WASHINGTON, June . 20.—Repre-sentative William C. Redfield, Brook lyn member, delivered a speech in the House in which he showed his fellow members that he has first hand information about manufacturers (being one himself), and the cheapness of labor.

Said Redfield: "In the year 1905 there appeared ertain sacred words, familiar to this House, which at the beginning of what I have to say I desire to read as the text of my remarks. These words are

SIGNED EDITORIAL MEASURE PASSED

Senate Adopts Bill Making Heeler Levy, Its Sponsor, Writers Put Name After "Opinions."

ALBANY, June 20 .- By a vote of 28 to 2 the State Senate today passed Senator Grady's bill requiring the printing on the editorial page of the name of the writer at the end of each There were twenty-one absent Senators. The bill requires only twenty-six votes to pass. The bill provides as follows

The owner, proprietor, or the corporation, association or partnership publishing or causing to be published ing charge of the publication of newspaper, shall cause a page or por newspaper, shall cause a page or portion of every issue or edition thereof circulated or published in this State to be set apart and conspicuously designated as the editorial section. Every article published in such editorial section shall be sgned in full by the writer thereof. A violation of this section by such owner of proprietor, or by the corporation, association or partnership owning or publishing or causing the same to be publishing or causing the same to be published, or the manager or other persons having charge of such publications, shall, be a misdemeanor.

Senators Grady and Ferris defended the bill. Senator Ferris stating that this was his first experience in political life, that he expected that it would be his last, and that he realized that a person in public life invited political extinction by supporting such a measure.

Nevertheless, he had many experiences which taught him that the editorials of some men were not entitled to all the force which they now have.

"If we have the name of the writer of an editorial attached thereto," said senator Grady, "we would be perfectly willing to permit the public to judge between the critic and the criticized. The editorial page has become descause of what, is called the tion of every issue or edition thereof willing to permit the public to judge between the critic and the criticized. The editorial page has become degraded because of what is called the impersonal criticism of journalism.

We are not disturbed with criticism of those editorial writers known to have as much truth and veracity as ourselves. But we should be protected from the editorial writer actuated from bias or otherwise than in the public interest or the truth. This bill will be a protection against fraud as well as injustice. I have an editorial here from a New York evening newspaper recommending land on the north side of 125th street in New York City, between Seventh and Eighth avenues, as a good investment. YONKERS, N. Y., June 20.—Coroner Alfred R. Iles will tomorrow make public a finding censuring the New York Central Railroad Company for not having two men in the cabs of their electric motor engines. He says great loss of life may result if the motorman of an electric train is stricken at his post and there is no one in the cab to bring the train to a stop.

It was brought out at the inquest into the death of Alfred J. Foreman, who was killed last month, that only one man rode in each cab and the coroner then expressed his intention of calling the matter to the attention of the Public Service Commission.

Assistant District Attorney Clark submitted as documentary evidence an agreement signed by Reichmann, as president of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Securities Company, and Condon, dated October 23, 1909. Clark did not at this point explain the significance of the agreement, but Baidwin jumped up and exclaimed:

"I will concede that the Merchants and Manufacturers' Securities Company was a holding company for the Vita Colorado Mining and Smelting Company, and that it held 51 per cent of the stock of the latter.

WASHINGTON, June 20. — The Chinese cruiser Hai Chi, now participating in the naval review at Spithead, England, will visit New York City early in land, will visit New Fork City early in July.

This will be the first Chinese war vessel to visit American waters and preparations are being made for the entertainment of the crew. According to officers of the State Department, only once before has a Chinese ship visited an American port. That was in 1880, when a small Chinese merchant vessel stopped at San Francisco.

The Hai Chi is the largest vessel in the Chinese navy, having a displacement of 4,300 tons. She has a speed of twenty-four knots and an armament of two S-inch and ten 47-inch guns. After visiting the United States the Hai Chi will proceed to Mexican ports.

ENGLISH SOCIALIST AT KAISER'S TABLE

Odd Conduct of Ramsey MacDonald With German War Lord.

The action of J. Ramsay MacDon ald in dining with the Kaiser of Germany has created considerable discus-tion among militant English and

In this week's issue of Justice, of London, the official organ of the So-tial Democratic Federation, H. W. Lee makes the following comment on that much talked of luncheon:

There may be a deeper significance behind the attendance of Mr. J. Ram-say MacDonald at the lunch given by ount Haldane to the Kaiser during his recent visit to this country than appears at first sight. It is certain that invitations are never issued for a luncheon or dinner to a monarch without consultation with him, and no would be invited whom he did not be to meet. We may take it for ited, therefore, that the Kaiser was perfectly willing—perhaps, in-leed, anxious—to meet Mr. MacDon-

We should like to ask whether it is fact that the Kaiser himself wished Mr. MacDenald to be invited to the luncheon given by Viscount Haldane; whether Viscount Haldane, being somewhat surprised at he request. consulted the King; whether the King suggested that the Cabinet had bet-ter be consulted; whether some mem-hers of the Cabinet demurred; and whether, in the end, the German Cab-inet were consulted and fell in with the Kaiser's request? If thus the in-vitation went to Mr. MacDonald, who naturally accepted it, seeing that from the Revisionist standpoint the reception and recognition of a Socialist by the highest of the ruling caste must necessarily be beneficial to the Social-ist movement. It is hardly necessary to say that we do not share that opin-

What's the Kaiser's Motives.

The question naturally arises, what tould have been the motive of the Kaiser in so particularly wishing to meet Mr. MacDonald? We may be sure it was not merely to see what sort aure it was not merely to see what sort of face and figure he possessed, or to learn something of his personal tastes and opinions. If that were merely what he desired, such wishes would have been met in a far less public and official manner than through the medium of a lunch given by one of the foremost members of the British We may be sure, therefore that the Kaiser had a far deeper pur-pose in view. It has been suggested in some silly Tory sheet that he wished to meet Mr. Ramsay MacDonald be cause of the later's opposition to the increase of British naval armaments, which attitude admirably suited German foreign policy. Such a sugges-tion may be at once dismissed as ab surd. It is far more likely that the motive concerned questions of Ger-man home rule rather than foreign

The expansion of Germany from the capitalist standpoint is bound to place that country in a position where force of arms will have to be taken into serious consideration, even if their ac tual use can fortunately be avoided. In stating this fact we are not cast-ing the slightest reflection upon the German people. In the present state of Socialist opinion upon the question of armanents any reference to Ger-many has to be made with the greatest many has to be made with the greatest care in order to avoid misunderstand What is the one force in Ger many that hampers German Imperial

The Revisionist section showed considerable strength at the last Congress of the German Social Democratic party. They have among them some very brilliant men. They are not at all indisposed to take part in the management of national affairs under existing bourgeois governments—some of them may even be willing to accept Ministerial posts.

To such policy the Radical section of the German Social Democratic party have always been strenuously opposed. Here is a difference in policy within the German Social Democratic party which may possibly be used to weaken the party before the next Reichstag elections. It is true that the constitution of the German intercourse with any of the portion parties which form the German Parliament.

But is is possible in another way to convey to the Revisionist wing of the German Social Democratic party the idea that the Kalser does not wish to adopt toward that wing the attitude of resolute autagonism, which he has hitherto maintained against the Social Democratic party as a whole. That is the course which the English governing class would take in similar circumstances. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald has many personal friends among the Revisionists of the German Social Democratic party; so that he can be used as an excellent medium for indicating to them any attitude which the Kalser, may wish to Reformed Presbyterian thurch from holding an election of elders for the ensuing year. This was done after the minority faction, representing the old members, had gone into court and secured an injunction ordering the election delayed until the troubles in the church could be threshed out.

Several weeks ago doors were battered down, eyes discolored and clothing torn when an attempt was made to hold a meeting of the board. This was because two elders, who had been expelled from the church, it is sate, persisted in attending the meeting.

FOR THE U. S. ARMY

Spectacle of Prisoners Works ing Under Guard Bad for Recruits.

WASHINGTON, June 26: ost modern and advanced ideas upon enology will be introduced into the army method of handling garrison prisoners, according to orders just is-sued by Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of staff. The new regulations will not apply to military convicts. but only to those sentenced to con finement and hard labor without be ing discharged from the service.

The purpose behind the new regula ions is to give the prisoner every opportunity to make good, instead discouraging all effort loward good behavior. Under the new orders, garrison prisoners will be allowed an abatement of five days of their terms of confinement for each period of twenty-five days of good, conduct. when serving sentences of one month and not more than three months. On sentences exceeding three months they will be allowed the five days abatement for the first month, and thereafter ten days' abatement for each period of twenty days' good conduct. Abatements thus authorized may be forfeited wholly or in part by subsequent misconduct.

May Submit Request.

A garrison prisoner who has served one-half of a sentence of ten days of more, according to the new orders may submit a request to be put or probation for the remainder of the sentence, and his request if gratified may be restored to duty on condition that if his conduct is not good while on probation he will be required to serve the remainder of his sentence.

The new orders also make impotant changes in the methods of workthe commanders of the several departments:

"The present system of working prisoner's under sentinels conveys a false impression as to the character of the prisoners, gives the public the erroneous idea that the army is full of bad characters requiring forcible handling, is injurious to the self-respect of the prisoners, discourages enlistments, and lowers the military service-in public opinion. tion to these objections, the system constitutes a heavy drain upon the command furnishing the necessar;

Interest of Service.

"It is deemed advisable and in the interests of the service, to adopt a different method of handling those garrison prisoners who are confined for comparatively short periods of time, to the end that the fewest practicable number of prisoners may be required to work under guard.

"It is, therefore, directed that as far as is pacticable, as may be de termined by post commanders in ac ordance with the above policy, gar rison prisoners will be paroled for under the general supervision of the officer or noncommissioned of prisoners whose character of offense are of such a nature as to requir that they be kept under armed guard shall be assigned tasks, as far as prac ticable, which will make the present little conspicuous as possible.

JOHNSON'S LIEUTENANT TO RUN FOR MAYOR

CLEVELAND. Ohio. Jupe 20.—Newton D. Baker. City Solicitor, chief lieutenant of the late Mayor Tom L. Johnson, has formally announced that he is in the race for Mayor, subject to the Democratic primaries.

Announcemnt of Baker's candidacy is the first definite, positive step in the campaign. The only other definite development so far was negative in character. Mayor Bachr's statement that he would not again seek the office.

Baker's announcement, in view of the fact that he is chairman of the Luyahoga County Democratic organization, practically marks the opening of the Democratic campaign and ends all uncertainty as to who will be the organization's candidate.

The steam chests and air tanks were ripped off both locomotives by the force of the impact. The air tank of the express locomotive plowed the entire length of the mail car, which was crushed against the smoking car. Immediately everything in the neighborhood of the two locomotives was either smothered in clouds of escaping steam or flooded under scalding water. R. E. Vessey, a clerk in the mail car, was painfully scalded about the hands and face.

Mary Magee, who was triding in the smoking car, was terribly scalded, and her recovery is doubtful. Fifteen of the injured were taken to the Rannolph Sanitarium, where their burns were dressed.

Among the injured are Fearly and the force of the floor.

His message to the fast disappear-ing middle class sounded ominous to the ears of the small storekeepers and property owners. He showed them the utter futility of trying to escape the doom of being hurled from the bur-geoisie into the proletariat. He described their battles in this fierce struggle for an existence, when they have now all they can do to keep from

He had important messages to the workingmen, recalling to their mem-ory the different and eternal strus-gles of enslaved and gagged labor men-tioning in turn the dread days when tioning in turn the dread days when five men, all labor men, were sacrificed on the sacred altar of labors emancipation, the numerous railroad strikes, the Homestead massacre, the Mover and Haywood and Pettibone persecution, up to the present fight to free the McNamara brothers. He showed them in his natural appealing manner that they will only be free when they want to be free.

Many Don't Want Freedom.

And many, he said, don't want to be free, because they don't even kno what economic and political freedom means. They don't know what it means to be free from care, free from worry, free from fear and free from wage slavery. NIGHT COURT IDEA DISPLEASES MAYOR

Mayor Gaynor is not sure a Night Court is worth while. Speaking yesterday at a public hearing on a number of legislative bills he said:
"I am one of those." said the Mayor, who have doubted that we need any Night Court at all. About all that they exist for is to let people go who should not have been arrested at all. When I attended a session of the Night Court, about 60 per cent of those brought in had to be discharged on the spot for the reason that they should not have been arrested at all. "They were arrested for all sorts of frivolous and ridiculous reasons. I am trying to stop those kinds of arrest by the police, and if I succeed there will not be much doing in the Night Court. As for the criminal classes, I doubt if we ought to be in any great hurry to discharge them during the night, It is time enough to arraign them in the morning."

A WALL STREET ROWDY GETS A BROAD HINT

WEDNESDAY JUNE 21.

A story is being repeated in Wall Street to the effect that when tion, emanating from "property ownthe billion dollar Steel Trust was formed. John W. Gates requested ers." Morgan answered that ers and associations for local im-Gates' record was no recommendation for the position, to which provement of property in various the other replied that ail that had been done by him had been done be said to be useful. But none the less it is robbery, just as it is an important part of the capitalist system, which itself is based upon the robbery of the workers and could have no existence without such foundation.

Robbery of the workers is so skillfully disguised under the wage system that it is impossible to clearly recognize it without the aid of Socialist analysis. The fleecing of the middle class and smaller capitalists by the Morgans and other great financiers is much éasier to discern. As a part of the process by which wealth and industry is concentrated, its effects cannot be hidden. That which was once is concentrated, its effects cannot be hidden. That which was once distinct and tangible as property in the hands of the smaller capitalists is no longer there and is so clearly in the hands of the Morgans that there is simply no use in denying the obvious fact. Once they had it. Now Morgan has it. And when this kind of thing is planned it must necessarily be behind closed doors.

Gates, though as keen and resourceful and strategic as any of the tribe of big devourers, appears to be peculiarly obtuse in this respect.

tribe of big devourers, appears to be peculiarly obtuse in this respect. He evidently sees no necessity for secrecy and openly despises it, publicly declaring that what he has done has been done where all could see, a claim which if not wholly true, is at least partially so. Gates seems to imagine that in some way this claim attests his honesty or frankness, and relying probably upon the legality of his operations, he is loud-mouthed and boastful of his successful fleecing, and swaggers through the financial world contemptuously ignoring its "unwritten law" of secrecy. It is not strange that to the cautious and astute Morgan he appears an undesirable, if not dangerous, constraints and the stability of society in after promise from transportations. Mayors and inanciers: that the entire history of transportation in, New York City has been one continuous record of traud, its "unwritten law" of secrecy. It is not strange that to the cautious and astute Morgan he appears an undesirable, if not dangerous, character.

It is this peculiar trait that has earned Gates the popular epithet "gambler," while his more prudent brethren are referred to by the dignified and perfectly respectable title of "financiers." They strive vated roads, and that somehow or to conceal the fact that they are engaged in a game of any kind, while Gates openly glories in it and cares not who knows it, as his other sobriquet of "Bet-a-Million Gates" implies.

It is highly recovered that they are engaged in a game of any kind, while Ryans and Morgans, Beliuonts and Bradys, and other people who, though I suppose they really evisit are after.

It is highly necessary that the fleecing of the smaller fry should proceed decorously, decently and in order, and be made to look as unlike robbery as possible. The Morgan method on the whole secures this effect despite the savage attacks. cures this effect despite the savage attacks made upon him from time to time, and it is worth noting that in one particular period of stress the class that had been berating Morgan most lustily, suddenly turned to acclaim him as the "savior of the country," a title which, it is safe to say, the rowdy Gates could never obtain.

Morgan is polite to those he has fleeced, while Gates is gratuit. ously rude to his victims, and does not conceal his vulgar gratification in having trimmed them. The difference is that between the mooth, polished croupier, who with impassive face and immaculate behavior presides at a Monte Carlo, and the loud-voiced combination of gambler, bully and braggart, who from time to time sweeps the tables and attracts undue attention to his growing pile without has happened in the past cannot be undone, and that the past cannot be was not without reason that the master-gamester, Morgan "called down" a character of this sort. Such rowdyism isn't good for the game, and besides discouraging the suckers, it irritates them also, way and the elevated. The air in the which last is needless and might be easily avoided by a more chastened demeanor on the part of the winners. To publicly chuckle over the gains, easily leads to the impression that they are "ill-gotten," and such conduct is distinctly detrimental if not democratic the description of the winners. To publicly chuckle over the gains, easily leads to the impression that they are "ill-gotten," and strap, as I have been doing for They choked in the fractour fumes, and your dividend paved the pathsuch conduct is distinctly detrimental if not dangerous to the game.

A reproof from Morgan is not a thing to be lightly passed over, and it is quite possible that before Morgan is through with him, "Bet-a-Million Gates" may find this out to his cost. He has bragged vociferously from time to time of "putting the rollers under" various perfectly respectable financial persons, and needs a lesson in good manners, and if Morgan undertakes it, he will assuredly pay for the teaching. There are "rollers" also in Wali Street for the benefit of those who queer the game with their ruffianly behavior, and the master of the layout can set them in motion when he pleases. The time may come when the "closed doors" in Wall Street will see the rowdy Gates on the outside looking in, instead of on the inside looking out.

ROYAL DOINGS

About the only thing in the papers the past few days, aside from the general run of murder, suicide and aggravated assault, have been long accounts of how King George is going to have his crown placed on his royal brow tomorrow. If all Americans would not be able to go through the ceremony without a blunder, in case the chance caime with circulars and advertising go through the ceremony without a blunder, in case the chance came to them to be kings, it is because they have not read the papers Even the smallest details have been described, and plentiful pictures given from former coronations.

We have lost all feeling about that former George, the mail king, with whom we waged bitter war. We are not only going to be represented at court by Mr. Hammond, but Mr. Morgan will be the unofficial representative of our financial might. They could not keep him out if they tried, because if they did try he would probably foreclose on the royal regalia and forbid the whole thing.

As American newspapers know what the public wants, it is highly significant to notice the amount of matter that is published on this event. Much of it is slush; much of it is in a jesting vein. They ask me to help them to help One thing, however, is not jest, and that is the amount of money rich Americans are going to spend in this London parade, and there are thousands of other rich Americans who wish they were there to add to the spending and receive some of the reflected glory of the event. Our rich people are thoroughly in sympathy with royalty and with the ideas involved in kingship. In fact, they are more inclined to monarchy than the English people themselves, and it is this pageant, and leads them to such ecstasies of delight at being able to see the pageant, and leads them to spend such huge sums of money, sweated from American labor, for the chance to get near royalty.

The members to whatever nickels I may have to expend for transportation. THE KEENING

By MARIE E. J. PITT, in the Sydney Bulletin. Where the sons of men are triced

We are the women and children Of the men that mined for gold. Heavy are we with sorrow, Heavy as heart can hold:

Galled are we with injustice, Sick to the souls of loss; Husbands and sons and brothers

Slain for the yellow dross. Of the men that died like sheep, Stopping the stubborn matrix.

Piling the mullock heap.

Stifling in torrid rises.
