SOCIALISM vs. ANARCHISM.

An address delivered by DANIEL DE LEON

IN PAINE MEMORIAL HALL, BOSTON, MASS., SUNDAY AFTERNOON, OCT. 13, 1901, UNDER THE AUSPICES OF SECTION BOSTON, SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY.

What is it like? The following headlines taken from the "Boston Morning Journal" will tell you:

They Aired Their "Isms"—Came Very Near Coming to Blows in the Process—De Leon Landed Socialism, and Dunned All Else—Anarchists Jump On Him Like Dogs After a Cat—He Attacks Republicans, Democrats, Social Democrats, Catholics and Protestants.

A GREAT LABOR DISPLACER

ELEVATED ROAD'S NEW POWER HOUSE READY.

Furnaces Fed Automatically From Coal-Bunkers—Ashes Fall Into Dump Cars—Automatic Oiler Does the Work of Fifty Men.

The engineers who for the last two years have been at work preparing the largest electric-power plant in the world, that of the Manhattan Railway Company, hope on Wednesday, and perhaps even to-day, to begin moving some of the trains on the Second Avenue elevated road with current from the new power-house at Seventy-fifth street and the East River. The new station, which embodies the most modern devices for producing an enormous current at minimum cost, is a fine building of light-colored brick, 204 feet wide by 580 feet in length; its huge size is somewhat dwarfed by the four chimney-stacks that rise 278 feet from the ground.

The "Railway Street Journal" gives interesting facts and figures, taken from the engineers' reports, as to the electrical equipment and what it is expected to do. The eight dynamos, of which only the first will be begun working this week, are expected to furnish a total of 100,000 horse-power, or about twice the amount generated by the present plant at Niagara Falls. Each dynamo is literally as big as a small house, the ring measuring 42 feet in diameter and weighing about 100 tons. Each dynamo as a whole is estimated to weigh about 450 tons. The steam power required for the whole plant is generated by 64 boilers, heated by 64 furnaces FED AUTOMATICALLY from coal-bunkers at the top of the building holding 15,000 tons of coal.

The ashes from the furnaces fall into dump-cars running upon tracks in the basement. A force of about 100 stokers will be required. Before the present automatic stoking devices came into use, 300 men would have been needed. All over the building machinery has replaced hand labor so far as possible. The giant engines are oiled by what is known as the Siegrist automatic oiler, which forces oil to every bearing and does away with at least fifty men who would be kept busy handling the 5,000 gallons of oil daily needed to keep the machinery in condition. Electricity is used for handling machinery, raising coal, water, carrying off ashes, etc.

Some conception of the vast size of the new power-house is afforded by the statement that it has required 6,000 tons of iron and steel, nearly the amount used in the Brooklyn Bridge. With light on all sides, the interior, both boiler-rooms, as well as dynamo-rooms, are light, the walls of white tile and the tile floors adding to the impression of strength and cleanliness. The offices for the engineers are on the second floor, commanding a view of the dynamo-room. For the public, there is a reception-room, from which a view of the machinery may be obtained. It is probable that when this is thrown open, a fee for the "benefit of the men" will be charged.

Besides the power-house at Seventy-fifth street, there are seven sub-stations in convenient parts of the city, which serve to reduce the current, which is sent out at a pressure of 12,000 volts, and has to be reduced to 500 volts before reaching the elevated road motors. The sub-stations have neither boilers nor dynamos. It is expected that the eight dynamos of the main station will be in place within the next year. The engineers are confident that, with the quicker starting and stopping of the trains, the passenger-carrying efficiency of the elevated road will be increased fully 20 per cent. The doing away with chinders, smoke, much of the noise and the possibility of lighting the cars and station with electricity, besides the great reduction in labor, are some of the additional advantages.

Elizabeth, New Jersey, Attention. L. A. 259, Elizabeth, N. J. will hold an open meeting at Sanger Hall, corner Elizabeth avenue and Fourth street, on Saturday, December 14, at 8 p. m.

A. Gillhaus, of New York, will deliver an address on the subject: "The S. T. and L. A. versus old style trades unionism." Questions invited. Party members and readers of the PEOPLE are requested to bring as many of their workmen friends—union or non-union—as possible.

The Vote in Dayton, Ohio. Last year the S. L. P. vote in Dayton was 64. So far as can be learned the vote this year is over 160 straight. Social Democracy last year, 810; this year, 537.

Troy, N. Y. Section Wenselaer will hold a special meeting Wednesday evening, Dec. 11, 8 P. M. All Party members are requested to attend, business of importance. Organizer.
