

of unemployed. This National Hunger March is a history making event in the struggles of the toiling masses against their ruling class oppressors It is more than a mere struggle for bread and unemployment insurance. To the exploited and oppressed toilers, it is a decisive turn in the historic road c labor struggles to mark the beginning of compulsory recognitin by the bourgeoisie of the power of organized labor and the might of the organized unemployed, under militant and revolutionary leadership. The march will be a rude awakening to the entire capitalist class and their politicians. Before them will appear the representatives of the 12 million jobless and the 40 million persons without the slightest means of Wilhood. The mighty army of the unemployed and employed have confidence in these delegates to deliver. But the struggle for life and existence is not left entirely to the 1,200 delegates. Every worker and workingclass organization owes it to his class to give able assistance to make the march a tremendous success. It affords an opportunity to build a powerful unemployed movement-build block committees, unemployed branches and councils, relief stations and local hunger marches.

Continue the Fight of Comrade Ronald Edwards

THE Daily Worker has learned with sorrow of the death of Comrade Ronald Edwards, member of the National Executive Committee of the Young Communist League. Comrade Edwards, by his unreleating fight in the interests of the unity of white and Negro workers, has earned a high place for himself in the list of those who have given their all for the working class.

His death must be the occasion for a renewal of our pledge to struggle even more sharply than before against the entire system of capitalist covression and Jim Crow discrimination to which Comrade Edwards fell a victim. The Daily Worker knows that the work which Comrade Edwards carried on in the short time that he belonged to the Young Communist League will be intensified a thousandfold by the working youth who look upon the death of Edwards as a call to action, as a spur to complete what Comrade Edwards has left undone

National Textile Workers Union Will Call On Workers to Strike Against Cut

LAWRENCE, Mass., Nov. 11.-The Boston Herald this morning in announcing the wage cut of 10 per cent for 20,000 New Bedford cotton mill workers on December 7th, states that the American Federation of Labor and the United Textile Workers Union and the New Bedford Executive Council announces, "Investigation by union leaders has disclosed that the manufacturers' claim of general reductions in competing centers are founded on fact." These workers won't have to worry any more about the vicious wage-cuts and starvation campaign launched against us here by the capitalists. It would be easy for them to forget about their less fortunate American comrades.

But the donations they collect for the Daily show that they don't forget. The donations show that they realize that the proletariat of the entire world must keep united if the capitalists are to be swept out not only of Russia but of the entire world

So we are happy to print this letter from a group of workers on board the steamship Frederick VIII who are on their way to the Soviet Union. "Enclosed herewith," the letter goes, you will find a money order for 29.30, which we collected for the Daily Worker on board the steamship Frederick VIII. We are a group of about 85 workers that are going to the Soviet Union. We called a mass meeting on board the ship, at which more than 200 people were present. Our purpose was to tell them why we are going to the Soviet Union. The meeting was very sucessful and ended with questions and ussions, and, of course, we didn't orget our Daily, so here are the few dollars.' OAKLAND AFFAIR.

The Journal of Commerce yesterday carried a dispatch from Washington, in which it was stated:

The American capitalist press yesterday came out more openly in support of Japan. The New York Eve-

HOW?

Yesterday morning traders on the New York Stock Exchange heard a rumor that Japan had declared war on China. At such news of disaster one would think that stocks would go down. Not at all. Stocks went up. So did bonds. So did silver, by leaps and bounds. So did other commodities that have sulked at a low level for many months. In other words, war in the Far East, if Mr. Stimson does not drag us into it, means business recovery in America. It would be good news, not bad news. What, we wonder, are the abolitionists of war going to do about that? How are they going to convince man-kind that war is wholly bad, when the mere rumor of it brings to 120,-000,000 the conviction of nationa prosperity?

With Japan rushing reinforcement to Manchuria, with Japanese troop already in Manchuria moving northward and setting up new puppet gov ernments, seizing revenues, murdering Chinese peasants, the Washington government is reported in a dispatch to the New York Times as indicating "that reports from Japan and China were brighter." Inexorable and pitiless, world capitalism is moving into another and more terrible World War. Already the capitalist press is trying to make it appear that it will be "far away" and to make workers believe that it will only "give them jobs."

These hellish ghouls lie! The whole world and its entire population-you here in America -will feel the iron heel of military autocracy a thousand times more than in the last warwhich many of you do not remember.

"What will happen? What will I do?" These questions run through the brain of every worker who can foresee only vaguely if at all the storm of blood and carnage confronting his class.

The following article is the first of a series (compiled by the Social and Economic Dept. of the Red International of Labor Unions) which give in clear outline, the forecast of what war will bring, the conditions that will ensue and the historic developments that will mark the transformation of the capitalist war into civil war, developments in which every worker will find it necessary to act as an agent of that transformation. Let all understand, then, that the developments which are today but forecasts, will tomorrow be grim realitieswhich must be faced .--- Editor.

ARTICLE 1.

THE characteristic features of future warfare, which are already becoming more or less clear, can be summed up, fundamentally, as follows:

1. Far-reaching changes have taken place in military technology, due partly to the appearance and development of completely new armaments and partly to the tremendous quantitative growth and concentrated action of the older armaments. The scope and scale of this development has been so significant that the great increase in general armaments has opened up new and wider fields of action.

All these new developments in military technology have their roots in the changes that have occurred in the running and organizing of industry, although in many cases they are forging ahead of them and are becoming their clearest and most perfect embodiment.

These new features can be seen in the tendencies known as mass production, mechanization, development of automatic appliances, standardization and simplification, developments in the chemical world, and the tremendous development and application of internal combustion engines on all transport services, etc. All these industrial developments during the so-called rationalization period are having a profound effect on all spheres of war and military preparations.

As in the rationalization of industry, the tendency is to increase to a maximum "productivity of labor," that is, to increase as far as possible "production" (read in the present case, corpses and devastation) without increasing the personnel.

The outstanding development is to be seen in the fact that, to a greater extent than the World War of 1914-18, the war of the future will be, so to speak, an example of "mass production" with an unprecedented grouping of basic capital and concentration of myriads of machines and engipes of war.

Expense of War

2. Present-day military developments are distinguished from their counter-part in industry in that war knows to capitalist "over-production." War provides, in itself, an almost insatiable market limited, theoretically, by the exhaustion of everything that can still destroy and exterminate.

The expense of war is covered not merely by with a grinding down of living standards to a minimum and increased exploitation of the working masses, but places a grievous burden on future generations. In war time there is a constant lack of armaments, ammunition, etc.; there is no "surplus" production, no "over-development" of the industrial apparatus, which is such a prominent feature of modern capitalism. 3. Hence, mechanization, rationalization and other similar developments in war technology do not during war lead (as observed in capitalist industry today in the chief countries) to a reduction of the absolute quantity of "labor power" used, e. g., the warring armies, but, on the contrary, no matter what increased "productivity" is shown by each individual soldier or group of soldiers, this growth tends to increase the quantity of armaments and, consequently, the manpower engaged.

In spite of all the theories (and many of the hopes and illusions of the automobile, aviation, chemical and other "Fullerisis" (refertheory of a writer named Fuller, who tries to make war "pleasant" by saving it will be fought by machines, and not by men) the wars of the future will be mass wars on a greater scale than the war of 1914-1918, for the whole of the ablebodied population will be involved.

4. The mass wars of the future will require a great apparatus, and, first and foremost, mass production with supply, transport and communications organized on a similar scale.

This apparatus is of necessity so closely interwoven in the very fabric of the whole national economy that one can truly say that they are insolubly merged.

The whole of the able-bodied adult population will be called upon to shoulder arms. All will be involved, women, juniors, invalids and wounded men who have recovered; while various groups of "irreplaceable" highly skilled workers will be employed on war supplies in the factories, in the counting houses, in agriculture and transport. In the wars of the future such work for war needs will not only be considered just as important as the actual fighting at the front, but if anything will be considered even more important as having a decisive bearing on the outcome of the war.

Mobilization of Industry.

From the military point of view there is hardly any substantial difference between a soldier handling his rifle and the worker or woman worker employed producing the rifle or the raw materials, semi-manufactures, fuel and food supply, etc., essential for the prosecution of war. The breakdown of any of these services will, one and all, benefit the enemy who is therefore out to drive his advantage home.

As we know, the very character of military operations (especially when waged by means of air-craft, submarine, chemistry and bacteriology) will strike the "peaceful" population just as hard as the men in the front lines. Today, the "peaceful" population can be "got at" and destroyed despite all the barriers set up, no matter how well-equipped, in spite of all the fronts.

The line of the demarcation between the army and the civil population which several military experts frankly admitted had "been worn dangerously thin during the last war," will be practically completely wiped away during the war of the future, for war operations will inevitably involve every family, every economic unit, every individual.

The significance of what bourgeois writers call the "moral" condition of the troops and population, is therefore clear. All progressive military experts now include the "general mood" and other "imponderables" in the so-called "potentials" of war, regarding this to be one of the most important factors.

better what the tasks and achievements of their Russian brothers are, the Kharkov workers, through their revolutionary union invited the foreign correspondents of the British and the American "Daily Worker" to take part in the celebration.

We arrive at the plant. Endless lines of men. women and children, carrying banners, singing, march to the entrance of the great Giant. Overhead two Soviet aeroplanes soar, dropping the revolutionary poet's greeting to the Kharkov works. The rain pours down. The rich earth of Ukrainia gives off rivers of black mud. Yet the workers, unheeding, stand pressed together, listening eagerly to Petrovsky, chairman of the Central Committee of the Soviet Union and of the Central Committee of the Ukraine, to the Red director of the tractor works: a Moscow worker, and others. Greetings are read from Stalin who hails the Kharkov plant in the name of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union as "an example of real Bolshevik tempo." The "International" is sung, again and again.

As I study the alert, rain-splashed faces of the mass pressed around the stand I recall workers in the United States also standing packed together in the rain, listening intently. The look on their faces was far different from this. For they were unemployed workers, grown desperate from hunger, coal miners striking against ellon's rule of starvation In cani America, misery, sullen shame, a growing revolt on the face of the workers. .In workers' Russia, a look of confidence, a sense of comradeship, which is based on the truth that Stalin recently expressed-"Labor in our country today is an honor.

THE STRUGGLE OF THE JOB-LESS WORKERS IN NEW KENSINGTON, PA.

By REBECCA GRECHT

THE struggle of the unemployed workers in New Kensington and Arnold has given striking evidence of the militant mood, the rising spirit of resistance of the masses of workers suffering under the intolerable burden of unemployment and wage-cuts.

The twin boroughs of New Kensington and Arnold constitute the principal industrial center of the Alleghenv Valley-scene of turbulent battle in the recent strike of 40.000 coal miners in Western Pennsylvania. Blacklisted and unemployed miners, driven out of the mines surrounding New Kensington, form a large part of the population. Here also is the home of Mellon's American Aluminum Company, which presented its workers, whose living standards had already fallen heavily through part-time employment and indirect wage reductions, with a 10 per cent

"Vote For Me"

A little picture of how much "above" the workers are the capitalist politicians, was given us by Helen Kay, who sent in an election campaign circular issued by a capitalist candidate for County Commissioner in Washington County, Pa., where the most brutal strike-breaking tool place.

This candidate, J. W. Manon, addresses "Mr. Taxpayer," and gives his program, beginning with: "A safe, conservative business administration," and "repairs on improved roads," down to "taxes be reduced" and "no increase of bonded indebtedness."

What did it matter that two women of Avella Pa., died in childbirth because they were too weak and starved to bear child-and the babies also died! No, "a safe and conservative administration" that would not raise taxes on the coal companies to feed these starving mothers of babes starved to death in their mothers' wombs Great gods!

"One was a Negro working class mother, whose miner husband worked in the P. & W. mine of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company, which was under control of the United Mine Workers of America, the A. F. of L. company union, for 90 days-long enough to break the strike. Then it was closed down and the miners are starving." writes Helen Kay.

But what does that mean to a capitalist polltician? Less than nothing! "A County Commissioner should be a business man," said he! Meaning, "A County Commissioner should be a rattlesnake, that is, a servant of the coal operators against the workers!"

Well, we . . . No, we give up! We're too mad to speak! . . . .

Mobilized God For War

It has already begun, both the war and the mobilization. In New York on Sunday, Nov. 8, a parade of decidedly military nature went up Fifth Avenue, and ended with the ceremony called "massing of the colors" in the "Church of the Heavenly Rest" in its "Chapel of the Beloved Disciple."

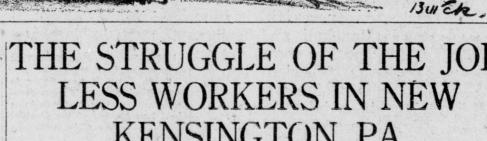

Very splendiforous! The printed program we have bristles with a row of Brigadier Generals and Rear Admirals, sandwiched in between Reverends and prayers. Oh, yes, all led by the N. Y. Police Band. It was a sight for ante-diluvian eyes!

And ears! Inside the House of the Prince of Peace there arose the alarms of war! War is coming, 'twas admitted, even boasted. And the is "inevitable"-take due note you doubters! This from the pastor who opened the war cry with a prayer:

"Almighty God, our heavenly Father, guide, we beseech Thee, the Nations of the world unte the way of justice and truth, and establish among them that peace which is the fruit of righteousness . . ." etc.

At the same time the Japanese Shintoists were dropping shells into Tientsin, Briand was dodging between publicly "insisting on peace" and privately inciting war, and Stimson was cheering on Japan to attack the Soviet Union but advising U.S. Troops in China not to let the Japanese grab what Wall Street wants in China.

Rear Admiral W. W. Phelps lectured on how ornery some people use the Stars and Stripes, but failed to say that on the printed program itself the flag was faced right instead of left as according to divine military instruction, and had only 45 stars.

has been especially significant for the whole of Western Pennsylvania, where the growing influence of the Communist Party and the revolutionary unions - the National Miners Union and the Metal Workers Industrial League, as well as the developing movement of the unemployed -has led to a sharpening terror against the entire revolutionary movement, expressing itself in raids on local Communist headquarters, the imprisonment of active leaders of the National Miners Union, the breaking up of meetings of the unemployed and the Communist Party. The nethod of struggle against capitalist terror in New Kensington and Arnold has demonstrated that only mass actions, mass protests, mass mobilization of the workers for immediate counterattack can check this attempt of the steel and coal trusts to prevent struggle against wage-cuts and for unemployment relief by crushing the eadership of the workers-the Co munist. # Steel Horses tor the Soviet Ukraine

SECOND TRACTOR GIANT OF THE FIVE- YEAR PLAN By MYRA PAGE.

Foreign Correspondent of the American "DAILY WORKER."

KHARKOV, October 1.-As delegates from all parts of the Soviet Union pour into Kharkov, capitol of the Ukraine, they find the city busy with the last preparations for tomorrow's celebration. Everywhere banners are up, life-size posters of red tractors climb the sides of public buildings. The faces of Lenin, Stalin, and other leaders gaze down on the happy populace surging through the streets. Everyone is in an expectant, holiday mood. The rain drizzles, but it makes little difference. For tomorrow, the first of October will bring forth the fruits of fiteen months of intensive mass labor. For tomorrow, t'is first of October will bring forth the fruits of fifteen months of intensive mass labor. Tomorrow will witness the opening of Kharkov's monster tracter works, one of the Giants of the Five-Year Plan.

In the public square across from where we are staying a group of workmen are busily rearing a huge wooden structure. Their hammers ring far into the night. By morning their task is completed. A gigantic peasant now rides his tractor through the square while in front of him strides the powerful figure of a worker, leadin' the way towards socialism and a new life. That is what the tractor plant means for Ukrainia's toiling millions-the greatest advance on sccialism that they have made since they drove out the last of the enemy troops and set up their own Soviet Republic. The Civil War over, the workers found they had to take up the fight on a new front. They had won freedom from their oppressors, now they must put an end to their country's poverty and build factories and railroads. Millions of Ukrainian peasants still tilling the soil with wooden plows, each for himself. and living like beasts, must be turned from their old ways. They must learn to live and work the land collectively. This meant farm machinery, tractors, "steel horses" to work the

So, fifteen months ago the Kharkov Tractor Cant was begun. From the very beginning there were many difficulties. The first question was where to get the necessary labor? For this plant which was to cover six square miles and procluce 50,000 tractors a year, was but one of 518 new plants being built during the third year of the Five-Year Plan of Socialist construction. Under the Czar there had been few skilled worke.s. the overwhelming majority of the toiling population had remained ignorant peasants. A nucleus of skilled workers, among them a hundred Communists, was recruited from the Don Bas coal region, from Moscow and Leningrad workshops. The rest of the 20,000 builders were raw peasants straight from the land who had never been inside a factory, nor seen a tractor. Many of them came to work with the one idea of saving enough to buy a horse, and then returning to the village. The Communist workers at the plant had to work day and night not only at laying bricks and rearing walls but also in enlightening the backward villagers as to the great significance of the Kharkov plant. The raw workers unwittingly spoiled materials. There were other difficulties. Oftentimes building supplies gave out, and precious hours had to be wasted until fresh supplies arrived. Rainy weather gave way to snow and biting cold. Yet bit by bit the plant grew. The best workers organized themselves into shock brigades, to storm the difficulties, train the less skilled, and get the plant ready in record time. Detachments from the Red Army, groups of young Comsomols came on their free days to help in the work. Then the enemies of socialist construction, especiallythe rich peasants who realized that the coming of steel horses and collective farms spelled the doom of their tyranny in the villages, decided to do their worst. In the night they set fire to the tractor giant. Another time they cut all the electric wires.

Nevertheless, due to the workers' untiring determination and their splendid collective labor, the Kharkov plant was finished on schedule, and its light, spacious sheds equipped with the latest machinery, also a model socialist city to house the 16,000 workers who will man the plant was near completion.

Now it was October first 1931. At last the Kharkov tractor workers are able to present to the Ukrainian toilers ,and to the entire Soviet Union their outstanding contribution to the fulfillment of the Five-Year Plan. They have invited six hundred delegates to celebrate the assembling of the first tractor with them-workers from Stalingrad, Moscow, Leningrad, the Don Bas, members of collective farms, government officials, scientists, a revolutionary poet, and representatives from the Red Army detachments which aided in the work. Also because the Soviet workers know that they are building socialism not for themselves alone but for the workers of the entire world, and because they want the workers of America and other countires to understand

We enter the plant to see the first tractor assembled. The masses' enthusiasm reaches a high pitch, there is a tremendous push forward. "Comrades-comrades!" the guards warn. Order is quickly maintained, for Soviet toilers know how to discipline themselves.

The conveyor moves. A salute by the artillery, shouts of hurrah, singing of the "Internationale," and the first tractor, driven by the best shock brigade, Marusia Tugeva, comes off the conveyor. Every six minutes the Kharkov tractor giant will give forth a steel horse for the use of collective and state farms. Its yearly output of 50,000 tractors of the International Harvester type will match that of its brother plant at Stalingrad. The workers' socialist town growing up near the plant already has row on row of modern school where the youth will receive free ped with a large, free hospital, nurseries where working mothers can leave their children during the day, moving pictures, stores, theatres, and a modern schol where the youth will receive free hot lunches, shoes and warm clothing. The Trade Union, to which 87 per cent of the workers already belong, has set aside an initial sum of twenty thousand roubles for these free lunches in the school. (A ruble is about 52 cents). Another fifty thousand roubles has been assigned for mass cultural work. A huge community kitchen is being built which will serve 100,000 two-course meals a day at a cost of about 15 cents a person. Working a seven-hour day, with every fifth day a rest day, the 10,000 workers now employed at the plant, (which is not yet running to full capacity.) average from 200 to 250 rubles a month. Some of the best earn as high as 600 and 700 rubles. Among the high skilled are more than 130 foreign-born workers-Czechs, Germans, Americans and others.

The American workers, about whom I will write more later, are on the whole enthusiastic about life and work here. As one skilled fitter told us with a twinkle in his eye, "I worker for Ford for seventeen years in Detroit, but I'd never seen what I have now, since I've been here. What I admire most is the way everybody likes to work. You see, we have no boss. We work all together, like, for ourselves. That's the way it'll have to be in the United States, too, some day-all together, and no more boss.'

CORRECTION

In the Daily Worker of Wednesday, a mistake was made in the article on page 4 by A. Burov on "The Working Class in the U.S.S.R." in saying that "The entire functioning body of the Soviet trade unions consist of over 13,600,000 members." This should have been 3,600,000, the number of what are called "actives," among the total membership of 14,000,000 members.

wage-cut on October 1.

The campaign for immediate unemployment, relief begun under the leadership of the Communist Party and the Unemployed Council, met with immediate stirring response. Within one week, the workers of New Kensington were mobilized in the biggest demonstration at the Boro Council building the town had ever seen. The masses took possession of the streets, and compelled the Boro Council to listen to the demands of the committee of unemployed workers. During the week following, as it became clear that the movement was involving ever greater numbers of Negro and white workers, united in common struggle, the governing bodies of New Kensington and Arnold, dominated by the coal operators and the aluminum trust, commenced a policy of terror in their efforts to crush the unemployed workers and smash the Unemployed Council and the Communist Party.

A second demonstration for unemployment relief was brutally attacked by the police. For several hours the workers battled with the police. who, armed with tear gas bombs, clubs, and guns ready for action, failed to drive the workers off the streets. The headquarters of the Unemployed Council and the National Miners Union in New Kensington were boarded up. The headquarters of the Communist Party in Arnold were raided and three leading local Communists arrested. Threats of arrests, imprisonment, flooded the towns, and an atmosphere of sharpest terror was deliberately created in the attempt to disorganize the fighting ranks of the workers.

A significant feature of the attack upon the unemployed and the National Miners Union was the active participation of Governor Pinchot's state troopers. Thus, while Pinchot makes demagogic pledges for unemployed relief, his state troopers attack the unemployed workers when they demonstrate for bread and express their determination to fight for their demands.

The Communist Party and the Unemployed Council reacted immediately to these citacks with further mass mobilization of the workers in protest demonstrations both in New Kensington and Arnold, which became demonstrations of the workers of Allegheny Valley against the terror and for the .ight to organize and fight against unemployment and wage cuts. Through this action, the terror drive was checked, and the basis laid for developing a more intensive campaign for unemployment relief.

Events in New Kensington and Arnold have clearly revealed the growing influence of our Party in Allegheny Valley-an influence that is based on actual leadership of the struggles of the workers, as in the recent coal miners strike. The fact that through their mass pressure the workers compelled the Boro Council to take some relief action for the first time making an immediate appropriation of $10,000 for relief, issuing an order to the Sheriff that there shall be no evictions during the winter for non-payment of rent-showed that it is possible to force concessions from the capitalist government through determined, militant mass struggle, and encouraged the workers to continue the fight for all their demands.

Furthermore, the fight against the terror drive ty and the revolutionary unions.

A number of weaknesses, however, have appeared in the activities in New Kensington. Organizational consolidation of the unemployed movement proceeded too slowly-it is only during the recent week that functioning block committees have been established. There was not a quick enough follow-up in the unemployment struggle, for example through demands and demonstrations of women and children for free food and clothing for the children of unemployed and part-time workers, through concrete struggle against the shutting off of gas and water of individual families. There was delay in following up and exposing the relief gestures of the local governments, and insufficient activity carried on to unite unemployed with employed and part-time, workers through special agitation among the aluminum workers, the miners, the worker in the glass factory. Furthermore, the Party membership in New Kensington and Arnold were insufficiently involved in the struggle, thus narrowing the base of the leadership of the movement.

These weaknesses are in large part due to the difficulties of growth faced by the movement in the Allegheny Valley-the shortage of cadre and trained forces; the inexperience of the Party members, most of whom have but recently joined. It is necessary, however, to take decisive measures to overcome these weaknesses, to check any further lagging behind the militant mood of the Preparations are now on the way for the Westmoreland County Hunger March to Greensburg on November 17, to present the demands of the unemployed workers to the County Commissioners. This hunger march must, be the occasion for a wider and more intensive mobilization of the workers in and around New Kensington as well as other sections of the County on the basis of the struggle for immediate unemployment relief to be paid by the government and the boscas and administered by the workers through the Unemployed Councils. The aim ct the government to further lower living standards by forcing the employed and part-time workers to bear the burden of unemployment relief while the profits of the capitalist class remain intact. must be exposed, and the demand for unemployment insurance brought more sharply to the front.

The National Miners Union, the Metal Workers Industrial League, must rally the miners, steel and metal workers behind the county hunger march, developing mass actions in mining and steel localities in the county.

We must strengthen and consolidate the Party organization in New Kensington and carry on an active recruiting campaign to build the Party in Westmoreland County as a basic part of the Hunger March activities. The county Hunger March must become a rousing call to the workers of the entire county for support and participation in the National Hunger March to Washington on December 7.

And it is the task of the Party, throughout all further struggles of the unemployed in Western Pennsylvania, to develop among the workers, un-

Some more prayers, the oath of the flag, and then the Police Band played "Onward Christian Soldiers" and the entire audience of holy mass marderers was ready to sacrifice the last American worker to uphold God. Hoover and J. P. Morgan. . . .

Crazy Land

Somebody dropped a little clipping on our desk, that we opine might be worth reprinting. It is called "Crazy Land"; and it is signed by Samuel S. Sampson of Chicago: Have you ever been to Crazy Land, Down on the Looney Pike? There are the queerest people there, You never saw the like. For those who do the useful work Are poor as poor can be, While those who are the idlers All live in luxury. They raise so much in Crazy Land. Of food and clothes and such, That those who raise them starve to death Because they raise "too much"!

Where Did They Get That?: We speak of the funny notion of a Party unit out in the Buffalo grass country, that-according to our information-keeps an old time revolutionary, who long ago quit the fake "socialists" and voted Communist in 1924 and 1928, out of the Party because he "has a good education, and can speak and write with ease-therefore he belongs to the intelligensia," etc. How do they get that way? The Party, of course, wants workers, but .it doesn't reject the intelligensia when they place themselves devotedly at the service of the Party. And, as we understand it, this particular chap, like most of the intellectuals these days, hasn't been able to cash his education and has to work very much like the rest of us.

Concentrate A Little: You New York folks who might have or lay hold of a stove for the Marine Workers' Industrial Union hall, should remember that the marine industry is one of the heavy concentration points, and try to help the marineros out. Besides that, there are six organizer (including the union secretary) who would like some mattresses and blankets, since the weather has become too cold to sleep on deck. We gotte keep these boys from bcoming "frozen assets." Drop a line to the union at 140 Broad Street, and tell 'em what you can do. Or just tote it right down!

employed and employed, a clearer understanding of the role of the capitalist government: to utilize the lessons of the local and county elections that have just taken place for the purpose of exposing bourgeois democracy in the struggle of the unemployed, and breaking the illusions that changes in capitalist politicians can relieve the hunger of the unemployed or stop the wagecutting drive; to bring forward the revolutionary way out of the crisis, out of the misery of unoyment, and thus strengthen and build the Con munist Party for the struggles ahead.
