OFFENDERS PROVES GOVERNMEN

"Peace? Why, my fellow citizens, is there any man here or any woman — let me say, is there any child — who does not know that the seed of war in the modern world is industrial and commercial rivalry?....

"This war was a commercial and industrial war. It was not a political war."

These are not the words of a ranting socialist, nor of an I. W. W. agitator, nor of a pacificist, nor of a conscientious objector to war, nor of any of those who at this time are condemned to years of best. ial confinement by the present administration in the cells of the federal prisons of this country.

They are the words of Woodrow Wilson at St. Louis Sept. 5th. But/ President Wilson is not in prison doing the lock step for saying them. He is not confined to a cell for fourteen hours a day for ence Debs received, for Debs said much saying what he knew to be the thruth about the causes of the war as was Debs up to a short time ago. He is not facing I. W. W., conscientious objectors, religious death and insanity behind prison walls objectors, pacifists, Socialies and others for righteousness and freedom for all the for saying what HE thot was true of war, as many others have met death and gone insane. He is not locked up for weeks in the "black hole" on a diet of bread and water at the instigation of petty, ignorant and brutal guards. He is not paying the penalties HE has imposed upon hundreds of men and women for sying LESS than

The war is not over according to the President's decision in the coal strike. therefore the President is guilty of a violation of the espionage law under which all political prisoners were jailed. But he has not walked into jail and given himself up as a violator of the law. Nor has the Department of Justice sent its of ficers with handcuffs to bring Mr. Wilson to the bar of justice. Nor will it.

Yet if others are guilty, so is he. If Debs is guilty and deserves ten years in prison, then the President deserves twice the sentless than the words spoken at St. Louis. The jails are filled with members of the

who. believing in the Constitution of the United States, offended M. Wilson by saying much less than he has stated about

Where lies the justice in this proceedure? Are the officials of the government immune from the laws they make and put their names too as the law raking body? Are the laws made for the many and not tor the few? Are the laws made for all the people or are they made only to be enforced upon the opponen of these in

We have never made any statements in this paper as to the cause of the war. To have done so would have meant the cancellation of our mailing riviliges and a term in prison for the editors along with Debs and others. But we fee free to agree with the President's definition of the war's real causes. We will agree with him and accept his statement -- "This was a commercial and industrial war."

The hollowness of the President's claims during the real period of the war are thus seen. A war for democracy, a war world against autocracy in all its formsthese were given as the purpose of the war times without number.

Out of these slogans a psychological effect was produced which acted to cover all opposition to the war. Millions gave their lives believing in them. The government used them to the limit in squeezing the last cent from the public in its drives for finances to pay the cost of war. And now we are told by the man who acted the leading part in this world tragedy — that it "was a commercial and industrial war" between commercial and industrial nations for world trade and economic supremacy.

We will accept the President's latest definition for the causes of the war. But we will not sit quietly by while our comrades and fellow workers lie in prison port of every worker is demanded. For it with the iron heel of despotism upon them. We will not be silent. We will reveal the hollow mockery of justice at Washington until they who are responsible for the inhuman outrages against our comrades are forced to open the prison doors. No workfor self determination of all coples; a war er with red blood in his veins can rest in peace with his conscience until this injustice is wiped out. Day by day, the Army of Liberators is growing. Every hour sees the demand for the release of all political prisoners increasing. Every moment they remein in prison brings nearer the day of judgment for the ruling class of this nation.

The ruling class fears to let our comrades out of prison. It knows that the moment they step out of prison they will join the growing army of INDUSTRIAL liberators who are waging a war against them for control of the world and their own destiny. Keeping the political prisoners in jail is a weapon in the class war, used by the ruling class in its programe of repression. They fear to let them out. They may well fear to keep them in!

In this fight for liberation, the supwill require the combined efforts of all of us to OPEN THE PRISON DOORS. Do your part. Join the Army of Liberators, Agitate for liberation for political prisoners wherever you are — at all times. Make the powers that be FEAR TO KEEP

THE STRANGE, SAD CASE OF PRESIDENT WILSON By Woodrow

"More," says Labor.
"Less and less," says Capital.
"Nix on the rought stuff," says Government.

And the fight is on. Strange, isn't it, that President Wilson forgot to war on the mine workers, about treating the coal operators rough be cause they refuse to give the miners enough to eat? Very strange! President Wilson seems to have had a lapse in memory. Not very long ago it was he who said that the real trouble makers in this country are the big business interests behind the "invisible government."

Eut just in order to keep our faith in human nature let's diagnose the strange, sad case of President Wilson We know that he forgot to say that he would use an army against the coal operators if they persisted in refusing the miners enough wages to live on decently. Now there must be something wrong with President Wilson's thinking apparatus. Otherwise there is no way to explain such a strange idea—that 500.000 coal miners have no right to quit working if they do not like and find that the president is doing the conditions or wages under which they are working. And the amazing does not know very much. For instance statement of the president that they he does not know that the great mass statement of the president that they he does not know that the great mass are "unlawful" in striking, while the of common people over whom he is oal operators are perfectly within their president, are behind the coal miner rights to close down the mines any day they are good and ready, throwing thousands of men out of work and cuting off the production of coal!

Let's diagnose the strange, sad case of President Wilson, who seems to have something wrong with his thinktheir lives to produce the coal. # Democracy at Home.

One might surmitr that a four years war, fought and won for democracy, might in all decency have some tangible evidence of its winnings on hand to show any unbeliveing who might have doubts thereof. One might even ,S. L. Portsmouth: The Communist expect President Wilson, by some legerdemain of words and phrases to point out a few unquestionable evidences of the facts of democracy in the members, sometimes 45.000, at other every-day lives of the common herd, who up to a short time since hung upon his words as the inspired sentences of mankind's Savior.

But the President is very far from bringing forth such proof of his conquests of the forces of autocracy. Quite the contrary. We are learning for a period of three or four months. | principles across. We always had an that winning a thing and having it are two entirely different propositions. Since the war for democracy was won there has been far more autocracy in Federation which affiliated with the Communist Party has for months bit-America than before. As a matter of fact a period of reaction has seized the nation and the powers that be are marshalling every resource against the is representing Soviet Russia in this putting into practice of the principles for which millions died and billions in wealth were spent. The socialist press has been well nigh destroyed. Free speech is a memory. The Constitution, so far as the workers of this country are concerned, does not exist.

The steel strike has furnished sufficient evidence to damn any government. Men and women have been murdered in the towns of Pennsylvania and nothing hasn been done about it, nor will any thing be done except to cover the destroyers of life and liberty with a coat of governmental whitewash

And now comes the coal strike bearing upon its heels more evidence of the brand of democracy which Wilson brought back from Paris and locked about the necks of American workers. President Wilson declares that the miners have violated the law by striking. He thus makes them out to be criminals, law breakers. One cannot believe that he believes his own statements. He seeks merely to use the capitalist courts to enslave the workers force them into abject slavery to the coal barons. With all his fine words for labor, his actions belie every one of them. By his action in declaring miners to be outlaws, he brands himself an arch-autocrat and enemy Let him be known for what he is. Wilson's brand of democracy is proving the undoing of labor. The workers need no Saviors. They can and must save themselves. Confidence placed in others than the workers is confidence mis-placed.

Taking a Nation's Measure.

By what measure shall a nation be judged? The generally accepted standard to-day is that of commercial standing-and battle ships and armmament to protect it. It is a token of the times and a measure of the values set upon human endeavor. We live in a commercial age, hence all things commercial are hallowed. A brilliant halo resides upon our national god, the rays from which stretch out in all directions especially toward heathen and undevelopment lands, where trade possibilities are especially liable of development.

Let us take a glance at the conditions in which our school-teachers live while ministering to the moral, mental and physical needs of the nation's children. What are their services valued at in the coin of the realm? And don't forget to compare the "dollars" received with what they will buy in the shoe, food, clothing, and other markets which the teacher must patronize in order to keep respectable appearing and morally and mentally balanced to be able to do justice to OUR children.

The wages of Cleveland's school teachers afford a shining example and measure of one of America's greatest cities. The yearly wage averages about $75 a month. What will $75 buy—it will buy almost half enough for a family to live upon. Of course it does not afford vacations in the hot summers nor an overdose of refinements and nothing for a rainy day. Many teachers are bread winners for families. While giving the best that is in them in the prime of their lives to society, the child and the teacher, they are bereft of opportunities to develop themselves in accordance with the demands WE make upon them.

The plea is made that there is no money to pay higher salaries. But there is plenty of money for every conceivable kind of "drive" that can be imagined. The wages paid school teachers are an indictment of present day civilization. Commercialism rules. Our teachers, our children and posterity are mortgaged to maintain its rule. Measured by the value set upon education and the treatment of our children. America stands low in the scale of real civilization.

"The Final Conflict"

In the struggle of the miners and the operators President Wilson has taken his stand, the entire machinery of government will be brought into play if necessary, and the press brings up the rear of the procession. All these are open, willing servants of plutocracy, but the efforts of all combined cannot avail in the present crisis.

The sick man in the White House has let loose forces that may sweep not only his administration, but the social order, into the class of the over-pawered and obsolete. Neither pity for his physical plight nor de votion to a flag will make the workers weaklings, content to be driven along the path that industrial autocracy has marked out. As Helen Keller has recently written: "The wise fools who sit in the high places of justice fail to see that, in revolution-ary times like the present, vital is-sue are settled, not by statutes, de-crees and authorities, but in spite of them. Like the Girondins in France, they imagine that force can check the onrush of revolution. Thus they sow the wind, and unto them shall be the harvest of the whirlwind." The blind girl saw clearly enough to state the situation correctly!

Labor is not a minority. It is vast majority. That third, much pitied group called "the public" is largely Labor, unorganized for the most part but containing all the potentialities of wise revolt. All Labor will become aware of its interests, and will rule its own order, decide its own destiny which at length will be the law and the order and the destiny of the whole uman race.

REPORT OF THE BULLITT MISSION TO RUSSIA.

We reprint below the report of William C. Bullit, special representative of the United States to Russia in February 1919. This report was first made public in Mr. Bullit's statement before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, September 12, 1919. In spite of this report, the truth of which can not be refuted, the President's undeclared war against the working-class government of Soviet Russia continues. The unofficial blockade still exists, millions of peace-loving Russians are starving for lack of the food this blockade is keeping out of

I. REPORT OF WILLIAM C. BULLITT

Economic Situation

Russia today is in a condition of acute economic distress. The blockade by land and sea is the cause of this distress and lack of the essentials of transportation is its gravest symptom. Only one-fourth of the locomotives which ran on Russian lines before the war are now available for use. Furthemore, Soviet Russia is cut off entirely from all supplies of coal and gasoline. In consequence, transportation by all steam and electric vehicles is greatly hampered; and transportation by automobile and by the fleet of gasoline-using Volga steamers and canal boats is impossible. As a result of these hindrances to transportation it is possible to bring from the grain centers to Moscow only twenty-five carloads of food a day, instead of the one hundred carloads which are essential and to Petrograd only fifteen carloads, instead of the essential fifty. In consequence, every man, woman, and child in Moscow and Petrograd is suffering from slow starvation.

Mortality is particularly high among new-born children whose mothers cannot suckle them, among newly-delivered mothers, and among the aged. The entire population, in addition, is exceptionally susceptible to disease; and a slight illness is apt to result fatally because of the total lack of medicines. Typhoid, typhus, and smalpox are epidemic in both Petrograd and Moscow.

Industry, except the preduction of munitions of war, is largely at a standstill. Nearly all means of transport which are not employed in carrying food are used to supply the army, and there is scarcely any surplus transport to carry materials essential to normal industry. Furthemore, the army has absorbed the best executive brains and physical vigor of the nation. In addition, Soviet Russia is cut off from most of its sources of iron and of cotton. Only the flax, hemp, wood, and lumber industries have an adequate supply of raw material.

On the other hand, such essentials of economic life as are available are being utilized to the utmost by the Soviet Government. Such trains as there are. run on time. The distribution of food is well controlled. Many industrial experts of the old regime are again managing their plants and sabotage by such managers has ceased. Loafing by the workmen during work hours has been overcome.

Social Conditions

The destructive phase of the revolution is over and all the energy of the Government is turned to constructive work. The terror has ceased. All power of judgment has been taken away from the extraordinary commission for suppression of the counterrevolution, which now merely accuses suspect counter-revolutionaries, who are tried by the regular, establiched, legal tribunals. Executions are extremely rare. Good order has been established. The streets are safe. Shooting has ceased. There are few robberies. Prostitution has disappeared from sight. Family life has been unchanged by the revolution, the canard in regard to "nationalization of women" notwithstanding.

The theatres, opera, and ballet are performing as in peace. Thousands of new schools have been opened in all parts of Kussia, and the Soviet Government seems to have done more for the education of the Russian people in a year and a half than czardom did in fifty years.

Political Situation

The Soviet form of government is firmly established. Perhaps the most striking fact in Russia to lay is the general support which is given the government by the people in spite of their starvation. Indeed, the people lay the blame for their distress wholly on the blockade and on the governments which maintain it. The Soviet form of government seems to have become to the Russian people the symbol of their revolution. Unquestionable it is a form of government which lends itself to gross abuse and tyrangy, but it meets the demand of the moment in Russia, and it has acquired so great a hold on the imagination of the comon people that the women are ready to starve and the young men to die for it.

The position of the communist party (formerly Bolsheviki) is also very strong. Blockade and intervention have caused the chief opposition parties the right social revolutionaries and the mensheviki, to give temperary support to the communists. These opposition parties have both made formal statements against the blockade, intervention, and the support of Antisoviet governments by the allied and associated governments. Their leaders, Volsky and Martov, are most vigorous in their demands for the immediate raising of the blockade and peace.

Indeed, the only penderable opposition to the communists today comes from more radical parties -- the left social revolutionaries and the anarchists These parties, in published statements, call the com-manists, and particularly Lenin and Tchitcherin, 'the paid bourgeois gendarmers of the Entente.' They attack the communists because the communists have encouraged scientists, engineers, and industrial experts of the bourgeois class to take important posts under the Soviet Government at high pay. They rage against the employment of bourgeois officers in the army and against the efforts of the communists to obtain peace. They demand the immediate mes-sacre of all the boargenise and an immediate declaration of was on all nonrevolutionary governments. They argue that the Entente Governments should be forced to intervene more deeply in Eussia, asserting that such action would surely provoke the proletariat of all European countries to immediate revolution.

Within the communist party itself there is distinct division of opinion in regard to foreign policy, but this disagreement has not developed personal hostility or open breach in the ranks of the party. Trotski, the generals, and many theorists believe the red army should go forward everywhere until more vigorous intervention by the Entente is provoked, which they, too, count upon to bring revolution in France and England. Their attitude is not a little colored by pride in the spirited young army. Lenin, Tchitcherin, and the bulk of the communist party, on the other hand, insist that the essential problem at present is to save the proletariat of Russia, in particular, and the proletariat of Euin general, from starvation, and assert that will benefit the revolution but little to conquer all Europe if the Government of the United States replies by starving all Europe. They advocate, therefore, the conciliation of the United States even at the cost of compromising with many of the principles they hold most dear. And Lenin's prestige in Russia at present is so overwhelming that the Trotski group is forced reluctantly to follow him.

Lenin, indeed, as a practical matter, stands well to the right in the existing political life of Russia. He recognizes the undesirability, from the Socialist newpoint, of the compromises he feels compelled to make; but he is ready to make the compromises. Among the more notable concessions he has already made are: The abandonment of his plan to nation alize the land and the adoption of the policy of dividing it among the peasants, the establishment of savings banks paying 3 per cent. interest, the decision to pay all fereign debts, and the decision to give concessions if that shall prove to be necessary to obtain credit abroad.

In a word, Lenin feels compelled to retreat from his theoretical position all along the line. He is ready to meet the western Governments half way.

Peace Proposals

Lenin seized upon the opportunity presented by my trip of investigation to make a definite statement of the position of the Soviet Government. He was opposed by Trotski and the generals, but without much difficulty got the support of the majority of the executive council, and the statement of position of the soviet government which was handed to me was finally adopted unanimously.

My discussion of these proposals with the leaders of the Soviet Government was so detailed that I feel sure of my ground in saying that it does not represent the minimum terms of the soviet government, and that I can point out in dedail wherein it may be modified without making it unacceptable to the soviet government. For example, the clause under article 5 — "and to their own nationals who have been or may be prosecuted for giving help to Soviet Russia"— is certainly not of vital importance. And the clause under article 4, in regard to admission of citizens of the soviet republics of Russia into the allied and associated countries, may certainly be changed in such a way as to reserve ill necessary rights to control such immigration to the allied and associated countries, and to confine it, to persons who come on legitimate and necessary business, and to exclude definitely all possibility of an influx of propagandists.

Conclusions .

The following conclusions are respectfully submitted.

1. No government save a socialist government can be set up in Russia today except by foreign bayonets, and any governments so set up will fall the moment such support is withdrawn. The Lenin wing of the communist party is today as moderate as any socialist government which can control Rus-

2. No real peace can be established in Furope or the world until peace is made with the revolution. 'this proposal of the Soviet Government presents an opportunity to make peace with the revolution on just and reasonable basis - perhaps a unique opportunity

3. If the blockade is lifted and supplies begin . to be delivered regularly to soviet Russia, a more powerful hold over the Russian people will be established than that given by the blockade itself - the hold given by fear that this delivery of supplies may be stopped. Futhemore, the parties which oppose the communists in principle but are supporting them at present will be able to begin to fight against

4. It is, therefore, respectfully recommended that a proposal following the general lines of the suggestion of the Soviet Government should be made at the earliest possible moment, such changes being made, particularly in article 4 and article 5, as will make the proposal acceptable to conservative opinion in the allied and associated countries.

Very respectfully sumitted,
WILLIAM C. BULLITT

APPENDIX

Transport

Locomotives.—Before the war Russia had 22.000 locomotives. Destruction by war and ordinary wear and tear have reduced the number of locomotives in good order to 5.500. Russia is entirely cut off from supplies of spare parts and materials for repair, facilities for the manufacture of which do not exist in Russia. And the Soviet Government is able only with the greatest difficulty to keep in running order the few locomotives at its disposal.

Coal.— Soviet Russia is entirely cut off from supplies of coal. Kolchak holds the Perm mining district, although Soviet troops are now on the edge of it. Denikin still holds the larger part of the Donetz coal district and has destroyed the mines in the portion of the district which he has evacuated. As a result of this, locomotives, electrical power plants, etc., must be fed with wood, which is enormously expensive and laborious and comparatively ineffectual. Gasoline .- There is a total lack of gasoline, due to the British occupation of Baku few automobiles in the cities which are kept running for vital Government business are fed with substitute mixtwhich causes them to break down with great frequency and to miss continually. Almost the entire fleet on the great inland waterway system of Russia was propelled by gasoline. As a result the Volga and the canals, which are so vital a part of Russia's system of transportation, are useless.

Everyone is hungry in Moscow and Petrograd, ircluding the people's commissaries themselves. The daily ration of Leniu and the other commissaries is the same as that of a soldier in the army or of a workman at hard labor. In the hotel which is reserved for Government officials the menu is the following: Breakfast — A quarter to half a pound of black bread, which must last all day, and tea without sugar. Dinner— A good soup, a small piece of fish, for which occasionally a diminutive piece of meat is substituted, a vegetable, either a potato or a bit of cabbage, more tea without sugar. Supper - What remains of the morning ration of bread and more tea without sugar.

Occasionally sugar, butter, and chickens slip through from the Ukraine and are sold secretly at atrocious prices - butter, for example, at 240 roubles Whenever the Government is able to get hands on any such "luxuries" it turns them over to the schools, where an attempt is made to give every child a good dinner every day.

The food situation has been slightly improved by the rejoining of Ukraine to Great Russia, for food is relatively plentiful in the south: but no great improvement in the situation is possible because of the lack of tracsport.

Managment

Such supplies as are available in Soviet Russia are being utilized with considerable skill. For example, in spite of the necessity of firing with wood, the Moscow-Petrograd express keep up to its schedule, and on both occasions when I made the trip it took but thirteen hours, compared to the twelve hours of prewar days.

The food control works well, so that there is abundance alongside of famine. Powerful and the same degree of star-

The Soviet government has made great efforts to persuade industrial managers and technical experts of the old regime to enter its service. Many ery prominent men have done so. And the Soviet Government pays them as high as $45.000 a year for their services, although Lenin gets but $1.800 a year. This very anomalous situation arises from the principle that any believing communist must adhere to the scale of wages established by the government, but if the government considers it necessary to have the assistance of any anti-communist, it is permitted to pay him as much as he demands.

All meetings of workmen during work hours have been prohibited, with the result that the loafing which was so fatal during the Kerensky rogime has been overcome and discipline has been restored in the factories as in the army.

Social Conditions

Terror .- 'The red terror is over. During the period of its power the extraordinary commission for the suppression of the couter revolution, which was the instrument of the terror, executed about 1,500 persons in Petrograd, 500 in Moscow, and 3.000 in the remainder of the country— 5.000 in all Russia. These figures agree with those which were brought back from Russia by Major Wardwell, and inasmuch as I have checked them from Soviet, anti-Soviet, and neutral sources. I believe them to be apreximately correct. It is worthy of note in this connection that in the white terror in southern Finland alone, according to official figures, General Mannerheim executed without trial 12,000 working men and women.

Order - One feels as safe in the streets of Petrograd and Moscow as in the streets of Paris or New York. On the other hand, the streets of these cities are dismal, because of the closing of retail shops whose functions are now concentrated in a few large nationalized "department stores." Petrograd, furthermore, has been deserted by half its population; But Moscow teems with twice the num-ber of inhabitants it contaned before the war. The only noticeable difference in the theatres, opera, and ballet is that they are now run under the direction of the department of education, which prefers classics and sees to it that working men and women and chidren are given an opportunity to attend the performances and that they are instructed beforehand in the significance and beauties of the productions. Morals.- Prostitutes have disappeared from sight, the economic reasons for their carrer having cessed to exist. Family life has been absolutely unchanged by the revolution. I have never heard more genuinely mirthful laughter than when I told Lenin, Tchitcherin, and Litvinov that much of the world believed that women had been "nationalized." This lie is so widly fantastic that they will not even take the trouble to deny it. Respect for womanhood was never greater than in Russia today. Indeed, the day I reached Petrograd was a holiday in honor of wives and mothers. Education .- The achievements of the department of education under Lunacharsky have been very get at. Not only have all the Russian classes been reprinted in editions of three and five million copies and sold at a low price to the people, but thousands of new schools for men, women, and children have been opened in all parts of Russia. Furthermore, workingmen's and soldiers' clubs have been organized in many of the palaces of yesteryear, where the people are instructed by means of moving pictures and lectures. In the art galleries one meets classes of working men and women being instructed in the beauties of the pictures. The children's schools have been entirely reorganized, and an attempt is being made to give every child a good dinner at school every day. Furthemore, very remarkable schools have been opened for defective and over-nervous children. theory that genius and insanity are closely allied, these children are taught from the first to compose music, paint pictures, sculpt and write poetry, and it is asserted that some very yaluable result have been cchieved, not only in the way of productions but also in the way of restoring the nervous systems of the children.

Morale

The belief of the convinced communists in their cause is almost religious. Never in any religious service have I seen higher emotional unity than prevailed at the meeting of the Petrograd Soviet celebration of the foundation of the Third Socialist Internationale. The remark of one young man to me when I questioned him in regard to his starved appearance is characteristic. He replied very simply: "I am ready to give another year of starvation to our revolution."

Statements of Leaders of Opposition Parties

The following statement was made to me by Volsky, leader of the right social revolutionaries, the largest opposition party:

"Intervention of any kind will prolong the regime of the Bolsheviki by compelling us, like all honorable Russians, to drop opposition and rally round the soviet government in defense of the revelution. With regard to help to individual groups or governments fighting against soviet Russia, we see no difference between such intervention and the sending of troops. If the allies come to an agreement with the soviet government, sooner or later the peasant masses will make their will felt and they are alike against the bourgeoise and the Bolsheviki.

"If by any chance Kolchak and Denikin were to win, they would have to kill in tens of thousands where the Bolsheviki have had to kill in hundreds and the result would be the complete ruin and collapse of Russia into anarchy. Has not the Ukraine been enough to teach the allies that occupation by non-Bolshevik troops merely turns into Bolsheviki those of the population who were not Bolsheviki before? It is clear to us that the Bolsheviki are really fighting against bourgeois dictatorship. sible way.

"Grandmother Ekaterina Constantinovna Breshkovskaya has no sort of authority, either from the assembly of members of the all Russian constituent assembly or from the party of social revolutionaries. Her utterances in America, if she is preaching intervention, represent her personal opinions which are categorically repudiated by the party of social revolutionaries, which has decisively expressed itself against the permissibility of intervention, direct or Volsky signed this latter statement: "V. Volsky, late president of the assembly of members of the all Russian constituent assembly."

Martov, leader of the Menshiviki, stated: "The Menshiviki are against every form of intervention, direct or indirect, because by providing the inecntive to militarization it is bound to emphasize the least desirable qualities of the revolution. Further, the need of the army overwhelm all efforts at meeting the needs of social and economic reconstruction. Agreement with the soviet government would lessen the tension of defense and would unmuzzle the opposition, who, while the soviet government is attacked, are prepared to help in its defense, while reserving until peace their efforts to alter the Bolshevik regime.

"The forces that would support intervention must be dominated by these of extreme reaction because ail but the reactionaries are prepared temporarily to sink their differences with the Bolsheviki in order to defend the revolution as a whole." Martov finally expressed himself as convinced that, given peace, itself and the needs of the country will bring about the changes he desires.

Army

The soviet army now numbers between 1,000,000 and 1,200.000 troops of the line. Nearly all these soldiers are young men between the ages of 17 and 27. The morale of regiments varies greatly. The convinced communists, who compose the bulk of the army, fight with crusading enthusiasm. Other regiments, composed of patriots but noncommunists, are less spirited; other regiments, composed of men who have entered the army for the slightly higher bread ration are distinctly untrustworthy. Great numbers of officers of the old army are occupying important executive posts in the administration of the new army, but are under control of convinced communist supervisers. Nearly all the lower grade officers of the army are workmen who have displayed courage in the ranks and have been trained in special officer schools. Discipline has been restored, and on the whole 'the spirit of the army appears to be very high, particularly since its recent successes. The soldiers no longer have the beaten dog-like look which distinguished them under the Czar, but carry themselves like freemen, and curiously like Americans. They are popular with the people.

I witnessed a review of 15.000 troops in Petrograd. The men marched well and their equipment of shoes, uniforms, rifles, and machine guns and light artilery was excellent. On the other hand, they had no big guns, no aeroplanes, no gas shells, no liquid fire, nor indeed, any of the more refined instruments of destruction.

The testimony was universal that recruiting for the army is easiest in the districts which having once lived under the soviet were overrun by antisoviet forces and then reoccupied by the Red Army. Trotsky is enormously pround of the army he has created but it is noteworthy that even he is ready to disband the army at once if peace can be obtained in order that all the brains and energy it contains may be turned to restoring the normal life of the country.

Lenin's Prestige

The hold which Lenin has gained on the imagination of the Russian people makes his position almost that of a dictator. There is already a Lening egend. He is regarded as almost, a prophet. His picture, usually accompanied by that of Karl Marx, hangs everywhere. In Russia one never hears Lenin and Trotski spoken of in the same breath as is usual in the western world. Lenin is regarded as in a class by himself. Trotski is but one of the lower order of mortals.

When I called on Lenin at the Kremlin I had to wait a few minutes until a delegation of peasants left his room. They had heard in their village that Comrade Lenin was hungry. And they had come hundreds of miles carrying 800 poods of bread as the gift of the village to Lenin. Just before them was another delegation of peasants to whom the report had come that Comrade Lenin was working in an unheated room. They came bearing a stove and enough firewood to heat it for thre months. Lenin. is the only leader who receives such gifts. And he turns them in to the common fund.

Face to face Lenin is a very striking man straghtforward and direct, but also genial and with a large humor and serenity.

Concessions

The soviet government recognizes very clearly the undesirability of granting concessions to for-eigners and is ready to do so only because of necessity. The members of the Government realize that the lifting of the blockade will be illusory the soviet government is able to establish credits in foreign countries, particularly the United States and England, so that goods may be bought in those countries. For Russia today is in a position to export only a little gold, a little platinum, a little hemp, flax, and wood. These exports will be utterly inadequate to pay for the vast quantity of imports which Russia needs. Russia must, therefore obtain credit at any price. The members of the soviet government realize fully that as a preliminary stepto the obtaining of credit the payment of foreign debts must be resumed and, therefore are ready tosuch debts. But even though these debts are paid the members of the soviet government believe that they will not be able to borrow money in fereign countries on any mere promise to pay. They believe, therefore, that they will have to grant concessions in Russia to foreigners in order to obtain immediate credit. They desire to avoid this expedient if in any way it shall be possible, but if absolutely necessary they are ready to adopt it in order to begin the restoration of the normal life of the country.
