MAKE CHEAP SILK

The Story of a Fifteen-year-old Weaver in the Paterson Silk Mills, as Told by Her to Inis Weed and Louise Carey

From "The Masses"

Teresa led us through a narrow passage way into an inviting little garden, containing patches of...

"It is like Italy!" was our involuntary exclamation as we sat down on the little bench...

"Oh, no! It is not so beautiful, like Italy," protested Teresa, shaking her pretty head.

"Do you like America?" "No," thoughtfully, "I do not like my country."

"What became of you then?" "When my brother and I were seven years with our grandfathers in the morning."

the ground. Teresa, owing to her head, had not worked a full year; but the law said there was no escape from the contract.

In the fourteen weeks since she stopped working under this vicious contract she has gained eleven pounds. It is significant when compared with the fact that during her two years in the mills she gained only six pounds.

"I hate to go back to that mill," said Teresa, as we talked of her future. "I have always loved to dress and screamed at it. Maybe a girl would not be so afraid to go to work if they knew what she did, it fine everyone of you."

LABOR NEWS THE WORLD OVER

(Continued from Page One) fellow to a man who hid them in the law. (Laughter of approval from the audience.) The majority of bills concluded were, however, successfully, are choked, ours were bung—enough said.

The Chicago Painters' Union continues to be a thorn in the side of the safe and sane pure and simple unions. As a result of the pressmen's strike of last year, Hester papers were placed on the unfair list. To prove his friendship to organized labor, Billie decided to publish a special union labor (?) edition, printed by the scab pressmen, and edited by an other than Simon O'Donnell, president of the Chicago Building Trades Council, with the cooperation of the president of the molders' union. The painters, ten thousand strong, withdrew from the council as a protest. Simon, to accommodate the building contractors, organized a local of painters and glaziers and put them on the job. The painters struck. This proved a little too much even for the patient Chicago slave. The unions became restless. Protests were taken in. The labor edition fell through; the painters were sent back into the fold after paying $2,000 for insubordination. The John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, bitterly complains that 172 manufacturers who employ a large number of laborers, have organized to circumvent the usefulness of the Newland Medication Act. Oh, you labor law!

New Zealand. The "striking country," the home of state socialism, is suffering severely from a general strike. The struggle is a test of strength between the employers and the Federation of Labor, an organization which is not registered under the famous, or infamous, compulsory arbitration act of 1902. The upheaval began with a strike of shipwrights several weeks ago. The men demanded higher wages, improved conditions and recognition of the union. The dockers and miners laid down their tools in sympathy and other trades followed their example. Rebels, take heed, because the reform and law dams cannot stem the tide of the revolutionary labor movement, driven by the force of economic development. Anyone who read and digested the statistics about the Australian labor movement which we cited in our last letter will know the feasibility of a general naval, and will know what to answer to the law-crazed reformer.

Practical Decentralization

Actions speak louder than words. By their deeds ye shall know them. Decentralization is a beautiful theory, but it can't be put into working order by boycotting I. W. W. papers. That is the tactics of a slimy capitalist spy. Or by drawing up new plans, charts, maps, etc., with zones, districts, etc. Or by making a decentralization constitution, that would mean a decentralized organization on paper only. You can't decentralize from the top; you may attempt it, but you will only disrupt. Start from the bottom. You can only have democracy through an active rank and file. Try to organize the job you are working on. Build up your local union; build up your district industrial council; set your national organization. If you are working in a big town or city, start a local I. W. W. and make of it a powerful local organization. By such action, you will gradually absorb most of the functions of the General Organization. It seems to me that we have such scattered over such a vast territory, that if we try to decentralize too soon, there will be nothing left but a few anarchist groups to tell the tale that there was once an organization called the I. W. W. in America. The I. W. W. philosophy, its tactical methods and its form of organization, look good to me, and I stand ready to defend them at all times.

I have seen few decentralizers on the firing line; most of them I have seen only hanging around the hall, controlling the business meetings and blocking all efforts at constructive propaganda. JOHN PANCRER. San Francisco.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT INVENTION ON STEEL

Pittsburg, Oct. 25.—A new process has been invented by Dr. Frederic L. Bishop, Dean of the School of Engineering of the University of Pittsburg, which, it is reported, more than doubles the strength of steel and almost three-fold. It is also said that it will mean a reduction in cost of production. The new process is also said to insure uniformity for automobiles and locomotive axles and all other machinery parts requiring uniform quality. The process is described as a method of treating metal so as to change the molecular structure and size by subjecting material to the action of a magnetic field of alternating electric current. By the ordinary method of treatment steel is given a tensile strength of 60,000 lbs. to the square inch. The new method is said to give a tensile strength of 100,000 lbs. and at the same time make the material tougher. An advantage of importance pointed out by the Bishop process is that the same treatment can be given to any number of pieces of metal at different times, always producing the same results, insuring a uniform product.

Cost of Living Crazes Many

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 27.—The steadily increasing high cost of living threatens to compel Ohio to build more asylums to house its breadwinners who are worried into insanity through inability to "make both ends meet." Reports of the State Board of Administration to Gov. Cox show that over 13 per cent. of the 2,924 Ohioans whose mental health has been so seriously affected because of the strain of financial trouble—overwork, worry and nervous exhaustion. Statistics of the occupations of those admitted show that more and more persons in walks of life where the remuneration is not great are committed each year—laborers, mechanics, miners, painters, carpenters. The percentage of professional mates has correspondingly decreased. Anyone finding Card No. 116850, Con. Murphy, please return to Local 463, Box 516, Taft, Calif.
