The coal operators were forced to agree to recognition of the pit committees, installation of checkweighmen, no discrimination and no blacklisting of any workers.

The victorious conclusion of the Gallup strike is a significant victory for the National Miners' Union, which now controls the Gallup field. The victory was won in the face of fierce terror and stringent martial law.

During the course of the strike the militia arrested many workers, putting them in the military stockade on a diet of bread and water, attacked demonstrations and meetings of the demonstrations and meetings of the strikers and the unemployed, bayonetting and sabring as well as clubbing the workers. The striking miners fought against the strike-breaking activities of the U.M.W.A. leaders, headed by Frank Hefferly and of the N.R.A., represented by Major John Moore. Over one half million workers have been removed already from relief rolls by the Roosevelt forced labor program, government figures reveal. This includes 12,000 in New Jersey, 49,000 in Arkansas, 10,000 n Omaha, 50,000 in Massachusetts, 9,000 in Rhode Island, 2,000 in Vermont, 2,000 in Connecticut, etc. All of these are to be put at work under the non-union, starvation wage scale, thus giving the government a supply of cheap labor.

New York State will have 200,000 off the relief lists by December 1st, it was announced. As the Roosevelt plan goes into effect, the plow it deals to the unemployed workers becomes more clear. Those Mayor Calls for State put at forced labor are told that the relief officials have the right to fire them at will, and they have no appeal and no chance to get back on relief lists, which are being abolished. Old Press Delays "Daily"

NEW YORK .- The Daily Worker has been from three to four hours late for several days. Many mail trains have been missed. Many workers have not found their "Daily" at the usual time and place. Each day the Daily Worker's 35-year old press has broken down. Each day the Daily Worker had to be printed in another plant which is not equipped to do this work speedily.

Despite the grave financial situation of the "Daily," there is no other way left but to buy a new press. It will take two months before it can be installed. Meanwhile, comrades are asked to be patient if the "Daily" does not reach them on time.

A Masked Wage Cut

Through inflation - every dollar handed out to the American workers will be reduced in value, since the dollar is no longer backed by gold, and Scab Window Washers is weakening. In addition, the increase in currency sends prices of everyday necessities soaring upward.

The approaching Receevelt paper flood will mean a wholesale robbery of the American workers. It will send the cost of living shooting sky high. It will catch the workers in a double scissors and rising prices and cheapening dollars, cheapening even faster than prices will rise.

It will result in wholesale expropriation of the small savings accounts in the banks, since this money will be gradually wiped out as far as buying power is concerned. The Roosevelt inflation is a deliberate attempt to protect the profits driven along intensifying crisis, by clamping down a nation-wide uniform wage slash for all wage workers, through the cheapening of their wages in terms of buying power.

to repeat the story she told at the first Scottsboro trial when the boys were convicted. Ruby has since confessed that she told that story under duress and fear.

When the interogratories are re turned here by Monday morning Brodsky will reply to Knight's questions and let Ruby explain how she happened to give her testimony at the first trial—the details of how the Scottsboro boys were framed.

While these interogatories were on their way to New York both sides utilized the day's court adjournment by preparing for arguments in the defense motion to quash the indictments against the Scottsboro boys because of the deliberate exclusion of Negroes on the grand jury that indicted them. ted at the Patterson trial this spring will be read in court again for the record. But the defense has several new witnesses to add to the cumulative evidence it has already produced. Brodsky has issued subpoenas for Judge Hawkins, who presided at the original Scottsboro trials, when the boys were convicted in a few days without proper legal presentation. Besides Judge Hawkins the defense has subpoenaed the clerk of the Scottsboro Court and the Jackson County jury roll, in an effort to show that in Jackson County Negroes are cause of their race and color.

Excluding Negro Jurors

In the meantime both sides are Monday morning. waiting for the appearance tomorrow morning of J. T. Tidwell, Morgan County Commissioner, who may tell why he excluded the name of J. J. This ruling was reversed by Judge Callahan.

refused to answer this would most likely have made it a reversible error Gains in Recent Strike in the event of an appeal to the United States Supreme Court. But, ruling Comissioner Tidwell has to answer, and even if he answers with "I don't remember" or "it is possible some member of the jury board had same objection to him, but it is so long ago that I cannot remember who the jury board member was or what his objection was." It is an and no interference on the answer of sorts that will appear before the U. S. Supreme Court.

It is apparent that Attorney General Knight's procedure with reference to the Negro on the jury question is laboriously designed to circumvent the Supreme Court decision in the Eucl Lee case. This case, taken to the Supreme Court by the I. L. D. resulted in Negroes being placed on juries in Maryland. Attorney-Gen-eral Knight has admitted that he tudied the Euel Lee case thoroughly made by the state of Maryland.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov 22.-Fifteen ndred packing house workers have been laid off in South Omaha, where Armour, Swifts, Cudahy and Dolds packing plants are located, in the past three weeks. The N. R. A. officials and the A. F. of L. leaders have been saying for the past two months that the N. R. A. would give the packing house workers more work. These plants all work under the Blue Eagle. But now the workers, seeing the lay-offs, haven't got faith in the N. R. A. any more.

As soon as the N. R. A. speed-up went into effect, the workers in the sheep kill in Armours elected a rank and file committee and sent the committee to the boss to demand slower speed on the chain. After much disstoppage would take place unless the speed was slowed down, and the boss agreed to slow down the chain. The conference board held a special meeting, but the workers told them that their rank and file committee and not the company controlled confer ence will handle the workers' griev ances.

The Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America does nothing for the workers, and allows a terrible speed up to be put into effect. The workers are talking of the need of a fighting industrial that the white-collar workers should not take part in the sharpening class struggle. Most certainly they are a part of the working class and not only should not be "cast aside" miners, steel workers, railroad workers, and all other sections of the working class for the overthrow of capitalism. The white collar workers are exploited, sometimes even to a greater degree than other sections of the working class, and certainly all class-conscious white collar workers have a place in the Communis Party. The Communist Party of the U. S. A. has no special test to apply applied to all workers joining the Communist Party, which is their belief in and adherence to the program of the Communist Party.

The white collar workers who in the past have been to a great ex-tent under the influence of the ideology of the ruling class are beco more and more conscious of their identity with the working class. It

The Open Letter explains very clearly the necessity for winning the decisive sections of the working class,—those working in the basis industries as follows:

Hitler Government Unprecedented in Brutal Offensive Against Working Class

Before the elections of March 5th, the National Socialists increased unemployment relief by two marks a month. Some weeks ago the Greenhalgh Remedy Co. of Salt Lake City, Utah, pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $200, for shipping, in interstate commerce, a number of drug preparations recommended for the treatment of cancer, all of which were labelled with untruthful and misleading claims. These concoctions include a "cancer powder," the "Greenhalgh Wash," the "Greenhalgh Naturello." some of these and others and we advised them privately against their use. We were unable to print any-thing against the Greenhalgh outfit 1.00 on account of the libel laws; but we can now publicly warn our readers against the use of the above nos-trums which only prevent the misguided cancer sufferers from getting 2.00 relief at the time when it is still Regarding Birth Control Clinics Dear Dr. Luttinger: This is in reference to the subject of Birth Control, that a comrade has recently written to you. As a comrade and a reader of the Daily Worker, I shall take the privilege in expressing my notion about Comrade Constance's thesis on the above is active in the revolutionary move-ment, is to a certain extent intelligent enough to realize the fact that if under the capitalist system is necessary a limitation of the most pressing necessities of life, so a restriction of the family is a positive requisite.

Concerning adequate activity in the movement on the part of a comrade's female mate, I think, this is absolutely a personal matter and, that neither a writer nor, an editor of a revolutionary political paper should attempt to comment.

When the time shall arrive, that we shall commence to live under a system analogous to that in the Soviet Union, where economic life is secured for all toilers, Birth Control will eventually become obsolete. Therefore, Comrade Constance, there is no need to worry about such trivialities.

WAS discussing yesterday a scurrilous piece in the Modern Monthly which attacked Voices of October and its three authors as apologists for an alleged "literary inquisition" conducted by Stalin.

The Scribe who wrote that libel on the personal integrity of Joshua Kunitz, Louis Lozowick and myself, is particularly incensed because our book was "published in 1930, at the very height of the Literary In-

"That book," exclaims this apparently mathematical Scribe, "appeared at the exact mathematical center of the time now officially conceded to be one in which the political inquisition was so rabid that loyal revolutionists dared not even discuss whether a work of art possessed talent or not, or so much as mention the question of form above a

The bold face is the mathematical Scribe's.

To my knowledge there has been official admission that the association of proletarian writers known as Rapp exceeded its functions to the extent where it became an obstacle to the development of Soviet literature. That is why Rapp was dissolved by the Communist Party.

Our Scribe's reference to an alleged official admission of a "political inquisition" is based on a circular which he claims was "recently sent out from Moscow" by the International Union of Revolutionary Writers. He cites this alleged circular as saying:

"There was a time when it was considered almost unlawful to speak of the factor of literary talent, and only in whispers could anything be said about the form of our work." The reader will note that this citation from an alleged I. U. R. W.

circular says nothing about a "political inquisition." That phrase was invented by our Scribe. I have never seen the alleged I. U. R. W. circular. If it actually kists, I should like to know who wrote it, and what period of Soviet literary history he was describing. Above all I should like to know what literary circles he had in mind when he described taboos against discussions of talent and form. For while that may have been true of certain RAPP cliques, it was far from true for Soviet literature as a whole, as we shall see in a few days. We do not consider individual comrades in the I. U. R. W. infallible, although our Scribe asserts we do. Furthermore, we know the difference between reporting and rhetoric, no matter where that rhetoric may ap-If the citation from the I.U.R.W. bulletin is genuine, we can only say that the attempt of an overzealous comrade to lean over backward in penitence for RAPP's excesses in no way exhausts the available facts about the Soviet literary scene of 1930-31.

We shall consider some of those facts later. Here I will only say that númerous articles on questions of talent and form did appear in the Soviet press during the height of RAPP's influence.

I am leaving a discussion of Soviet literature at "the exact mathematical center" of the alleged "literary inquisition" for another column. For the moment we are concerned with our Scribe's charges about Voices of October. The chasm between his assertions and the actual facts is so wide that it is worth discussing both the charges and the facts, if only for the light they may shed on certain literary questions.

To do so it is necessary to give a brief history of Voices of October. That is not so easy in this space. I would have to recreate the period of 1926-27. To those readers who have not an excellent historic memory and to young people who have grown up in the past five or six years it would appear incredible.

We are living today in a period when there is tremendous interest in the Soviet Union. Scores of books and hundreds of articles describe Soviet life for us. The press, both capitalist and Communist, is full of accounts by men and women who have visited the U.S.S.R. We are accustomed to see Soviet films, and to read Soviet novels in trans-

This has been the case since the crisis of capitalism and the success of the Five Year Plan broke down the intellectual boycott which for five years operated against the U.S.S.R. in this country.

BUT in 1926 the ignorance about the U. S. S. R. in this country was collosal. This was particularly true in regard to arts and letters. Those of us who were writers or artists were able to learn about political and economic life in the U.S.S.R. from the Communist press and from liberal publications which appeared in English. But for those of us who did not read Russian it was extremely difficult to find out that was happening in Soviet art and literature.

We needed this information for two reasons: in order to understand the role which literature and art played in the first workers' republic, and to learn what we could about the role which literature and art sould play in the revolutionary movement of capitalist countries before the proletariat seized power.

Our contemporaries in the American literary world, rooted in the middles classes, had learned from the Imagists in London, the Futurists in Milan, the Expressionists in Berlin and the Dadaists in Paris. We who had identified ourselves with the struggles of the working class wanted to learn from the revolutionary writers in Moscow.

Such lessons were especially important for us in the United States where the literary fringe of the revolutionary movement was to a large extent Communist in its political sympathies, but petit-bourgeois in literature. This split between politics and poetry was embodied in and symbolized by certain of the leaders of the post-war literary radicals. Some of these men have since become professional anti-Communists, and as such we combat them. But whatever may be thought of them today, we owe it not merely to them, but to ourselves to remember the very useful role they played in the early stages of the left-wing literary movement. Many of us, myself included, owe them a debt of gratitude for certain aspects of their work during and after the war, when, in the pages of the Liberator, they defended with great brilliance the course of the October Revolution and the policies of its leaders. They were pioneers and teachers and we have not forgotten it. At the same time, we do not permit their former services to the movement to obscure the fact that today they slander the Soviet Union and the Communist Party in the most unscrupulous manner.

OUR need for clarifying the relation between literature and revolution was so acute, that in 1922, as associate editor of the Liberator, I asked Floyd Dell who to this day has remained sympathetic to the U. S. S. R., to write a series of articles which we published under the title Literature and the Machine Age. Later I asked Alexander Chramoff, a Red Army veteran and a former director in the Soviet theatre, but then editor of the Novy Mir in New York, to write a series of articles for the Liberator, describing Soviet art and literature. These, I believe, were the first articles of their kind in this country. But they did not solve our problems. None of us seemed to be able to resolve what appeared to be the irreconcilable contradictions between poetry and politics, between art and revolution. And this inability led to an extremely sectarian attitude toward art, both among Communist Party leaders and among writers and artists sympathetic to the Party.

At the beginning of a movement, very rigid distinctions must be drawn in order that its adherents may clearly define their position both to themselves and to the world. But once that position is defined sharply, beyond possible confusion, there is the danger that rigidity of doctrine may turn into a sectarianism which hampers the movement. The movement then becomes ingrown. It cannot influence the world outside it. Such an unhealthy sectarianism in regard to arts and letters prevailed in our movement in 1926. Most of us were guilty of it here; and in the Soviet Union questions of art and literature were by no means unaffected by it, as far as we could gather from our reading.

When I arrived in Moscow in the summer of 1926, I found numerous schools and groups and cliques in the literary world, representing various literary traditions, various class conflicts. But to my great relief, I also found an attitude toward arts and letters much more profound and much more understanding than the one I had left behind me in our American movement.

Tomorrow I shall describe the literary censorship which interfered with getting out the kind of book I wanted about Soviet arts and letters.

NUMBER of readers have sent in letters about the column on Detroit. A on Edwin Rolfe's poem, and other matters. Some of these will be answered when the series on Soviet literature will end. That should be

Another Perkins Lie

THE habit of Secretary of Labor Perkins to deliberately distort official government information on the economic position of the American working class has become so raw that even the most reactionary papers ure beginning to gag at it.

Miss Perkins, for example, has just released a statenent proudly announcing that from September to Ocober, 85,000 workers were returned to work.

Many of the capitalist papers featured this news cross their headlines as if it proved the gradual disppearance of the vast army of 17,000,000 unemployed.

At first glance, it is obvious that this figure is richculously small mouse to have issued from the ountains of the Roosevelt N.R.A. publicity.

Did not Roosevelt promise 6,000,000 jobs by the Autumn? Did not General Johnson promise 4,500,000? Did not William Green, and all other A. F. of L. offitial hangers-on of the Roosevelt government machine occlaim that the N.R.A. has finally solved the curse of capitalist unemployment?

But now it turns out that even the tiny mouse of Miss Perkins is a fraud. The New York Evening Post, for example, reactionary supporter of Wall Street,

"Statistics on unemployment being given out by the Department of Labor are becoming, at least as they are presented to the public, more and more useless... An excellent example of this is the figures just released covering the period between September 15 and October 15. Granting their technical accuracy, they scarcely could have been presented in a better way to hide their real significance, if not actually to mislead the public ... "

So now it is clear that the Department of Labor ias joined the Department of the Treasury and of he Interior in issuing Roosevelt propaganda disguised as "reports." And this, together with the recent gagging of the Federal Reserve Bank reports that conained the real facts, completes a picture of the whole government apparatus functioning as a propaganda machine for Roosevelt.

The report of Miss Perkins conceals the fact that in the basic manufacturing industries there was nothing but a microscopic "increase" of 0.1 per cent, while the jubilantly hailed increase of 85,000 jobs took place in non-manufacturing industries which are purely seasonal.

As soon as the short seasonal spurt is over (and that will be in a few weeks) these 85,000 workers will again be on the streets!

WHY does Miss Perkins resort to such obvious distortion to give the impression that the unemployment siutation is improving?

It is because particularly at this time, when the Roosevelt government is planning to meet the terrible starvation and suffering of the 17,000,000 jobless with coolie forced labor camps, that it needs propaganda about the improvement in the unemployment situation.

It is because the Roosevelt government is preparing to beat down any attempts of the starving masses to fight for Unemployment Insurance, because the Roosevelt government is driving 2,000,000 families off the relief lists, because its whole brutal relief program dooms the vast majority of the 17,000,000 unemployed to starvation, that Miss Perkins ladles out the specially prepared Department of Labor "statistics," as a sugarcoat for the whole Roosevelt assault on the working

The approach of winter will mean more hunger and suffering that has ever yet been seen in this country.

The fight for Unemployment Insurance must rise to new heights! This is the only way that the 17,000,000 jobless workers and their families will be able to secure adequate food and shelter against the miseries of the crisis. In every shop, relief station, forced labor camp, neighborhood, and street, the fight for Unemployment Insurance at the expense of the government and the bosses, and immediate cash relief must be

4 Step Ahead in Ambridge

AMBRIDGE, Pennsylvania, where the steel trust organized its armed fascist gangs to shoot a strike out of existence, has recently had an election for Burgess, the equivalent of Mayor.

The strike, led by the Steel and Metal Workers Industrial Union, was exemplary in its miltancy. Day and night the strikers and their families stuck to the picket lines, spreading the strike from plant to plant The steel trust realized that this rapidly spreading fire of working class resistance threatened to involve he workers in their most powerful fortresses nearby. Strikes threatened the Jones and Laughlin plant in the virtual feudal domain of the Jones and Laughlin mill in Alliquippa, Pa. The Ambridge walkout was having a tremendous echo in Carnegie and other Jones and Laughlin mills around Pittsburgh.

For this reason, the steel trust decided once and for all to smash the organization, militancy and fighting spirit of the Ambridge workers. They were determined to crush this heroic example, to trample it in the dust so that it would never rise again.

THE civil war mobilization of the steel trust against unarmed men and women, the brave resistance of the strikers, who left lead and wounded on the picket lines, is one of the most inspiring pages of American working class history.

Nor were the steel bosses content with breaking the strike. For weeks their armed gunmen ruled the town, threatening the strikers with death if they attempted to reorganize.

Yet not only did they fail to crush the militancy of the strikers, but despite the defeat of the strike, the Ambridge workers continued to fight the steel trust by every means available. Out of their struggles they developed a higher political and class conscious understanding. The Ambridge strikers, in the midst of terror, courageously smashed an anti-Soviet Fascist parade, declaring their support for the workers' fatherland.

The strike itself took place on the eve of an election campaign. .But before the strike the workers had. not understood the importance of running their own candidate. But when they saw the murderous gunmen, led by Burgess Caul, when their strike had been smashed, they decided to carry on the fight on the political field.

Ballots were already printed and it was too late to petition for a workers' candidate. The steel workers met, under the leadership of the Communist Party, and decided to run on a united front workers ticket one of the strike leaders for Burgess. Arthur Wimbur, with the support of the Communist Party was chosen It was decided to canvass the whole city, to distribute stickers for Wimbur.

CAMPAIGN was made against the steel trust ter-A campaign was made against the ror, for unemployment relief, for workers' rights,

On election day, the polls were manned by the same gunmen who shot the workers down. Every effort was made to terrorize the workers. Yet out of a total vote cast of 3,818, Wimbur polled 368. How many votes for Wimbur were destroyed by the steel trust gunmen who did not hesitate to kill strikers

Though this vote appears small, it has great significance. It shows in Ambridge that the strike resulted in the rapid political maturing of the steel workers. It shows that the workers have not been disheartened and know how to keep up the fight.

Above all, it demonstrates that the workers of Ambridge more than ever are determined to carry on their fight not only for the right of union organiza tion and for better conditions but against the political tools and instruments of the steel trust.

The Ambridge election shows above all that the Communist Party can and must become a mass Party in Ambridge. The task now is to enlist these hundreds of workers who not only fought on the picket lines but faced the gunmen at the polls to vote for a workers candidate in the Communist Party as the best guarantee that the struggle will be continued

Tears and Bayonets

 T^{HE} working class has discovered through the bitter lessons of history that the smiling countenance of political "liberalism" conceals the hate of Fascist reac-

It would be hard to find a more candid confession of this than the editorial which appears in this week's "Nation" under the signature of its leading writer, Oswald Garrison Villard.

Mr. Villard writes an imaginary letter to the striking farmers of the West, a letter which he would send to the farmers if he were President of the United

After some paragraphs of quite characteristic "Nation" blarney and sanctimonious sympathy for the "terrifying" situation of the farmers, Mr. Villard then lets go his real bolt, in these words

"You have the right to refuse to sell if you please, but when you try by force to keep others from selling and prevent the children of our cities and their parents from getting food, you are taking an unsocial step which it is my sworn duty to resist if I have to call out every regular soldier and every national guardsman in the country."

So behind Mr. Villard's so enlightened "liberalism," his nauseating pretense of friendliness to the impoverished and suffering farmers, glitters the sharp steel of bayonets, the muzzles of machine guns, the naked ruling class dictatorship of military suppres-

The impoverished and ruined farmers are fighting against the merciless exploitation and robberies of the Wall Street grain and milk monopolies. They are fighting against the Wall Street finance masters who are driving them off the land into the hell of pauperism through mortgage foreclosures. They are fighting for their homes and their farms against the devouring rapacity of the Wall Street capitalist rulers who trample on the impoverished farmers and the city pro-

And all that Mr. Villard, the smiling friend of the farmers, the saintly knight of "Nation" liberalism can offer them is the bayonets of Wall Street

He sheds tears over the "children of our citi These are disgusting tears of hypocrisy. Does not Mr. Villard know that these children of the cities are starving for lack of milk precisely because the Wall Street monopolies keep it from them by extortionate

If Mr. Vlilard is so interested in the milk of the city children, why doesn't he call out his beloved and trusty troops against those Wall Street monopolies against Borden, against National Dairy, against Sheffield, etc., etc., who doom millions of city children to starvation because of extortionate milk prices?

If he is so interested in the food of the children's parents, why doesn't he call out the troops against the Roosevelt government, which, in its capitalist insanity and ruthlessness is raging through the cotton, wheat and corn fields, destroying with fire the produce that the impoverished masses need?

Mr. Villard's tears on account of the farmers are cheap indeed. For while he weeps, he points a bayonet at those for whom he sorrows.

Mr. Villard's liberalism cannot hide his concern over perpetuating the mortgage debt slavery that binds the impoverished farmers to their Wall Street rulers. He cannot conceal his anxiety over the profits of the big milk monopolies, in which, no doubt, he has a few judicious investments.

Daily Worker Tag Days

STARTING this Friday, thousands of class-conscious American workers will march into the factories, workers' homes, into the streets to rally the masses of workers to the support of our only American Bolshevik daily newspaper, the Daily Worker.

This campaign is not merely a fund-raising event. Unlike fund-drives by community chests, charity federations, it does not rely for its success upon bullying or the dictates of the bosses to their employes to "give until it hurts."

It is an educational campaign to bring the attention of the workers to the urgent need of our "Daily" for their support so that it can continue fighting with them in their struggles for relief from the increasing hardships imposed on them by the boss class

Will you be among the heroic workers who will wage a three-day battle this Friday, Saturday and Sunday to rally the masses to the defense of our Daily Worker? Will you be among those who will fight for the continued existence of our "Daily," to give it the financial sinews for striking crushing blows against the entire capitalist system?

Join the revolutionary Daily Worker Tag Day Army, participate in this Leninist Drive to reach the masses and to rally them in a mighty working class defense corp around our Daily Worker which is struggling for

20 Miners in Utah Join C. P. at Meet for Soviet Union

Lynn, Mass., Workers Celebrate Recognition By Flying Red Flag

HELPER, Utah, Nov. 22.-Twenty workers joined the Communist Party at a Soviet Union Anniversary celebration in this coal mining center, lately the scene of a great coal strike led by the National Miners' Union. At least a thousand miners and other workers packed the hall to celebrate the Soviet Union anniversary arranged by the Communist Party and the Young Communist League. Their enthusiastic response to the program of the Communist Party and their applications to join was an effective answer to the "red scare" propaganda of the operators here.

Coming a few days after the con-clusion of an "agreement" between the coal operators and the U.M.W.A., it is proof that the miners are determined to fight any sell outs of these officials and to build the National Miners' Unoin more solidly. through a powerful Communist Party leadership.

The government showed its peaceful intentions yesterday when it signed an order for the purchase of 1,500,000 hand grenades from France. It should be remembered that these grenades are most effective in street fighting.

Immediately after the raid on the Tobacco Workers' Center, police, soldiers and uniformed students of the Directorio Estudiantil (Student's Directory) and the "Law and Order Army," a student military organization, raided the home of Vilar completely destroying the furniture and clothing and burning all documents found.
