

SOCIALISM AMONG CATHOLICS GROWING SOCIETIES BEING FORMED THROUGHOUT GREAT BRITAIN

Attacks on the Party Resented and Its Principles and High Aspirations Praised and Promulgated. The attitude of the Roman Catholic church towards Socialism has frequently been commented upon in our pages.

Catholic Socialists and Bishop Casartelli. More recently an interesting correspondence has taken place between the Manchester Catholic Society and Dr. Casartelli, Roman Catholic Bishop of Salford.

is a protest against and a negation of Catholic teaching cannot at the same time be in harmony with Catholic teaching? For your Lordship's convenience we will tabulate our programme and request you to point out to us whatever is incompatible with the teaching of the Catholic church.

We anxiously await your Lordship's ruling on these points, as your disapproval of the well-meant efforts of our society is causing us much regret and concern.

Mr. Fogarty, whose name is attached to the letter, was the I.L.P. candidate for the Harpurhey ward of Manchester at the November elections, and polled 2,343 votes, against 2,844 given for his Conservative opponent.

SOCIALISM'S FUTURE. Bryan's Commoner: Now what is to be the future of Socialism? The small vote cast by the Independent party and the Populist party is apt to turn men from both of these parties to the Socialist party.

Upon this subject the habits of our whole species fall into three great classes—useful labor, useless labor, and idleness.

Let us suppose that A and B are a Pennsylvania farmer and a Pennsylvania iron-maker whose lands are adjoining. A is furnishing B with bread and meat, and vegetables and fruits, and food for horses and oxen, and fresh supplies of horses and oxen, themselves occasionally, and receiving in exchange all the iron, iron utensils, tools and implements he needs.

The old general rule was that educated people did not perform manual labor. They managed to eat their bread, leaving the toil of producing it to the uneducated.

But, alas! it did not end here. For immediately the archbishop of Palermo had just expired. "Overcome by these disasters he hurried home, sought his bed, but could not sleep."

Lincoln, and Socialist Principles.

The following quotations from speeches from Abraham Lincoln will be of interest to Socialists as indicating an attitude of mind in many respects similar to that found in Socialist principles.

As labor is the common burden of our race, so the effect of some to shift their share of the burden onto the shoulders of others is the great durable curse of the race.

Concerning capital and labor he said in an address before the Wisconsin State Agricultural Society at Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 30, 1850:

The world is agreed that labor is the source from which human wants are mainly supplied. There is no dispute upon this point.

But another class of reasoners hold that labor is prior to, and independent of, capital; that, in fact, capital is the fruit of labor, and could never have existed if labor had not first existed.

In the same address he also says: "The old general rule was that educated people did not perform manual labor. They managed to eat their bread, leaving the toil of producing it to the uneducated."

But, alas! it did not end here. For immediately the archbishop of Palermo had just expired. "Overcome by these disasters he hurried home, sought his bed, but could not sleep."

In the morning he was startled by a rumbling noise which he recognized at once to be the motion of the wooden instrument which makes spaghetti.

Lincoln the Emancipator.

BY ROBERT HUNTER.
TODAY the whole nation commemorates solemnly the name of Lincoln. All classes and ranks of life gather today to listen to eulogies pronounced upon the life and service of our martyred president.

It should never be so. The strongest bond of human sympathy, outside of the family relation, should be one uniting all working people, of all nations, and tongues, and kindreds.

THE CAUSE OF POVERTY--By John M. Work.

HAS IT ever occurred to you that there has never been a time since civilization began when everybody in the world had enough to eat and wear and a place to lay his head?

SOCIALIST MARTYRDOM.

TEN CENTS GOOD DAY'S WAG

"Ten cents a day! Why, that is good wages for the work she does!" The proprietor of the sweatshop where Mrs. Sarah Arbotman has been receiving this magnificent sum in return for work which has nearly worn her life away, shrugged his shoulders, and explained that if a woman works steadily, day in and day out, "finishing pants," she can make as much as $1.50 a week.

Socialism is to me no more than and no less than the awakening of a collective consciousness in humanity, a collective will and a collective mind out of which finer individualities may arise forever in a perpetual series of fresh endeavors and fresh achievements for the race.—H. G. Wells.

WHAT IS KILLING THE PEOPLE

Dr. Woods Hutchinson of New York unlocked the secret of general poverty in an address at the American Museum of Natural History in New York early this month when he said: "What is killing the people of this city may be stated as overwork, underfeeding and overcrowding; and two of these may be included under the one word 'underpaid.'"

LET THE PEOPLE OWN THE SENATE

[Selected Paragraphs from Prof. J. Allen Smith's Book, "The Spirit of American Government."]

WE have now come to accept the view that every organ of government must be approved or condemned according as it furthers or hinders the ends of democracy.

What, then, can be done to make that body an organ of democracy? There are three distinct evils in the senate as it is now organized. The first pertains to irresponsibility of its members due to their method of election and long term of office.

The second defect in the senate is the equal representation of the states in that body. It is not only absurd, but manifestly unjust that a small state like Nevada should have as much representation in the controlling branch of congress as New York with more than one hundred and seventy-one times as much population.

The third defect in the senate is the extraordinary power which the constitution has conferred upon it. There is still another respect in which this equality of representation in the senate is unfortunate.

It is not probable, however, that the Supreme court would much longer be permitted to thwart the will of the majority if the other branches of the federal government were thoroughly imbued with the belief in democracy. As children deserved his vote.

Ald. Carney voiced the opposition to the schools, and among other things said the officials ought to be in jail if the schools in the Twenty-third ward were as represented. This raised a smile, as it was due to the manipulation of his own party, while in power, that the school system became so badly crippled.

A GRAND WATER WAY NEXT! Power Resources in This Age of Machinery. Milwaukee's Opportunity.

The feature in which our advancement of today exceeds all others, is the development and use of power. The first power was produced directly by falling water and wind; water being the only steady power, the machines of labor performed by it had to be brought to where nature had arranged the waterfall.

Then came steam, which uses the energy stored in wood or coal; the proximity of water power then ceased to control. Wherever the material for feeding machinery was found, the steam engine has been established and the fuel carried to it. The ordinary steam engine utilizes about 5 per cent of the energy stored in coal; the balance, 95 per cent, goes out of the chimney as waste.

Electrical transmission of power is the new method resulting in radical changes. This new development in applied science calls for reapportionment of sources from which our power is derived, and brings to the front water power again. The great gain which results from electric transmission is the utilization of water power remote from power markets.

Herein lies the greatest utility of wind also, although wind is too unsteady for direct use of power. It does well to pump water back to a reservoir above, thus replenishing the storage of water with scarcely any cost.

Organized Labor legal defense in these cases before the courts. Upon the injunction abuse the Denver convention of the American Federation of Labor declared, "That we will exercise all the rights and privileges guaranteed to us by the constitution and laws of our country, and insist that it is our duty to defend ourselves at all hazards."

It Does Not Dictate.

The Socialist party does not seek to dictate to organized labor in matters of internal organization and union policy.

Organized labor is today confronted by a great crisis. The capitalists, intoxicated with wealth and power and alarmed by the increasing political and economic activity of the working class, have as a class undertaken a crusade for the destruction of the labor organizations.

The movement for the so-called open shop but thinly veils an attempt to close the shops against organized workmen...

Courts Always Hostile.

The courts, always hostile to labor, have of late outdone all previous records in perverting the law to the service of the capitalist class.

They have sustained the capitalists in bringing damage suits against unions for the purpose of tying up or sequestering their funds.

While affirming the right of employers to bar organized workmen from employment, they have declared it unlawful for workmen to agree not to patronize non-union establishments.

Danbury Hatters' Case.

In the Danbury hatters' case the United States Supreme Court has rendered a decision worthy to stand with its infamous 'Dred Scott decision' of fifty years ago.

By this decision the Supreme Court has clearly shown itself to be an organ of class injustice, not of social justice.
