessimism, those who wish to find their way out of the Party of Lenin and thus out of the struggle—neither they nor the traitors of the Hillquit-Berger-Reverend Thomas "socialist" party can successfully face the glaring light of proof of the attainments in the establishment of the socialism in our Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. No cries of "degeneration" of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, and no cries of "red imperialism" can quench the fires of the working class' determination to defend our Socialist Fatherland to the last drop of blood. None can stop mounting tide of leadership of the Communist International, the worldwide Party of Marx and Lenin.

The great Chinese Revolution has, at the same time, despite all temporary checks, given the lie to those servants of capitalism who wail that the period of revolution has "passed."

The imperialist world war is gathering its clouds. The bloody cataclysm will break over the heads of a working class that is no longer so weakly prepared as it was in the "rehearsal" war of 1914-1918. This coming and greater imperialist world war will find the working class entrenched with its Red Army in one-sixth of the entire land of the world. It will find the revolutionary Party of the proletariat grown to a giant, matured in experience, learned in scientific revolutionary wisdom. It will find a tremendous change in this: that the proletarian movement, now under revolutionary leadership, flows together with a mighty torrent of colonial revolt against the imperialists. Imperialist war between nations will again be transformed into a civil war between classes, the struggle of the exploited proletarians in capitalist countries together with the exploited peoples of suppressed nations, colonial and semi-colonial peoples, to overthrow the bloody rule of capitalism and to establish the rule of the exploited.

The Workers (Communist) Party of America is the American section of the Communist International. It is the Party of Marx and Lenin. Generated in the crucible of class struggle in the country ruled by the most brutal, ruthless and powerful capitalist class in the world, our Party has already gone through experiences that have made it worthy of the confidence of the working class as the working class' organ of leadership. Already the working class of this country has succeeded in creating its party of leadership in the class struggle. Already that Party has reached that stage of development

ELEVEN YEARS AFTER

Hoover, the Valet of Wall Street

By EVE DORF.

Hoover is being sold to the American masses as a "humanitarian," a sample of the altruist in politics, with broad sympathies and interest. His relief record is boasted of by his campaign managers. An examination of this record, however, shows that Hoover has used his relief work for capitalist purposes and against the working class to a criminal degree.

As Chairman of the Committee for Relief in Belgium, Hoover, while pretending relief, combined it with a poisonous war-mongering propaganda and for Allied imperialism. He was a splendid advance agent for "Black Jack" Pershing.

As Food Administrator, from 1917 to 1919, and a member of the Supreme Economic Council, he has the distinction (from the point of view of his capitalist masters) of starving the populations of the smaller nations into submission to the demands of American imperialism. Obedience to American orders was made the price everywhere, of relief. During the armistice, Hoover directed the "humane work" of organizing food supplies for Poland, Czechoslovakia, Austria, and the Baltic States.

During this work, he deliberately used his position to starve the workers and peasants of Hungary, thereby becoming a most important factor in the overthrowing of the Workers' Soviet Republic of Hungary. Hoover also withheld food supplies from other nations until they agreed to wage war against the Hungarian revolution. For years thereafter, Hoover and other members of his infamous "relief expedition," boasted of their part in destroying the Hungarian workers' and peasants' government.

Even in the terrible Mississippi flood, Hoover took advantage of the stricken victims to force a loan on the population for New Orleans bankers. Instead of direct government aid to rehabilitate the section, Hoover saw to it that long term loans were made, mortgaging these sections to the bankers. He never committed himself on the question as to whether the federal government could have prevented such disasters, what must be done to prevent such disasters in the future, and whether the government should stand on the cost of relief. Hoover's "humane" work has been of great service to his masters, the bankers.

The republicans and Hoover have a complete indifference to the farm problem. Coolidge, whom we are asked to endorse, Coolidge, whose program Hoover says he will continue, vetoed all the relief measures proposed by the farmers. The republican administration never gave any consideration to them, even though they were very adequate and did not touch the heart of the problem. Hoover's record shows service where every important struggle of the workers in several years has, with few exceptions, been led by the Workers (Communist) Party. That Party is now facing the national elections with a growth and influence that has made it possible to place our revolutionary working class candidates on the ballot in thirty-four states. It participates in the capitalist elections only to mobilize and train the working class in the class struggle, not spreading illusions of liberation to be attained through the channels of capitalist "democracy," but openly declaring in the words of Marx:

"The Communist's disdain to conceal their views and aims. They openly declare that the Eastern industrialists and bankers at the expense of the farmers. Hoover kept prices of farm products down during the war, to the ruin of the farmers. He was responsible for the farm expansion policy during

PROLETARIAN RED ARMY AND THE WAR DANGER

Moscow, U. S. S. R. AT the close of the Red Army maneuvers, Comrade Voroshilov delivered a speech in the town Soviet at Kiev, expressing on behalf of the revolutionary war council cordial thanks to the Kiev proletariat for the brotherly reception given to the Red troops. The feeling of the proletariat for the Red Army was well shown today, when the path of the returning troops was strewn with flowers.

Comrade Voroshilov dealt with the international situation and the Soviet Union. The relations between the Soviet Union and its near-by neighbors have become strained of late years. The relations to Rumania have not improved in the least. We have had a number of severe conflicts with Poland, and only the persistently peaceful measures taken by our government have relieved the strain. The working masses of the whole world have frequently had the opportunity of convincing themselves that the avoidance of an armed conflict with Poland is solely due to our consistent peace policy.

Comrade Voroshilov added a number of facts showing that in the capitalist countries certain strata dream of an intervention against the Soviet Union. The action taken by the Volhynian voyevode Yusefsky is the best proof that our neighbors, only 200 km distant from us and working in cities inhabited by Ukrainian working people, have visions of the transformation of the Soviet Ukraine into a Ukraine under the protectorate of Poland. Yusefsky is not the only one who dreams of the overthrow of the Soviet power in Ukraine. Others too cherish this dream, and dreaming is not prohibited. But the supposition that a state with 40 million inhabitants cannot realize its independence except under the protectorate of Poland, is not dreaming, but deliberate preparation for an intervention. We are aware that the Soviet Ukraine has always been the main object of desire of the aggressive tendencies prevalent in both the diplomatic and military circles of Poland. The fact that a so-called Ukrainian government exists on Polish soil, doubtless aided by the Polish state treasury in its zealous efforts or the "emancipation" of Ukraine, shows that the Polish dignitaries will not be content to dream, but will attempt the realization of their dream.

War Danger in Peace Pact. Comrade Voroshilov pointed out that the relations between the Soviet Union and Germany have improved. He further explained the reason why the Soviet Union had signed the Kellogg pact. Had the Soviet Union refused to sign, a pre-text would have been supplied to all bourgeois governments and the whole capitalist press for a campaign of incitement against the Soviet Union, and we should have been accused of "red imperialism." The Soviet government, deciding to sign the pact, has cut the ground from under the feet of all those who speculate on the legend of Red imperialism. It demonstrates thereby at the same time its sincere will to peace. The Kellogg pact, though of course entirely incapable of preventing war in any way, possesses a certain significance for the immediate future in so far as it restricts the possibilities of open preparations for war and armed attacks. The Kellogg pact is to a certain extent a moral obligation imposed on the bourgeois governments in their relations to the broad masses. It must however be emphasized that the clauses added to the pact by the imperialist powers greatly reduce its value. Here again we see plainly the war danger with which the Soviet Union is threatened.

No one can guarantee that the Soviet Union will not be attacked. Therefore we are forced to expend certain sums for the maintenance of the army. The Soviet Union would be more than pleased to devote these sums to peaceful construction. But so long as we have no security that the Soviet Union will not be attacked, it is our duty to expend the means at our disposal to the best purpose.

Oil and the Imperialists in Mexico

(Continued.) Another phase of the war against Mexico is the aid American imperialists are giving to the clerical reaction and the landowners—as evidenced by American arms found in the hands of the Catholics, by the public collections for the church, made in the U. S. All this proves that the U. S. would like to establish in Mexico a reactionary government favoring Yankee imperialism.

Towards the Right. The Mexican government is marching with all haste towards the right. As an immediate consequence of the accelerated pressure of the U. S. over our government, this "pull" to the right is evident in all public acts. The metropolitan press speaks shamelessly of the establishment of a "right" government, of liquidating agrarian reforms, of yielding to the demands of the church. The majorities of both houses of congress are composed of right elements and the same can be said of the generals of the army.

The Obregon bloc has lost whatever "petit-bourgeois" aspect it may have had and has converted itself into an open tool of the reaction and the agrarian bourgeoisie. It is unquestionable that once in power Obregon would have established a military dictatorship—the famous "strong government" for which the reaction and American imperialism has so long been striving. Obregon dead, this process towards a "strong government" develops with greater rapidity—with no attempt on the part of the group in power to cover up its betrayals of revolutionary principles. Reaction lifts its head! The memorial of the 139 Catholics to congress is the sign of a new offensive against the petty bourgeoisie and the establishment of a government of the reaction.

A reactionary congress will not elect a revolutionary president—that is obvious. The new president will be an instrument of this reaction and of American capital.

The Position of Calles. General Calles has placed himself between the sword and the wall. His speech at the opening of congress has nothing to do with the real situation. To make a philosophical dissertation on democracy and against personal leadership, to preach morality to an assembly not 10 per cent of which was elected by democratic proceedings—to speak of the "harmony among the revolutionary family" at the very moment when this "great family" is shattered to bits, to preach peace and tolerance while the reaction is preparing an attack against the government in broad daylight—is something which can be done only by one prepared to fool himself and to betray others.

This speech of Calles is the swan song of the petty bourgeoisie, which after twenty years of struggle is abandoning the field to the rights.

Soto y Gama and Morones. In the agrarian actions the divisions between the right and left progresses very rapidly. Soto y Gama, the traditional leader of the national agrarian party, has become the defender of the agrarian bourgeoisie and the large landowning interests, thus betraying the aspirations of thousands of peasants fallen in the fight for land. The national agrarian party is fast becoming a political cadaver which sooner or later the reaction itself will enter.

Who speaks today of reparation of land? On the contrary, they speak of returning the land to the former owners. The lands which for years have been worked and improved by the peasants of the agrarian communes will be the price with which the reaction and imperialism will buy the generals and political chiefs such as Soto y Gamas and Cox.

Who speaks today of arming the peasants? On the contrary. They speak of taking their arms away from them, to prevent them from impeding the transfer of power to the landed and clerical reaction.

The "agrarian" Soto y Gama now has nothing to do with the agrarian movement. The true agrarians—the peasants of the revolution, must throw out of their midst those who speak of peace with the enemy—those revolutionists of yesterday who today are landowners themselves and the allies of the reaction.

The leading group of the Mexican labor party and the leading group of the Mexican Federation of Labor (CROM) are one and the same. The director of both groups—the political boss—is Luis N. Morones.

In reality there is no difference between Soto y Gama and Morones. One is the agent of the agrarian bourgeoisie among the peasant masses; while the other is the agent of the industrial bourgeoisie and Yankee imperialism among the masses of the workers. The struggle between these two men is the struggle of two dogs over the same bone. If Soto y Gama has betrayed the peasant masses, Morones has betrayed the working class. If Soto y Gama is today a large landowner, Morones is a partner in oil companies and owner of much real estate. If Soto y Gama urges peace with the land barons, Morones preaches peace with the industrialists. The face of Soto y Gama is the face of Morones. It does not matter that one is thin and the other is fat—the face of all bet-ayers of the cause of the proletariat—the social revolution—is the same.

Buncoed the Farmers. Senator Borah said in 1919, (before he became such a loud supporter of Hoover) that during the control of the Food Administration of Hoover, Hoover was urging the farmers to raise more and more, promising them a stabilized price which they never got. At the same time, the monopoly private food interests were receiving 25 to 40 per cent on their investment. George Soule, in the New Republic, December 1917, holds Hoover directly responsible for the maximum (low) price of wheat on account of which the farmers have been so hard hit. In his platform and speeches, Hoover does not give even promises to the farmer. He does not touch the problem basically. He does not consider the problem of farm surplus, the driving of the farmers off the land, the exploitation of the farmer by capitalists and bankers. The farmers have nothing to hope for from Hoover and the republican party.

Hoover and Water Power. The giant power trust divides its campaign contributions between republican and democratic parties because both represent its interests, because either party in power will protect their profits and help them to increase them.

Big power men are prominent figures in both capitalist parties. The republicans who link power and politics are numerous. There is, first of all, Andrew Mellon, who has an unequalled position in public utilities. Mellon interests have power assets of over $270,000,000. Edmund Machold, republican chairman in New York State, is an official of power companies. He is president of the Northeastern Power Co., vice-president of the Power Co. of New York, vice-president of the Northern New York Utilities Co.

Roy West, Secretary of the Interior, is an intimate associate of the notorious Insull of Chicago, who is a great power magnate. West has large holdings in the Insull power companies. Insull has been leader in the power propaganda in the New England schools. West is interested in many power companies.

Ortinger, the republican candidate for governor of New York, was a member of the State Power Commission, which tried to give the water power rights to private power companies. Colonel Finney, Senator Lenroot, Ransom, George Cortelyou and many other prominent republican figures are deeply connected with the power trust. Two employees of Hoover's Commerce Department are now officials of big power companies.
