THE FREIGHT HANDLERS

An Ex-Longshoreman on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Strike

To the striking Longshoremen—We who are members of the Socialist Labor Party recognize the fact that economic conditions have forced you workmen to go out on strike. The cost of living, the prices that you pay for food, clothing and shelter have gone up and you are forced to demand better conditions from your employers to enable you to try to meet them. But the bosses know that if you were given more wages the dividends of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. would be reduced; that more pay for the workmen would mean less profits for the stockholders of the company, hence they resist your demands and would if they could, compel you to submit to whatever conditions they choose to impose upon you.

In this you have an instance of the class struggle which is going on to-day. This is the struggle between the working class which produces all the wealth and receives less than one-fifth of it in the form of wages, on the one side and the capitalist owners of the tools of production, who produce nothing but crime and misery for the workers, and who, under the present system, are legally entitled to the products of our labor and strive hard to prevent us from obtaining any more of it than will barely permit us to exist.

Recognizing this struggle and the need for its abolition and knowing that only by way of the ballot box can it finally be abolished, we, workmen, call upon you to read and study the literature of the Socialist Labor Party and the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance in order that you may learn the causes of and the right remedy for the troubles that are at the bottom of your being out on strike at this time against the oppression of your masters who own the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

Most of you are organized into trades unions, formed on the plan of the old British trade unions "pure and simple" and are likely to say to us "this is an economic fight, a struggle between the unions and the bosses and we don't want you to talk politics to us at this time. We don't want any politics in our unions." Those who teach you to raise that cry mean that you must not have working class politics brought into your unions. Your capitalist masters see to it however, that you have capitalist politics taught to you both in and out of the union. They know what you ought to know, that politics—the possession of the political power—is the key to the situation and the side that holds it will win out in the economic field. This is why at the approach of an election the spell-binders of capitalism will come among you and try to jolly you into voting for this or that set of capitalist politicians in order that your masters may still retain the power to force you to submit to their terms, a power thus given them by your foolishness in allowing yourselves to be bamboozled into voting against your own interests.

Whether they be Democratic or Republican makes no difference in the treatment they accord you whenever you attempt to improve your condition by striking without the aid of the political backing you ought to have had you used your ballot right in your class interest on election day. When you went on strike on the docks of the Clyde line, the Tammany Mayor Van Wyck, whom you had helped to elect, obeyed the orders of his masters or you might call it the request of his fellow-capitalists, and sent the police to club you into submission. In the present strike you have the same experience with Mayor McClellan and his Police Commissioner McAdoo, who are placing the members of the police force at the disposal of the bosses and permitting them to be supplied with meal tickets by the New Haven corporation.

Fellow workmen, until you learn to take working class politics into the unions, you will have strikes and lockouts and empty stomachs and be treated to clubs, bayonets, "rifle diet" and those galling guns on paper called injunctions, by the Republican and Democratic representatives of the capitalists whom you have placed in possession of the powers of government, by refusing to vote as we of the Socialist Labor Party vote—for possession of the political power by our own class to be wielded only in the interest of our class, the working class.

It is easy to furnish illustrations of the truth of the above statements. You have all heard of the Idaho "bull pen" where miners who were threatening to strike were rounded up in an infamous "pen" and guarded by regular troops sent by a Republican president, McKinley, at the request of a Democratic governor Steunberg. You have seen Democratic President Cleveland send troops into Chicago to crush the Pullman strikers, Democratic Governor Flower and Republican Governor Morton doing likewise in this State to the strikers of Buffalo and Brooklyn, and so on down to the case of your present struggle.

A BOOK CAMPAIGN

That Was Profitable To One Socialist and To Socialism—Ruther's Experience.

Early this spring the painful necessity came to me that I must have a new artificial leg, but how to get it was the more painful problem. With not a cent in my pocket and not a loose dollar in sight anywhere, it was indeed a tough proposition.

About that time there came to me a copy of Bebel's book "Woman under Socialism" and with it an inspiration. I made up my mind to sell that book and earn enough money to buy a new leg. My mind thus made up, I carried on a regular campaign, with the result that up to date I have sold nearly 100 books.

This campaign has taught me several valuable lessons. In the first place it taught me the lesson that the material needs of a person are a powerful incentive to one's thoughts and actions, and it proved to me if ever the working class realizes the fact that through Socialism only can its material needs be satisfied then a powerful movement will surely spring up as if by magic. I would never have thought it possible that I could go out and sell 100 socialist books in so short a time. I knew I could sell a few; perhaps a half a dozen or so. Necessity drove me to this extra exertion.

Another lesson I learned is the fact that a socialist to be of any use to the movement must be absolutely clear upon what socialism stands for. This gives him the moral courage to advocate socialism against all-comers. This in turn wins respect for socialism and its advocates.

My book campaign brought me in contact with people I would under other circumstances never have talked with; and often I found friends where I expected enemies and I found enemies where I expected friends. The book brought on a good deal of comment favorable and unfavorable and sometimes I was obliged to argue for dear life in order to overcome objections. I also found that the more objections there were raised the easier it was to sell the book.

Another lesson I learned was the fact that opposition to socialism is by no means to be feared but rather to be taken advantage of. Several well-meaning friends, advised me early in the campaign to drop the book, because it created unfavorable comment, but in every case I redoubled my efforts and outargued all opposition that faced me and, I may say, the very fact that these people bought the book in spite of what they had heard about it, is proof that my argument prevailed. I succeeded in getting it into the Holyoke Public Library also; not as a gift but by purchase.

Another lesson I learned is the fact that socialists as a rule are altogether too lukewarm, in fact, too indifferent to the cause. We might make much more progress if every one would do just a little more than what they are doing. There are more people interested in socialism than most of them are aware of. But it requires moral courage, knowledge and tact to win recruits for socialism.

GREAT OUTDOOR FESTIVAL.

Preparation Now Afoot to Give National Delegates An Object Lesson in Socialist Enthusiasm.

The entertainment committee of Section New York, Socialist Labor Party, met at the Daily People Building last Thursday evening. Comrade J. Sherer was chairman; L. Abelson, secretary.

The coming picnic on July 4th, at Glendale Schuetzen Park was the order of business. As this affair is to celebrate the fourth anniversary of the Daily People, and to raise funds for our party press and local campaign, it was decided to put forth every effort to make it a grand success. The price of admission for gentlemen and lady was fixed at twenty-five cents. Three thousand tickets—an amount that ought to be disposed of before many days are over—were ordered printed. Prize bowling for men was decided upon; also prize games for women and the little ones.

Glendale Schuetzen Park, with its picturesque surroundings, is well known to the patrons of former affairs held there. This fact, together with the efforts of the committee to surpass all previous outdoor festivals, ought to be a stimulus toward inducing the members of the party to work to make this affair more successful than all its predecessors. The fare being only five cents, and the price of admission within the reach of all, it is to be hoped that an unprecedented attendance will take place. As the national convention will take place during the Fourth of July week, we ought to turn out and show the delegates what the Socialist of Greater New York can do in aid of our great cause.

This year being a national campaign year, in which a larger percentage of citizens will be interested than usual, we desire to put our party press and local campaign funds on a good basis, so that we may put forth the real issue of Socialism, as it should be put forth. As we have neither the support of corrupt pure and simple, nor can we expect funds from mysterious sources, we are entirely dependent on the class-conscious workers for aid in this direction.

To work, then, comrades! The infamy of capitalism and its paid hirelings, the pure and simple labor leaders and the fake Socialists must be wiped out. This year is the time to get at them with greater prospects of success than ever before.

KANGAROOISM FROM WITHIN

OFFICIAL CIRCULAR ISSUED BY THE COOK COUNTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE SO-CALLED SOCIALIST, ALIAS SOCIAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

[Readers of The Daily People are informed of the row in the so-called Socialist, alias Social Democratic party, of Chicago. It is on a smaller scale a repetition of the attempt of the bourgeois and labor fakir element, made in 1899, to capture the Socialist Labor Party. The difference in the personnel of those who now seek to disgrace Socialism into a freak and catch-panny movement for themselves is slight. Now, as in 1899, the shyster lawyers and dealers in Bermuda potatoes are again in evidence. In 1899, the Kangaroos were routed by the S. L. P.; whether those who in Chicago joined the Kangaroos in the false belief that these were Socialists, and who finally disgusted, have learned from the platform adopted in the Chicago national convention and from other pranks of the convention, that stupidity and corruption can only breed corruption and stupidity, and care not to be led thitherward, will be able to down the pack as the S. L. P. did, is of comparatively little interest. The point of importance is to note the fact of what is happening—a confirmation of all that the Socialist Labor Party has declared in the war that it has waged against the Kangaroo output of capitalist society. To that end we reproduce here in full the statement of the Chicago committee. Here it is:]

Chicago, May 17, 1904. Statement of the Executive Committee to the Socialist Party in Cook County. Comrades: The following is a statement by your executive Committee.

A small body of Socialists, claimed to be about twenty-nine delegates to the County Central Committee, have attempted to usurp the functions of the party. They have elected an Executive Committee, a temporary Secretary, a new business manager of the Chicago Socialist, and doubtless you have received a communication from them by this time.

The "rebellion" with headquarters at the office of an attorney, T. J. Morgan, has, by reason of the fact that two of the insurgents are on the lease, taken possession of the office of the Chicago Socialist, changed the lock and has barred out your regularly elected business manager and your County Secretary.

Whether this is a deliberate effort to bring about a split in the party, time alone will tell. Judging from some of the printed utterances and the speeches of the leaders of this bolt, it is an effort on the part of those who have been repeatedly defeated locally to drive out all who disagree with them.

At the meeting of the Cook Central Committee on Sunday last, a motion was made by Morgan, under the suspension of the order of business, that the Cook County Central Committee endorse the national platform. A point of order was raised, that this was virtually a motion to reconsider the action of the Sun-

ART OR NO ART?

A Question That Concerns The Workers More Than Imagined.

(A Paper by William Morris.)
The workman of the present day may well think that art is not a matter which concerns him much. To speak bluntly, he is not wealthy enough to share art (there is little enough of it, all told) as is going in civilized countries. His earnings are precarious, and his lodgings precarious also, and, to boot, stowed away almost always in the dirtiest corners of our dirty streets; so that, at the risk of offending worthy people who are feebly trying to bestow some scraps of art on their "poorer brethren," it must be said that the workman's house must be bare of art, indeed, the attempt to bring beauty into such homes would be a task to break the heart of the most patient artist in Europe. That shabby gift of the crumbs that fall from the children's table must be taken back again, for there is no such thing as cheap art, and workmen can buy only what is cheap. On the other hand, if the workman takes it into his head to go some day to the galleries of art, that he may try to understand the raptures of our artists over the works of past ages, how does he speed on his educational errand? What does he find?—the door abut in his face on the one day in the week on which he could carry out his attempt to learn something from the study of his own property—the National Gallery, say. It really does take an artist to understand the full force of this stupendous joke of the defenders of religion against common sense and common honesty.

It would exceed the limits of a newspaper article to show how far the workman is from having any share in art when he is at work, but workmen friends, at least, know all about that; for even those who are engaged in making the wares which, in the wretched slang of would-be cultivation, are called "art objects," have to work always as machines, or as the slaves of machines; and the "organizers of labor" take good care that neither the quality nor the quantity of the art in these "art objects" shall be too grand. Here, then, is the truth, which we artists know full well, that those who produce the wealth of civilized society have no share in art. So entirely are they cut off from it, that many, or most of them, it is to be feared, do not even know of their loss in this matter. Yet I am bound to assert here and everywhere that art is necessary to man unless he is to sink to something lower than the brutes. Middle class supremacy has brought us to this at last, that such art as there is left is used (whatever its merits may be in each case) as a toy for the rich, while the workers are debarred from having any art, either in their work or their homes; that is to say, that the workers are doomed by capitalism to live without the pleasure which is necessary to humanity.

Yes, middle class supremacy! For things were very different all through the Middle Ages, from the twelfth to the end of the sixteenth century; while the middle class was being formed from the enfranchised serfs, yeomen, and craftsman of the guilds. Throughout that period, at least, all manufactured goods, everything that admitted of ornament, was made more or less beautiful; nor was the beauty charged for as a separate article; since all craftsmen were more or less artists, and could not help adding beauty to the goods they made. It is easy to see that this could not have happened if they had been working for the benefit of a master. They worked, on the contrary, under such conditions that they themselves were masters of their time, tools, and materials, and, for the most part, their goods were exchanged by the simple process of the user buying from the maker. Under those circumstances it was a matter of course that a man, being master of his work, should choose to make it pleasant to himself by exercising upon it that love of beauty which is common to all men, till it is crushed out of them by the mere bitter struggle for life called "competition for wages," and by subjection to a master who also is struggling for profit against other competitors.

This system of a man working for himself leisurely and happily was infinitely better, as regards both the worker and his work, than that division-of-labor system by which the profit-grinding of rising commercialism supplanted it; but of course it is impossible to go

Where Wages Come From

The first point that a workingman should be clear upon is this: What is the source of the wages he receives; what is the source of the profits his employer lives on? The following dialogue is not uncommon:

Workingman—"Do I understand you rightly, that you Socialists want to abolish the capitalist class?"

Socialist—"That is what we are after." Workingman—"You are! Then I don't want any of you. Why, even now my wages are small; even now I can barely get along. If you abolish the capitalist I'll have nothing; there will be nobody to support me."

When, on pay-day, you reach your home, "unwashed" hand it is empty. When you take it back again, your wages are in it. Hence the belief that the capitalist is the source of your living, that he is your bread-giver, your supporter. Now that is an error, an apt illusion.

If, early in the morning, you go on top of some house and look eastward, it will seem to you that the sun moves and that you are standing still. Indeed, that was at one time the general and accepted belief. But it was an error, based upon an optical illusion. So long as that error prevailed, the sciences could hardly make any progress. Humanity virtually stood still. Not until the illusion was discovered and the error overthrown, not until it was ascertained that things were just the other way, that the sun stood still, and that it was our planet that moved at a breakneck rate of speed, was any real progress possible.

So likewise with this illusion about the source of wages. You can not budge, you can not move one step forward unless you discover that, in this respect also, the fact is just the reverse of the appearance; that, not the capitalist, but the workingman, is the source of the worker's living; that it is not the capitalist who supports the workingman, but the workingman who supports the capitalist; that it is not the capitalist who gives bread to the workingman, but the workingman who gives himself a dry crust, and sumptuously stocks the table of the capitalist. This is a cardinal point in political economy; and this is the point I wish first of all to establish in your minds. Now, to the proof.

I have $100,000, and am a capitalist. Now, I may not know much; no capitalist does; but I know a few things, and among them is a little plain arithmetic. I take a pencil and put down on a sheet of paper "100,000." Having determined that I shall need at least $5,000 a year to live with comfort, I divide the $100,000 by $5,000; the quotient is 20. My hair then begins to stand on end. The 20 tells me that, if I pull $5,000 annually out of $100,000, these are exhausted during that term. At the beginning of the 21st year I shall have nothing left, "Heaven and earth, I would then have to go to work if I wanted to live!"

No capitalist relishes that thought. He will tell you, and pay his politicians, professors and political parsons to tell you, that "labor is honorable." He is perfectly willing to let you have that undivided honor, and will do all he can that you may not be deprived of any part of it; but, as to himself, he has for work a constitutional aversion; the capitalist runs away from work like the man bitten by a mad dog runs away from water. I want to live without work on my $100,000, and yet keep my capital untouched. If you ask any farmer, he will tell you that if he invests in a Durham cow she will yield him a supply of 16 quarts a day, but, after some years, the supply goes down; she will run dry; and then a new cow must be got. But, I, the capitalist, aim at making my capital a sort of $100,000-cow, which I shall annually be able to milk out of $5,000, without her ever running dry. I want, in short, to perform the proverbially impossible feat of eating my cake, and yet have it. The capitalist system performs the feat for me. How?

I go to a broker. I say, Mr. Broker, I have $100,000; I want you to invest that for me. I don't tell him that I have a special liking for New Bedford muls stock; I don't tell him I have a special fancy for railroad stock; I leave the choosing with him. The only direction I give him is to get the stock in such a corporation as will pay the highest dividend. My broker has a list of all of these corporations, your New Bedford corporations among them, to the extent that they may be listed; he makes the choice, say of one of your mills right here in this town. I hire a vault in a safe deposit company, and I put my stock into it. I lock it up, put the key in my pocket, and I go and have a good time. If it is too cold in the north I go down to Florida; if it is too hot there I go to the Adirondack mountains; occasionally I take a spin across the Atlantic and run the gauntlet of all the gambling dens in Europe; I spend my time with fast horses and faster women; I never put my foot inside the factory that I hold stock of; I don't even come to the town in which it is located, and yet, lo and behold, a miracle takes place!

Those of you versed in Bible lore surely have read or heard about the miracle that God performed when the Jews were in the desert and about to die of hunger. The Lord opened the skies and let manna come. But the Jews had to get up early in the morning, before the sun rose; if they overslept themselves the sun would melt the manna, and they would have nothing to eat. They had to get up early, and go out, and stoop down and pick up the manna, and put it in baskets and take it to their tents and eat it. With the appearance of the manna on earth the miracle ended.

But the miracles that happen in this capitalist system of production are so wonderful that those recorded in the Bible don't hold a candle to them. The Jews had to do some work, but I, stock-holding capitalist, need do no work at all. I can turn night into day, and day into night. I can lie flat on my back all day and all night; and every three months my manna comes down to me in the shape of dividends. Where does it come from? What does that dividend represent?

In the factory of which my broker bought stock, workmen, thousands of them, were at work; they have woven cloth that has been put upon the market of the value of $7,000; out of the $7,000 that cloth is worth my wage workers receive $2,000 in wages, and I receive the $5,000 as profits or dividends. Did I, who never put my foot inside of the mill; did I, who never put my foot inside of New Bedford; did I, who don't know how a loom looks; did I, who contributed nothing whatever toward the weaving of that cloth; did I do any work whatever toward producing those $5,000 that came to me?

No man, with brains in his head instead of sawdust, can deny that those $7,000 are exclusively the product of the wage workers in that mill. That out of the wealth, thus produced by them alone, they get $2,000 in wages, and I, who did nothing at all, I get the $5,000. The wages these workers receive represent wealth that they have themselves produced; the profits that the capitalist pockets represent wealth that the wage workers produced, and that the capitalist, does what?—let us call things by their names—that the capitalist steals from them.

The Stock Corporation.

You may ask, But is that the rule, is not that illustration an exception?—Yes; it is the rule; the exception is the other thing. The leading industries of the United States are to-day stock concerns, and thither will all others worth mentioning move. An increasing volume of capital in money is held in stocks and shares. The individual capitalist holds stock in a score of concerns in different trades, located in different towns, too many and too varied for him even to attempt to run. By virtue of his stock, he draws his income from them; which is the same as saying that he lives on what the workingmen produce but are robbed of. Nor is the case at all essentially different with the concerns that have not yet developed into stock corporations.

"Directors."

Again, you may ask, The conclusion that what stockholders live on is stolen wealth because they evidently perform no manner of work is irrefutable, but are all stockholders equally idle and superfluous; are there not some who do perform some work; are there not "Directors"? There are "Directors," but these gentlemen bear a title much like those "Generals," and "Majors," and "Colonels" who now go about, and whose generalship, majorship and colonelship consisted in securing substitutes during the war. These "Directors" are simply the largest stockholders, which is the same as to say that they are the largest sponges; their directorship consists only in directing conspiracies against rival "Directors," in bribing Legislatures, Executives and Judiciaries, in picking out and hiring men out of your midst to serve as bell-wethers, that will lead you, like cattle to the capitalist shambles, and tinkle you into contentment and hopefulness while you are being fleeced.

The court decisions removing responsibility from the "Directors" are numerous and increasing; each such decision establishes, from the capitalist Government's own mouth, the idleness and superfluous-ness of the capitalist class. These "Directors," and the capitalist class in general, may perform some "work," they do perform some "work," but that "work" is not of a sort that directly or indirectly aids production; no more than the intense mental strain and activity of the work "done" by the pickpocket is directly or indirectly productive.

"Original Accumulation."

Finally, you may ask, No doubt the stockholder does no work, and hence lives on the wealth he produces; no doubt these "Directors" have a title that only emphasizes their idleness by a swindle, and, consequently, neither they are other than spongers on the working class; but did not your own illustration start with the supposition that the capitalist in question had $100,000, is not this original capital entitled to some returns?

Whence does this original capital, or "original accumulation," come? Does it grow on the capitalist like hair on his face, or nails on his fingers and toes? Does he secrete it as he secretes sweat from his body?

Read the biographies of any of our founders of capitalist concerns and you will find them all to be essentially the same, or suggestively silent upon the doings of our man during the period that he gathers his "original accumulation." You will find that "original capital" to be the child of fraudulent failures and fires, of high-handed crime of some sort or other, or of the sneaking crime of appropriating trust funds, etc. With such "original capital,"—gotten by dint of such "cleverness," "push" and "industry,"—as a weapon, the "original" capitalist proceeds to fleece the working class that has been less "industrious," "pushing" and "clever" than he. If he consumes all his fleecings, his capital remains of its original size in his hands, unless some other gentleman of the road, gifted with greater "industry," "push" and "cleverness" than he, comes around and relieves him of it; if he consume not the whole of his fleecings, his capital moves upward, million-ward.

The case is proved; Labor alone produces all wealth. Wages are that part of Labor's own product that the workingman is allowed to keep; profits are the present and running stealings perpetrated by the capitalist upon the workingman from day to day, from week to week, from month to month, from year to year; capital is the accumulated past stealings of the capitalist—cornered upon his "original accumulation."

Who of you before me fails now to understand, or would still deny that, not the capitalist supports the workingman, but the workingman supports the capitalist; or still holds that the workingman could not exist without the capitalist? If any there be, let him raise his hand and speak up now. None! Then I may consider this point settled; and shall move on.

The Class Struggle.

The second point, on which it is absolutely necessary that you be clear, is the nature of your relation, as working people, to the capitalist in this capitalist system of production. This point is an inevitable consequence of the first.

You have seen that the wages you live on and the profits the capitalist lives in are the two parts into which is divided the wealth that you produce. The workingman wants a larger and larger share, so does the capitalist. A thing can not be divided into two shares so as to increase the share of each. If the workingman produces, say, $4 worth of wealth a day, and the capitalist keeps 2, there are only 2 left for the workingman; if the capitalist keeps 3, there is only 1 left for the workingman; if the capitalist keeps 3-2 there is only 1-2 left for the workingman. Inversely, if the workingman pushes up his share, from 1-2 to 1, there are only 3 left for the capitalist; if the workingman secures 2, the capitalist will be reduced to 2; if the workingman push still onward and keep 3, the capitalist will have to put up with 1;—and if the workingman makes up his mind to enjoy all that he produces, and keep all the 4, the capitalist will have to go to work.

These plain figures upset the theory about the Workingman and the Capitalist being brothers. Capital, meaning the Capitalist Class, and Labor, have been portrayed by capitalist illustrated papers as Chang and Eng; this, I remember, was done notably by "Harper's Weekly," the property of one of the precious "Seeley Diners." The Siamese Twins were held together by a piece of flesh. Wherever Chang went Eng was sure to go; if Chang was happy, Eng's pulse throbbed harder; if Chang caught cold, Eng sneezed in chorus with him; when Chang died, Eng followed suit within five minutes. Do we find that to be the relation of the workingman and the capitalist? Do you find that the fatter the capitalist, the fatter also grow the workingmen?

Is not your experience rather that the wealthier the capitalist, the poorer are the workingmen? That the more magnificent and prouder the residences of the capitalist, the dingier and humbler become those of the workingmen? That the happier the life of the capitalist's wife, the greater the opportunities of his children for enjoyment and education, the heavier becomes the cross borne by the workingmen's wives, while their children are crowded more and more from the schools and deprived of the pleasures of childhood? Is that your experience, or is it not?

The pregnant point that underlies these pregnant facts is that, between the Working Class and the Capitalist Class, there is an irrepressible conflict, a class struggle for life. No glib tongued politician can vault over it, no capitalist professor or official statistician can argue it away; no capitalist parson can veil it; no labor fakir can straddle it; no "reform" architect can bridge it over. It crops up in all manner of ways, like in this strike, in ways that disconcert all the plans and all the schemes of those who would deny or ignore it. It is a struggle that will not down, and must be ended only by either the total subjugation of the Working Class, or the abolition of the Capitalist Class.

Thus you perceive that the theory on which your "pure and simple" trade organizations are grounded is false. There being no "common interests," but only hostile interests, between the Capitalist Class and the Working Class, the battle you are waging to establish "safe relations" between the two is a hopeless one.

Political Parties and Platforms

During the next five months the members of the working class of the United States will have other problems to solve besides that of providing food and clothing. The most important of all these questions will be which of the various political parties shall be entitled to their support on election day.

There is no doubt but there will be at least six different political parties in the field, so that the prospective voters will have a good number to draw from. Among them the Socialist Labor Party, alone and unaided, will be found fighting the capitalist class and the capitalist system and defending the cause of the workers. The other five will, no doubt, be the Republican, Democratic, Populist, "Socialist" (better known as the Social Democratic Party) and the Prohibition Party. There may also be a Single Tax and a United Christian party, and, perhaps, others who will make their appearance later on. Each one of these parties will be out to capture the labor vote, without which neither can be successful at the polls.

It follows, therefore, that each of these parties will adopt platforms which will make it appear that they, and they alone are entitled to the support of the workingmen of the United States.

It, therefore, becomes the duty of every workingman to keep a close watch on the different political parties, for in order to vote intelligently one must be thoroughly acquainted with each and every political party in the field.

Each party will come before the workers in dress parade telling their good points and why the workers should vote for them and their ticket. They will quote from their platforms and ask your endorsement of the same. They will tell you that they have always fought the battles of the working class and are fighting them now. There will be band concerts, free dinners, and free vaudeville shows to attract attention; and then a paid spellbinder will deliver an oration, telling the workers how intelligent and good looking they are, so as not to offend them. Anything to make them feel good. Then, of course, the workers will not be so rude as to dispute him, even though they know he is not telling the whole truth.

Should the workers be so rude as to ask the speaker why the Governor of his party called out the militia to shoot down the workers when they were out on strike, or why certain members of his party joined the deputy sheriffs to intimidate them they will immediately hear the brass band playing Hiawatha or Bedelia, that probably being the best answer to the question. So I say to the worker who does not wish to throw away his vote: "Beware of free concerts and brass bands and, above all, the smooth orator."

Political parties that resort to such tactics are not worthy of any intelligent man's support. Only those who have built upon the shifting sands of fraud and deception are compelled to resort to such tactics to get the workers' attention. The political party that has built upon the solid bedrock of truth and honesty, that has a record that it can be justly proud of, will come before you with facts and facts only. It will appeal to your intelligence and not attempt to delude you. It will call things by their proper names so you will not mistake their meaning. It will ask you to be honest with yourself and your class. It will lay down the fundamental principles upon which its organization is built, point to its record in the past and ask you to support those principles and that record at the polls. Such a party is truly worthy of support.

At present it is not an easy matter to contemplate what will and what will not be in the various political platforms. Not until after their respective national conventions are held is there any possibility of knowing what they will say. Those conventions are of great benefit to the prospective voter and will greatly help him to determine whether or not the organization behind them are entitled to his support.

Besides the party principles and record, the voter must take into consideration the personal worth of the delegates, their honesty and sincerity of action, to what extent they have been active on the political and economic field; their attitude towards the working class in the past, and above all what excuse their political party has for existence as such.

So far only one of the above named political parties has held its national convention, framed a platform, passed resolutions and nominated candidates for President and Vice-President, namely the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic Party. Every workingman should ask himself the questions: Why is the "Socialist," Social Democratic party here and where did it come from; what are its principles and record, and who are the men that stand sponsor for it? To give the full history of the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic party would take too much space, so I will give but a brief outline at present.

To those who have kept in touch with the labor movement for the last ten years it will not be a difficult task to look back to 1894, when the American Railway Union strike at Chicago, was on Eugene V. Debs was president of the American Railway Union and he proceeded on the false theory that the interests of the working class and the capitalist class are identical. The railroads proved the theory to be wrong by applying to the courts for an injunction against the A. R. U. and its officers, the injunction being promptly granted. Debs was arrested for contempt of court and sentenced to six months in Woodstock Jail. While in jail, Mr. Debs said he studied a book on socialism, and as a result, it was his belief that the interests of capital and labor were opposed to each other.

Evidently, Debs' belief in the latter theory must have been very weak, for two years later, in 1896, we find him whooping it up for Bryan and free silver, and in 1897 he suddenly discovered that he was in duty bound to lead the American people into the haven of rest, peace and brotherly love, by other than A. R. U. and Bryanistic methods. Whereupon he called a convention in Chicago, and organized the Social Democracy.

The object of the Social Democracy was to establish a utopia in the state of Washington, thereby setting an example for the nation. All of this time the Social Democracy entirely ignored political action and denounced it. The necessary funds not coming in the colonization of the State of Washington had to be abandoned by Mr. Debs, so that two years later we found Debs advocating the political action he formerly denounced.

All this time the Social Democracy had been getting new recruits, a large number of them were expelled from the Socialist Labor Party, which was organized in 1888 and has been doing battle for the cause of Socialism ever since, and which they attempted to wreck, falling in which they joined the decoy ducks known as the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic party. In 1900, we found Debs the candidate for President on the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic ticket. The question may here be asked: Why did Debs, and the expelled, would-be wreckers of the Socialist Labor Party, organize a political party in opposition to the Socialist Labor Party, pretending that their party was making for the same goal? Why did not Mr. Debs reject these expelled would-be wreckers and cast his lot with the "Socialist Labor Party, if he was truly working for Socialism? These questions have never been answered by Mr. Debs and his party.

To one who is familiar with the tactics and discipline of the Socialist Labor Party the answer is obvious. Debs recognized the fact that if he entered the Socialist Labor Party he would merely be a cog in the wheel where no chameleon leadership is recognized. On the other hand if he held aloof he would be the recognized leader of the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic Party.

As to the delegates to the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic convention just held in Chicago, their acts of treason to the working class, whom they pretended to represent, are so numerous that it could take pages of this paper to mention them. I will therefore mention only a few to give the voter light by which he may read and measure the calibre of the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic party:

Let us take delegate Hoehn, editor of "St. Louis Labor," who is a leading light of the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic party in Missouri, and was also one of the leading spirits at the convention. What is his record?

In 1900, when the street car employees of St. Louis were on strike Mr. Hoehn joined the deputy sheriffs for the sole purpose of intimidating the strikers.

This act is enough to condemn any man in the eyes of the working class. But the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic Party lauds Hoehn to the skies and puts its stamp of approval on such action by keeping him in its organization. How would you, fellow workingman, like to vote for Mr. Hoehn or a political party that harbors such traitors? Would you feel safe in asking for a little more of that which you produce if Hoehn and his party were in power, and in control of the deputy sheriffs?

But let us leave St. Louis; let us go to Massachusetts. What do we find there? "Socialist," alias Social Democrat, James Carey, while a member of the Haverhill Common Council, voted for a $15,000 appropriation to keep the Haverhill armory in "good, sanitary condition."

Now what is an Armory for? Simply a place where the militia is housed and drilled in the art of shooting down the working class whenever they dare to assert their right to live as civilized human beings.

Mr. Carey is at present touring the country as a speaker for the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic Party, and as one of the delegates to the Chicago convention opened its sittings. It was Carey who moved the nomination of Eugene V. Debs for candidate for President of the United States at that convention.

I ask you again: How would you like to vote for Mr. Carey or his party, thereby giving them the law-making power, the power to further strengthen the militia?

Would you feel safe to go on strike if a State where Carey occupied the Governor's chair? What is the difference between Carey and Governor Peabody?

Mr. Carey's action condemns him and the party that supports him, as the enemies of the working class.

Let us cite another instance. In San Francisco two members of the "Socialist" Party, Everett and King, applied to the capitalist Mayor for political appointments, got them and held them with the approval of the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic Party. Now, it is generally conceded that "to the victor belong the spoils"; therefore we came to the conclusion that Mr. Everett and Mr. King must have helped considerable in electing a democratic Mayor, for which he rewarded them by appointing them to lucrative position. Still you are asked to go on election day and vote for the party which claims to champion your cause while permitting Mr. Everett and Mr. King to remain in its ranks. After election day you'll find that you have been used as a buffer between the Republican and Democratic parties.

Now I want to ask you: can you conscientiously vote for a political party that harbors such men? Can you vote for a party that has no excuse for its existence, except that of being an aid to capitalist robbery? Can you vote for a party who keeps in its ranks men guilty of crimes perpetrated on the working class? "But," say you, "those are only three cases and men are liable to make mistakes." Ah, correct. Men are liable to make mistakes; but men who are once shown their mistakes will not make the same mistake again. The "Socialist," alias Social Democratic, Party is right on making the same mistakes over and over again. Thus we are forced to the conclusion that they are NOT mistakes. They are deliberate crimes against the working class.

I only mentioned the above three cases for the reason that they reflect the make-up of the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic Party from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and to show that such acts are not a local affair. One could mention scores of similar cases from nearly every State in the Union.

Perhaps you have read their platform. I hear you say: "Their platform teems with the class struggle, and is strictly a working class document." Ah, yes. The undisguised tigers in the jungle is not to be half as much feared as the wolf who approaches you in sheep's clothing. The vilest criminal on earth, the sleek confidence man, the betrayer, can put beautiful phrases on paper, but he dare not reveal his past life lest he be severely punished. Just so with a political party. They may resolve and paraphrase until Gabriel blows his horn, but they dare not reveal their past. The history of the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic Party proves it a traitor to the working class. For that reason its platform and resolutions are only useful in so far as they bring their traitorous conduct into relief. Even their platform, with its immediate demands, which permit of all kinds of crooked deals with Hearst and the Single Taxers, reflects their inherent rottenness.

When we read the beautiful phrases in the "Socialist," alias Social Democratic Party platform, and compare them with their actions in the past, our reason tells us to place them in the same category as the kiss of a Judas.

We do not expect to find pure water in a cesspool, honesty to come out of corruption, nor pure men out of a political party whose only aim is to hoodwink the members of the working class into voting for them to the end that they may be kept in bondage. It, therefore, behooves the members of the working class of America, in considering the first of the parties to adopt a platform, to go slow lest they take a step which in future years they would have cause to regret. Look before you leap.

WAGES, MARRIAGE AND THE CHURCH

III.

At the present time the members of the S. L. P., or many of them are giving their views on the question which Comrade Connolly's article on "Wages, Marriage and the Church," brought forth. For myself, comrades, I am not bothered with church connections. It is so long since I last entered one, that I would be at a loss as to what to do, were I to again attend services. I have no use for churchianity of any kind, and hold my own ideas on what is beyond the grave. Having been raised in the church, the attitude of which most concerns us, viz, the Roman Catholic Church, no sensible man who cares a fig for his reputation as to honesty and judgment, will attempt to deny even though he be the most devoted follower of, and believes in that institution, that the Catholic Church is today like all other churches, the pious tool of the ruling, or capitalist class, used by that class to keep the working class contented with their lot. While all of this is true, for one, I feel that in dealing with the problem of the church, to take this view of it.

The Socialist Labor Party is now, and has been for some time, organizing the working class for the purpose of overthrowing the capitalist system, and in its place rearing the Socialist Republic. For one, I am content to go ahead with that work. I feel that if we can reach the working class of the land, and I think we can if we can get them to read our literature, especially our press, we can get them to become members of our party. The rest will follow. They will then see for themselves the part the church Catholic, Protestant and Jew, play in holding up the hands of the robber system of capitalism.

I am of the opinion, strongly so, that it is first necessary to show to those whom we seek to reach, the position which they occupy economically and politically. Unless we do that first, our work will most likely remain undone. The average man has some sense, he can be reached along the line of his material interest, but he cannot be reached by us until we show him that the S. L. P. and S. T. & L. A. are his organizations, to be used by him and his class to overthrow the class which robs and oppresses him and them.

As the greater always includes the lesser, and as the church is but a part of the system which we seek to overthrow, for one I am going to keep my eye on the main chance and do what I can to organize the working class on the program of the S. T. & L. A., and the S. L. P., feeling reasonably sure that, in doing so, the work necessary to abolish the capitalist system, will be accomplished by said act, and when that system falls, the church of all names must go also.

It is well for us to know our place, our friends and our enemies, but I do not believe it necessary or wise at this time to put in much time on the matter of the church, believing that those who are in our party to-day, and who are giving any thought to the signs of the times, know what to do, and when to do it. On the other hand, I can see how otherwise valuable time can be wasted; time which ought to be used in forging ahead and building our organization, putting it in shape for the future which is ours, if we but do our duty wisely and well.

Again, I say, comrades, pay attention to building the S. L. P. wisely and well, and in the end the whole brigade who now oppose us, from the capitalist down to and including his hired men, the labor fakir the parson of all denominations, as well as the professional atheist, will go down before us.

But it needs the best effort of our class to accomplish this desirable end. 'Tis not alone the church we have to fight, as between the professional churchman and his supposed opposite, the professional atheist, I can see no difference. We must fight the capitalist system and the entire force which supports that system. The alliance and the party are needed for that work, and the programme of these two organizations, I have an implicit confidence in to do the work for which they were intended; and when that work is done capitalism will be no more. Then, and not until then, will we be at rest. When that day comes, the question of "Wages, Marriage and the Church" will, in the sense we now talk of them, at least, be very much out of order.

Keep your eye on the main line. Don't take a siding. Build the S. L. P. and the Alliance. Teach the members of our class their mission in society. Show them the position that the working class occupies to-day, and the one which it can occupy if it will but put its shoulder to the wheel. If you do that work as you should do, as loyal members of the S. L. P., capitalism, its fakirs, parsons and athletes will be powerless in the premises. You will roll back the waves of the capitalist Hell. It will not harm you. Michael T. Berry. Lynn, Mass., May 6, 1904.

IV.

The question of wages is and always has been one open for discussion in the S. L. P., as I understand it our movement is being organized to abolish the wage system and private ownership of the means of production, distribution and transportation. This being the case the question of wages is one to be reckoned with. Most every workman (whether he has ever heard of Marx or not) knows from experience (the best of teachers) that prices always rise in advance of a general rise in wages. It is also pretty well understood that the raise in wages is never equal to the raise in prices.

It seems to me that there is entirely too much "rag chewing" about what Marx said or meant. This is one of the tendencies that have hampered us in our work of agitation and organization. We have to deal with a great majority of the whole population, the working class, who are wage slaves. They have the right of suffrage and free speech. Statistics as to the class division and property holding are to be gotten at and analyzed with a little effort.

The other two questions, "marriage" and "the church," are abstract and, in my opinion, should be ruled out of order as neither one of them belongs properly in the domain of economics and politics. It would be just as intelligent to discuss at this time the question of what kind of shirt waists we will wear under Socialism, as it is to discuss the question of monogamic marriages.

As to the question of religion, Comrade Connolly attributes to the Editor of The People what he might attribute to some of the members of the party, but surely not to the Editor of The People, who has presented his defense. We should not be the aggressors on the question of religion, but should (as the Editor of The People has) confine ourselves to the question of economics and politics. Should any representative of the church come out and attack us on these grounds, we should, of course, defend our position of dealing with economic facts. Should the church enter the political field then it would be up to us to go after it the same as we do with the various political parties.

It seems to me that a great many of our members think that these are questions of great importance and should be brought up at the convention. I hope that these questions will not be brought up at the convention, as there are other questions of more importance, for instance, the party press, the constitution, the trade union question and the work of organization; the latter, in my opinion, being the most important. I can imagine an endless wrangle at the convention should the questions of marriage and church be brought up.

Fraternally,
E. C. Dieckmann.

St. Louis, Mo., May 15.

V.

I have been reading the controversy on wages, marriage and the church with much interest; in fact, everything that appears in The People in devour as soon as I can get the paper. I can only say that with a mind that has been trained politically and economically by the S. L. P. as mine has, the controversy does not excite me in the least.

As to wages, it seems to be that the question of whether the cost of living is affected here or there by the rise of wages is not of great importance. The thing is that labor is robbed of surplus value and will ever be until Socialism puts an end to it.

As to marriage, that will be governed by the system we live in, and I hope and believe that Socialism will make it better than it is now.

As to the church, I am still going to mass in the Catholic Church, but I must say that it is gall and wormwood for me when I see how that organization is hitting us socialists. The church is the main bulwark of the present system. I hope for a different Fatherhood than that we now have and have had at Rome. Now I believe in going straight ahead. As I understand the matter, the editor of The People has not attacked Religion, but he has attacked opposition to Socialism. When the opposition came from a divine in the church he struck back. That was right. Let the divines keep within their sphere, surely that is broad enough. This matter of Religion and Socialism is a matter that must be disposed of, the sooner the better. But it must be done right, as it is necessary to make our standpoint clear to those minds that are yet to come to us. H. K. Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 23.

THE PARTY PRESS

CLEVELAND CANVASSER'S CLUB.

To The Daily and Weekly People: Answering the request for an outline of the plan adopted by Section Cleveland for securing subscribers for the party papers, I wish to first make a few preliminary statements. In our efforts to increase the circulation we have learned first of all that any plan adopted is good, as long as it brings some results. The next thing is to get the best results possible, and lasting ones. With this end in view, many methods have been tried. Strenuous enthusiasm, and work with might and main, will not hold out long. The bad feature of it is that it usually stops with a thud.

Section East St. Louis' method of getting subscribers on the "Trust plan" was tried here several years ago and has been voted down. Fifteen dollars were voted for a People's subscription fund. Any comrade who knew of some one that might make a reader handed in the name or names, which were then sent in. Efforts were later on made to collect. In that way we got our list over the 300 mark. By that time the fund had been "trusted" out of existence; some collections were made, of course, and the returns "reinvested" in the same way; but the scheme finally disappeared. Some results, of course, were achieved, as, no doubt, some few constant readers were made; but the same results could have been achieved with the same expenditure of energy without the fund.

The method suggested by the circulation department to inaugurate a roll-call at every meeting and have every individual member report on his success, is a method that cuts two ways. It was not adopted here in Cleveland for the reason that the lagging ones would not care to appear empty handed. Would they go to work? Some perhaps; but the whole would amount to this: members and not a few of them, who would in other respects do some good work, attend meetings regularly, etc., would rather not come to the meeting than appear and report "nothin' doin'."

Another mode of getting subscribers, and this is, no doubt, the most general one adopted, is to urge upon friends, shopmates and acquaintances to subscribe. Usually these are worked upon until they are tired of offering excuses and finally hand over a quarter to be rid of you for a while. When the time comes for renewal there is the same job on hand, and the most disheartening sight is when you come to such a home and find a whole stack of The People with not even the wrapper torn off. Many a comrade's opinion was voiced in that bitter resolve by a worker who held that "henceforth he would only try to get thinking men to subscribe." The answer he received was good. Even though the result looks discouraging, some will stick. And no matter what plan is adopted get all the subscribers you can from your immediate surroundings. But if the complained of bad feature can be overcome, so much the better. If we wish to build up our party press successfully we must get a solid line of readers and to get a solid line of readers we must find subscribers who will stick.

To find such subscribers we must go out among strangers who will subscribe, not to please or get rid of anyone, but because their interest in the paper has been aroused. A house to house canvass is necessary. A good many comrades will say, and have said to me "I am no canvasser. If I was cut out for such work I would not be slaving in a shop. I could make an easier living selling 'valuable bargains' to the unsuspecting on the installment plan." Such argument is not entirely without foundation. Canvassing must be made so easy that any one can do it.

Now we come to the plan adopted by Section Cleveland. The first thing to do is to organize a canvasser's club. This club must be divided into "distributors" and "solicitors." The distributors' function is to break the ground for the solicitor in this wise: procure bundles of sample copies of The People; the number of copies to be determined by the size of the club. Next have handbills printed which, in a short and catchy way, advertise The People, and explain its nature and object, and the object of leaving sample copies of it in the house of the recipient. The distributors are now ready for work. Select your neighborhood and distribute the sample copies together with the handbills. Do not leave a copy unless the man of the house is there to receive it. Do not leave one with him unless he is willing to read and examine it, with the understanding that in a week or two a man will call for the purpose of soliciting his subscription, and then get his name and address. By this method the distributors weed out all the material that is absolutely unapproachable. For one man to place about 20 copies in this way, is considered as a fair effort for a Sunday morning.

The solicitor's function is now self-evident. He receives from the distributor the list of addresses where sample copies have been left and makes his visit a week or two weeks afterwards, according as to how often the club wishes to work. When he enters a house he needs but introduce himself and mention his mission, the subject itself is understood, it has been fully explained before hand. Not a very long talk is necessary to determine as to whether or not there is any prospect of success. If so inclined and an opportunity is offered an argument may be entered into, but we have learned by experience that the first "yes" or "no" decides whether you have found a subscriber or not.

This work can be so arranged that both distributors and solicitors work simultaneously. Where the former break new ground the latter work that which has been broken. This should be done systematically and regularly and, be it noted, all the year around; just as regularly as the business meetings of the Section. To work this plan for a week or two or a month or two will not bring the desired results. To work along this line say, twice a month on a Sunday morning, by every section in the country would bring better and more lasting results than any plan so far tried. The result will be more lasting because the subscriber procured that way does not subscribe because he is being "pestered" by a friend or being talked into it by a gib-tongued professional canvasser, but because he has been singled out among many as one interested enough to study socialist principles. The result will be that but a minimum will refuse to renew when their time expires.

It may be argued that this dragnet method is applicable only in the larger cities where the field is practically inexhaustible but not in smaller towns that could be covered by that system in a few weeks. Even so, it is the large cities that are in need of stirring up. According to the bi-monthly circulation circulars the large cities are woefully behind the small town when the respective proportions are considered. For instance in Ohio, Cleveland, with 400,000 population has 216 subscribers, whereas Hamilton, with about 35 or 40,000 at the most, has 04.

Another objectionable feature that the comrades are trying to overcome is this: How about the man you meet who is interested enough and willing to subscribe but has not the money? Many methods are suggested and tried but none covers the point completely. Here is our plan: Very often the "no money argument" is used by men to "shake you off," but we must give them the benefit of the doubt. Get his name and address, tell him the paper will come, and in 2 or 4 weeks you will call to collect. Then spend 2 or 4 cents in postage, according to the length of time agreed upon, by mailing him a copy from your bundle order. If after the stipulated time he refuses to pay, drop him. Nothing is lost except the postage and you are satisfied that every means has been exhausted. If he pays, then send in his subscription.

We submit this plan as one that has been tried and found to work. Here is our experience and the result of it: First Sunday, (only distributors working) nothing; second Sunday, nothing; third Sunday, 2 subscribers for The People, 1 for German organ; fourth Sunday, 3 for The People, 2 for German organ, fifth Sunday, 5 for The People, 3 for German organ.

Yours fraternally,
John D. Goerke.

A QUESTION FOR SOCIALISTS.

To The Daily and Weekly People:—Can any Socialist become so philosophical that he can look with equanimity upon the great mass of humanity who slave day after day, for a small pittance, barely enough to keep the spirit with the body, after he has preached the message of Communism, and yet has been unlearned to by the foolish crowd who strive on and on, working for, fighting for and voting! I! for their task-masters?

Ah! But wait; have they all heard? Are there not some who are waiting to hear? Some to whom the message of "all for one and one for all" is like the rain to the parched field, the breeze to the becalmed mariner? Yes, there are many waiting to hear this message, and though this plan may have been submitted, yet I'll suggest that each party member, sympathizer and subscriber to the Daily or Weekly People, send to some friend yet groping in the dark a subscription to the Weekly People for six months.

You have many friends, comrades, among the proletarians. Suppose you pledge yourselves to fill out a "sub" card every week with the name of one of these acquaintances. The publishing department could follow it up with circulars describing our publications. In this way the circulation will become doubled, trebled, and we won't feel a loss, though we're helped with our money. Were I able financially, I'd send out a dozen a

Readers of The People ATTENTION

How many readers of The People can be depended upon to put in some lively work between now and July 1—the day before the National Convention opens—to secure additional readers to the Weekly People?

Were it possible to arouse all, many thousands of new readers could be secured and great work could be done for the cause of working class emancipation.

But let us all try. Let us produce, in this way, a prelude to the national campaign that will indicate what is to follow afterwards.

For ten yearly subscriptions (or twenty half yearlies), we shall give as a prize:

"Woman Under Socialism," by August Bebel, translated by Daniel De Leon.

For eight yearly subs (or sixteen half yearlies), we shall give as a prize:

"The Pilgrims' Shell; or, Fergan the Quarryman," by Eugene Sue, translated by Daniel De Leon.

These splendid cloth-bound books, will be sent postpaid to any one who sends us AT ONE TIME the number of subscribers indicated.

The Weekly People, per year, 50 cents; six months, 25 cents. Don't scatter the subscriptions over several weeks and expect us to keep track of them, for we can't do it, but send them in one bunch and get the prize.

Use the subscription form below, or report your work by letter.

And now let us fall to and see how many books we can earn.

FIFTH EPISTLE AT THE LAMBERTIANS.

We promised in our last epistle on the subject of Father L. A. Lambert's attack on Socialism, published in the April 16th issue of the "Freeman's Journal and Catholic Register," to immediately proceed to storm his next fortification.
We have concluded to postpone that pleasure for the next epistle. It is a delight, often indulged in by troops that have just stormed and overthrown a fort, to tarry a moment over the ruins of the works they have taken, and before marching to the capture of the next works, look at and examine the debris of the previous one. Such tarrying is no idle loitering. The information thus gathered may be, in this case it is decidedly, of use in the subsequent operations.
The keystone in the fortification demolished last week was the attempt of Father Lambert to justify the plunder of the capitalist class by giving to the process under which the plunder is practiced under the individual workingman the name of a "contract" by which he "cedes his rights to the employer for a consideration called wages."

Say that Father Lambert owns some wild land out in Colorado. He has a suspicion that the land contains rich veins; but is not sure, not being a mineralogist himself, and being, moreover, held in New York with his nose to the grindstone so tight at work for a living smirking to customers in his grocery store, that he has not much, if any time, to post himself on mineralogy. Presently he is approached by John Doe, a gentleman of external affability and meekness, and who asserts that he is well posted on land in Colorado. Indeed he is. He knows that Father Lambert's land actually holds rich veins, but he says to Father Lambert in an accent that is childlike and bland that the particular tract is totally devoid of rich or any other veins; that it is all gravel and sand and furze; that he, Doe, would like to have it simply for the purpose of setting up a shanty and retiring thither and devoting himself to the contemplation of the wickedness of this world in the seclusion of austere retirement. Father Lambert will think it over. The next day Father Lambert is approached accidentally on purpose by a secret agent of John Doe; the conversation somehow switches off to mines, and the secret agent happens to know all about a certain tract of land in Colorado which is utterly worthless, five cents an acre would be a good price and the owner should feel happy if he got that much, there being so many hundreds of thousands of just such "worthless" acres in the "worthless" acres market. The description of the locality of the land shows it to be Father Lambert's, and the good Father begins to feel cheap. But he is to feel cheaper yet. Other secret agents of John Doe, men of several professions, journalists, professors, some stray parsons, lecturers, etc., etc., all come around and their tales tally—Father Lambert's Colorado lands are worthless. His estimation of what he is worth shrinks and shrinks.
He is offered by another agent five cents an acre, in a round sum $5 for his hundred acres. He does not care to sell.
But presently, what with the rise of rent, of food and the indirect rise in the price of clothing by reason of the shoddy now woven in, etc., etc.,—all brought about by the agents of John Doe—a $5 bill assumes alluring proportions to Father Lambert, and the first time an agent of John Doe comes around with an offer to buy, a bargain is struck. A contract is drawn up, the "worthless land" passes to John Doe, the $5 bill passes to Father Lambert. About a month later the eyes of Father Lambert accidentally fall upon a newspaper item.

There he learns that the "worthless land" which he sold as worthless was a solid vein of gold, and that it had been operated and exploited by John Doe for some time, of course without the Father's knowing and before he had sold it. What will Father Lambert do? He must be a very different sort of an antimaterialist from any that we have ever run across, read or heard of, if he does not rake up the most material of dollars to secure the best legal intellectuality, and start a suit for his land. And he will win.
Win? What about the contract? Did he not "by contract, cede his rights to the wealth contained in that land to the purchaser for a consideration called purchase money"? Of course he did not. He was cheated by a cheat, and will recover the property he was defrauded of.

The workingman, held with his nose so close to the grindstone of work for a living that he has hardly any time for mental improvement;—assured by one set of John Doe's agents that he is a sinner and there is no help in him;— the scales being fastened to his mind's eye by another set on the subject of the rich vein of wealth that is started the moment he cooperates with others; learnedly argued with by a third set that he is worth only the wages of his "worthless labor" in the "worthless labor market," and that such wages are an immutable law of nature;—statistically told by a fourth set that there are many hundreds of thousands of just such "worthless labor" in the market; patriotically informed that it is out of patriotism for him that the price he is offered is at all offered to him; the only object being to "give work to labor";—and, finally, driven by the pinching want created by the John Doe of his case, the capitalist class, to sell, he does at the low price artificially created in his mind by the misinformation with which he is stuffed by the agents of his John Doe.

Did he "contract"? NO! Thunders Socialism from the camp of the awakening working class. No! He was cheated and plundered! and by the light of this knowledge whatever organization or institution cultivated, fomented, condoned, preached or justified the swindle will must go down!

IDIOSYNCRASIES.

It was May the second—the second day of the late Chicago national convention of the so-called Socialist, alias Social-Democratic party. A delegate rose in his seat and said:
"Mr. Chairman, before we proceed to our regular business, I understand that a so-called comrade from Colorado, instead of doing Socialist business, is busily engaged in selling mining stock.
This is disgraceful, and therefore I make a motion to request this so-called comrade to return his badge and that he may not be allowed to enter this hall until after this convention has adjourned sine die."

A violent tussel ensued. Why, here is a "De Leonite" insisting upon cleanliness in a Socialist convention! Here is an S. L. P. "impossibilist," for sooth, demanding an impossibility,—a decided impossibility to that convention! Preposterous! In the midst of the pandemonium of motions to lay upon the table, points of order, amendments, etc., etc., from the possibilists, the voice of delegate James F. Carey rose; it rose above the din; it dominated the din. He said:

"I submit that if this convention is to take up every idiosyncrasy on the part of delegates, we have troubles enough without doing that."

The effect of these words was well summed up by a delegate who followed and said that his Comrade Carey had "certainly hit the nail on the head." Carey's suggestion not to stir up the "idiosyncrasy" of the delegates touched a chord that vibrated from the chairman of the day, Mr. Moses Hilkwitz, alias Morris Hilquit, down to the last of the "idiosyncrasy" was to have its many Indeed, what would have become of the "convention" if idiosyncrasies were to be raked up?

If a delegate or alternate whose "idio-syncrasy" was to peddle at a "national convention" of "international Socialism" some mining stock was to be hauled over the coals, what safety would there be for the delegate whose "idiosyncrasy" was to declare that "Socialism is not the issue this year," as did Gaylord of Wisconsin? or for the delegates whose
"idiosyncrasy" was to have its many aliases or masks as countries through which they rolled? or for the delegate whose "idiosyncrasy" was to still carry about him the aroma of the rotten eggs with which workingmen on strike in Lynn regaled him when he tried to introduce scabs against them? or for the delegates whose "idiosyncrasy" was to embezzle trust funds? or for the delegate whose "idiosyncrasy" was to get up contracts, that were not worth the paper on which they were written, for workmen on strike against the sweatshop, getting paid for the work, promising to divide with the workers, and then raising his "original accumulation" by cheating them and keeping the whole to himself? or for the delegate whose "idio-syncrasy" is to declare that under Socialism "a common laborer" would not be entitled to equal remuneration with "skilled labor" as did the sapient Dr.

Titus? or for the delegate whose "idio-syncrasy" is to line up with people whom he denounced as fakirs, and to hold up their hands in fights between two capitalist concerns, in consideration of $5 a day on secret or agitation strike committees—moneys wrung under false pretext from the rank and file, as did "Vice-President" Hanford? or for the delegates whose "idiosyncrasy" is to put together a single tax Hearst and fly-paper platform, and keep their faces while they claim it is a "revolutionist international Socialist" platform? or for a delegate whose "idiosyncrasy" is to have left the S. L. P. indignantly because the Party refused to allow him to use its press to boom a nasty business in which he said "there were millions"—as did delegate Lucas of Minneapolis? or for a delegate whose "idiosyncrasy" is to call the working class "swine," as does delegate Taft in the Chicago "Socialist" as his justification for the swill that the new platform treats the workers to; or for a delegate whose "idiosyncrasy" is to speculate upon rich wives and debauching needy members of his "Socialist" organization by turning them into his private fellowshippers? or for the delegate whose "idiosyncrasy" is to vote a $15,000 appropriation for an army, and then lack the character to admit his wrong? or for the editor and private owners of the party press whose "idio-syncrasy" is to maintain that the safety of their "international party of Socialism" depends upon their private ownership of its strongest weapon? And so forth and so on.

Obviously there was danger for the ruling spirits of that "national convention" if the "idiosyncrasy" of the peddler of mining stock were looked into. They being reminded that danger to themselves lurked behind stirring the "idio-syncrasy" of any one, calm was speedily restored. A mutual spirit of good will was established among the idiosyncrasies, and peace reigned once more in the convention.

Calm and "good sense" being restored, the possibilists closed the episode by carrying Carey's motion "that the whole matter be expunged from the business of the convention." And thus "De Leon-ism" and S. L. P. "impossibilism" was once more "put down triumphantly."

(N. B.—The above facts are taken from the daily "Appeal to Reason" of May 4, 1904, a friend and enthusiastic organ of the convention of idiosyncrasies.)

THE DISAPPEARANCE OF THE "MID-DLEMAN."

The enforced liquidation of Sweetser, Pembroke and Co., a million dollar dry goods jobbing corporation, following, as it does, so closely upon that of Teft, Weller and Co., another great corporation of the same kind, has provoked a discussion as to whether or not the "middlemen" will continue to be commercial factors. Opinions vary according to the interests involved. They may be classed under three heads, viz, those who believe that, owing to the growth of cities, the jobbers will always be commercial factors, increasingly so; second, those who believe that they will only be factors in special lines; third, those who state that they are being undersold by the department stores and manufacturers who sell direct to retailers. The preponderance of opinion is in favor of this view, so detrimental to the commercial standing of the jobbers.

There is no doubt that like that of the transgressor the way of the jobber or "middleman" is hard. If he isn't completely gone now the time is coming when he will have to go. With the manufacturers selling direct to retailers, and, in many industries, like the shoe and tobacco industry, opening retail stores themselves; with retailers turning manufacturers, as in the case of the department stores;—in short, with manufacture and sale, that is, production and distribution, becoming one and the same, the jobber, like the non-manufacturing small retailer, will eventually have no place in the economic scheme of capitalism. Driven by the necessity for profits, and spurred on by the declining wages of the workers, which ever demand low prices, concentration and economy have become the watchwords of capitalist progress in distribution as well as production. They sum up the goal toward which the present system tends and before which all the forces of waste—"the middlemen" and the small non-manufacturing retailers—are eventually bound to disappear.

RELATED CATOS.

"Our ideals of the home have gone down. We talk of Mormonism, and affect a horror of it, as an unclean and loathsome thing; but as between a system that allows a man to have three or four ex-wives, or a woman to have three or four ex-husbands, and a system that permits a man to have his plural wives all at once, there is very little to choose. I am not sure but the odds are on the side of the Mormon.

"If this social scourge of easy divorce continues, it will call down upon us a people the curse of Almighty God. Wives are taking the place of mothers. Childless firesides are being substituted for family circles. The flat and the apartment house and the club, together with certain social and prudential considerations, are robbing our married women of material instincts and ambitions. It is the ring of the telephone and not the cry of the baby that we hear nowadays.
One of the greatest needs of our modern life is mothers. A restoration of ethical ideals is imperatively needed."

Who is it that said this? If it were not for the occurrence of the words "Mormonism" and "telephone," terms unknown in the days of the old Romans, the utterance might be imputed to the austere old Cato the Censor, and then the passage would be cited as an illustration of how needful the experience and knowledge of older civilizations are even to the brightest intellects in order to have them understand their own days. The walls of Cato the Censor at the childlessness of the homes and at the absence of the maternal instinct, his erroneous belief that these were causes in themselves instead of being effect, and his blunder at imagining that by altering the effect he could restore the commonwealth to its pristine purity—those walls, those errors, those blunders were pardonable in him. They are, however, not pardonable in the Rev. Robert F. Coyle who uttered them in the course of his address to the 116th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States that convened in Buffalo on the 18th of this month. He should know better than to stand in this year of grace 1904—about 2,000 years after Cato and with the vistas of the crumbled civilizations of Greece and Rome to guide his mind—no further than Cato stood.

The Catos and the Coyles are blind Cassandras, or to put it in language less choice but much terser, they try to hold a run-away horse back by the tail. Nor is the absurdity of their position relieved by the elegance of their language, or the pictorial pithiness of their summaries, such as "the ring of the telephone and not the cry of the baby" is what is heard nowadays in the homes of the ruling class.

Not walls will stand at this pass, but a close observation of the situation, and if this is done by the light of former civilizations the facts will transpire that the public patrimony having been pilfered and plundered from the workers by the idle rulers, the immorality of the act avenges itself upon the latter, their homes become childless and themselves putrid, while the stock of the working masses, though spoiled, preserves its numbers, and with that the possibility of redeeming society. The facts thus revealed by close observation turn the faces of the thinking away from the rotten and rotting ruling class to the sound working and ruled class. Once turned in that direction the method by which to work out of the social system the impurity that has crept into it, and to prevent its recurrence becomes obvious:

The public ownership of the land on and the tools with which to work, so that he who works shall live, and he who does not may starve to his heart's content. The home, that idol of man, is based and depends upon sound, material foundations. The foundation of plunder kills the home—and its music, the baby's cry and prattle.

WHY EXCLUDE THE CHINESE?

The press of this country is now engaged in a little insidious propaganda work in the interest of the capitalist class. It appears in the shape of brief news items, editorials and letters relating to Chinese labor, and is either impliedly or openly in favor of its admission to this country. A letter typical of this propaganda appeared in a recent issue of the "Cincinnati Commercial Tribune. It is headed "Why exclude the Chinese?" and is written by an employer, judging from its tone and contents. This letter claims:

"There is a constant demand for unskilled labor, and that demand is growing. True, there are vast numbers of idle men who are unwilling to perform common labor and will rather depend on the pittance drawn from the unions, and that in the face of the fact that unskilled, or common labor, pays the highest wages in the history of this or any other country." "The Chinese will supply this demand...."

Leaving aside the false claim regarding "the vast numbers of idle men who are unwilling to perform common labor" —a claim that is refuted by the statisticians of every employment bureau showing the number of skilled workmen applying for "anything" to do—leaving aside the false claim regarding "the highest wages" etc.—a claim that Thorold Rogers' "Six Centuries of Work and Wages" proves unfounded—this quotation is invaluable.

It reflects the vital reason for favoring Chinese admission. The capitalists of this country are not only under the necessity of admitting the Chinese in order to avoid the retaliation that would injure their export trade with the Chinese, but they are also under the necessity of admitting them in order that they may compete successfully for that very trade. With this end in view they are driving further the tendency of capitalism to send wages down to the level of the coolie. The wages of labor being regulated by the supply and demand of labor, the capitalist class realize that they have but to further increase the supply and wages—"the highest wages in the history of this or any other country" —will instantly drop further down toward those of the Chinese coolie. With such results attained in the case of unskilled labor, a drop in wages for skilled labor will follow, for it will not be long before the unskilled will be forced, in order to live, to compete for the jobs of the "skilled," with the effects mentioned. Then will the capitalist class of this country not only be enabled to propitiate the Chinese, but to compete successfully in the great markets of the Orient with the capitalist classes of other nations, who like that of England, also look with favor upon "industrious," "frugal," "peaceful" and cheap coolie labor. No wonder they ask "Why exclude the Chinese?"

To the working class the Chinese question is but another of the questions growing out of the merchandise—the wage slave—character of labor. Abolish that and the Chinese question is abolished with it. In order to do this capitalism must be overthrown and Socialism inaugurated.

THOSE POLICE MEAL TICKETS.

The freight handlers strike of this city is furnishing many instructive lessons.
As is well known, the Tammany police, under the direction of Commissioner McAdoo, is "protecting" the property of the N. H. and H. R. R., the corporation involved—that is, it is aiding the company to load freight with scabs, and by clubbing the strikers. The N. H. and H. R. R., in turn, is standing by the police. It is reported that, at the request of Captain Shaw, of the Madison street station, the corporation has issued meal tickets to the uniformed police, good at the Plymouth House on South street, the expense to be borne by itself.
This secures to the corporation continuous service and good will, while, at the same time, keeping in good physical condition the arm that swings the club whose blows end the strikes for more wages and better conditions.

These little meal tickets are full of meaning; they illustrate the intimate relation between politics and wages.
The Tammany stevedores and saloon keepers tell the freight handlers to keep politics out of the union, that is, working class politics. At the same time they use their jobs and their saloons to keep the union in politics, in capitalist politics, in Tammany politics, the politics that use all the political powers, including the police, as in this instance, to assist corporations, club strikers and render unsuccessful every attempt to increase wages and improve conditions.
The Tammany stevedores and saloon keepers tell the unions that politics are not trade matters but the politicians in control of the political powers soon show them that trade matters are politics, by calling out the police to defeat their efforts to improve matters in their trade.

The N. H. and H. R. R. knows the intimate relation between politics and wages. It knows it can increase its dividends by keeping wages down and preventing the betterment of conditions, with the aid of the political powers controlled by Tammany and the old political parties. It does not utter the parallel fallacy to that of the trade unions, viz, "politics are not corporation matters."
The N. H. and H. R. R., like all corporations, sees to it that the political powers are within its control. Meal tickets to the police are but one of the many means to this end. They help to understand them all.

Workers, take politics—working class politics—into your unions. Contemplate what would follow if the political powers—the police included—were with, instead of against you, when out on strike. Victory, and not defeat, would then be yours. Then politics would be trade matters to you, in the same beneficial sense that they now are to the N. H. and H. R. R. Then you would realize the intimate relations between politics and wages!

Brother Jonathan—I am going to the woods.

Uncle Sam—You will certainly feel cooler there than in the city.

B. J.—I don't do it for the sake of coolness, exactly; I propose to stay there even after the cool weather has set in.
I want to escape this year's campaign.

U. S.—But you'll be back in time to vote?

B. J.—Not much; that's the very thing
I want to escape.

U. S.—And let the thing go by default?

B. J.—There's no default in the case.
It is a choice of rotten apples.

U. S.—I certainly don't share that view.

B. J.—Would you vote for the Roosevelt party of humbug?

U. S.—Indeed I wouldn't. Its programme is partly the dry rot of "protection," partly the false pretense of the gold standard, and the whole doused with expansion gravy. The one and the other have been tried; wages go down in both; in both the workers are thrown out of work; in both pauperism increases for the masses and riotous wealth increases for the idle few. I'll certainly have none of that party.

B. J.—Nor would I. Or would you bestow your ballot upon that sadly stricken "Anti-Imperialist" Democratic party?

U. S.—Most assuredly not. In the first place, this gang is as much after a comfortable seat on the backs of the workers as its Republican rivals. In the second place, it is a preposterous crew. It wants the private ownership of the means of production, it wants to keep that up, and yet it is up in rebellion against the results of such private ownership. It wants to uphold the system of private exchange, and yet it wants to "smash the trust."

B. J.—So say I.

U. S.—Between the two, labor is between the devil and the deep sea. I'll have none of either.

B. J.—And don't you get tired of hearing the two sets of puddin' heads and rasicals making faces of each other?

U. S.—And disgusted, too.

B. J.—That's the reason I am going to the woods.

U. S.—But you have no choice other than these two?

A SIGNIFICANT VISIT.

As has been widely proclaimed by the press, young John D. Rockefeller, acting as the representative of his father, has visited Pittsburg. While there, Henry C. Frick, famed as the greatest ironmaster of all times, showed the young man unusual deference, piloting him about the properties of the Steel Trust and explaining to him its plans of reorganization and consolidation. While apparently differing in no respect from the usual capitalist inspection tour, this visit is of interest to the working class in more ways than one. Aside from the important fact that it illustrates growing industrial dictatorship of his father, the visit of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to the Iron City, serves to call attention to a capitalist movement of considerable proportions and significance—the movement toward reorganization and consolidation typified by the Steel Trust.

It is well known that capitalism is continually compelled by competition to lower the cost of production. The necessity of securing markets by producing cheaper than competitors, is always with the capitalists; but at no time is its presence more pronounced than in times of industrial depression. Then, more than ever, is the capitalist class forced to devise ways and means of securing greater efficiency, productiveness and economy for the purpose of producing and selling cheap. The capitalists are now in the midst of such times. Forced by the world-wide depression now on, and profiting by the opportunities for readjustment which it offers, the worldwide capitalist class is reorganizing and consolidating its industrial plants, changing the methods and installing the machinery which such reorganization and consolidation makes possible and necessitates. The capitalist class of this country, as the visit of young Rockefeller makes clear, is no exception to this movement. In fact, the efforts made by the capitalist class of other countries in

B. J.—None other.

U. S.—What about the Socialist Labor Party?

B. J.—Give me a rest!

U. S.—You shan't have a rest till you explain.

B. J.—Well, I will explain. The Socialist Labor Party is a political party, like all others; and the same as the Democratic and Republican parties, it will become corrupt when it comes into power.

U. S.—Are the Republican and Democratic parties corrupt?

B. J.—Are they not?

U. S.—As far as I can tell they are not.

B. J. (amazed)—What! !

U. S.—They are not. I have never heard of a single instance in which a Republican or a Democratic politician, from Presidents down to the Aldermen, has sold out to the working class.

B. J. looks puzzled and knocked out.

U. S.—Do you know of any instance to the contrary?

B. J.—I can't say I do.

U. S.—Consequently they are not corrupt. They are put there by the capitalist class and they remain true as steel to the capitalist class.

B. J.—Coming to think of it, that's so. Even though they quarrel among themselves, and even amidst their bitterest wrangles, just as soon as a labor issue is up, they form one solid body against the workingman.

U. S.—Once more, therefore, I repeat they are not corrupt. As your premise fall through, so must your conclusions.
The Socialist Labor Party cannot become corrupt. As the representatives of the old parties are uncorruptible and remain true to the capitalist class that run them, so will and must the representatives of the Socialist Labor Party remain true to the class that puts them in power and whose interest they represent. There is no instance of the representatives of a revolutionary movement having sold out; the labor fakirs sell out; but they do not represent the working class nor any revolutionary movement. They represent themselves, and a coward movement. Don't go to the woods. On election day cast your ballot solid for the Socialist Labor Party. Anything else you may do is aiding our common foe.

the direction of reorganization and consolidation, compels it to lead this movement, or else surrender its supremacy in the markets of the world, a thing that it at present cannot do.

It stands to reason, that with this new impetus toward reorganization and consolidation, it will be even more impossible to overthrow consolidation by competition; nay, we may expect that, with that strange fatality that drives capitalism ever onward to its own destruction, that the appearance of more competition will be the cause of more concentration.
It also stands to reason that with this new impetus toward reorganization and consolidation, the evils from which the working class suffers under consolidation will increase. Not only will the opportunities for individual ownership be further decreased, but labor will be increasingly displaced and intensified, the death rate among the workers will go higher, as will prices; while wages will decline.

Workingmen should not overlook these facts. With these facts well in mind it will be clear to them that capitalism has ever greater enslavement and degradation in store for the workers, and that their only hope of relief lies in the inauguration of Socialism.

It is in the manner in which it calls attention to the logical development of capitalism and helps to illustrate it, that young Rockefeller's visit to the home of the Steel Trust is of prime importance to the working class.

Workingmen will do well to pay no attention to articles on "the need of labor," in this, that or the other part of the country. All of them have labor enough, and to spare. Don't migrate anywhere, unless you have a certainty in view.

Now's the time for S. L. P. agitation on street corners. The weather and the times are ripe for it. Take party papers and literature with you.

To The Daily and Weekly People: E. J. Dillon, our candidate for Governor, was arrested Saturday night, May 21, while speaking from a box at the corner of Fourth and Washington streets. The charge against him was "obstructing a public highway."

The night previous to the meeting the organizer of Section Marion, S. L. P., called upon the Superintendent of Police White, and notified him of our intention to hold the meeting. The superintendent informed him that if we held a meeting at that corner our speaker would be arrested. The organizer asked "Upon what charge will you have the speaker arrested?" The superintendent answered "Obstructing the streets." Comrade Pfeifle, the organizer, stated that he wasn't there to argue the question, but to notify him that the meeting would be held. White asked: "Why don't you hold your meeting at the Court House?" Pfeifle answered him that we had our meeting advertised for the corner of Fourth and Washington, and with that he walked out.

The "Socialist," alias Social Democratic Party sent a committee to see the commissioners of police to ask permission to speak on the streets. Their request was thrown into the waste basket.

We had comrade Theo. Bernine, of Indianapolis, with us last Saturday, to help make the meeting a success. The action of the police gave us advertising that we would otherwise not have got, all the newspapers noting the arrest of Comrade Dillon. In that way it helped us on with our agitation.

Dillon was released upon his own recognizance. Will let you know results of trial. The matter will be tested in the courts.

DILLON WINS OUT.

To The Daily and Weekly People:—The case against our candidate for Governor, Comrade E. J. Dillon, who was arrested for "obstructing the highway," while asserting the right of free speech, was dismissed by the prosecuting attorney. He said he would file it in the Circuit Court. McSwegan, our attorney, says we will never hear of it again, inasmuch as the city has no law to proceed on.

RUN AWAY, AS USUAL.

To The Daily and Weekly People:—The "Socialist" Party in New Haven had a speaker, one Feildman, speaking on the street corners for some time. Last Friday night he was arrested and charged with obstructing the street. The next morning in the City Court he was fined three dollars and costs. Saturday night he spoke on the same corner and was again arrested. Monday morning he was fined seven dollars and costs.

Saturday evening after he was arrested, some of the Kongs came over to our hall and asked me (I was alone at the time), if the S. L. P. members would help them out in their fight for free speech. They said they would pay no fine, but would fight it out. I told them we would do all we could to help them, or any one else who would make a fight for free speech.

Monday night I called at their hall to see what kind of a fight they would make and they told me Feildman was going to stay in jail and they would have a speaker every night on the same corner. Five minutes after one of the Kongs walked in with a receipt; he had paid the fine. That is the way they made the fight for free speech.

FLOODING THE WEST WITH UNEMPLOYED.

To The Daily and Weekly People:—The president of the Seattle Electric Co., on returning from the Bankers' Association's convention, held last winter, referring to the industrial prospects, is reported to have said: "There will be no panic here, there will be lots of work this coming summer, but wages must come down." It may be interesting to know how the capitalists are working harmoniously together to bring about this decrease in wages.

A short time ago several hundred men, many among them married, but mostly Italians, were shipped from Kansas City to this city and Vancouver, at reduced rates ($27.00). They were hired by employment agents to work on the Alaska Central Railroad, "wages from $4 to $8 a day." On arriving here they discovered they had been deceived. The company that was to give them free transportation to Seattle was a myth. They were nearly all without money, grouped together on the water front for several days and nights. The city had to provide for them and the mayor and other officials interested themselves in finding work for the men. Contractors and companies were interviewed in their behalf. One sewer contractor discharged nearly all of his $2 a day men, and hired the stranded victims at $1.50. Other employers followed the same methods, and, finally, the press here announced that all the men had found employment, thus booming the city with a view to inducing more men to come out here.

Many of the men are still to be seen in groups on the water front. The authorities here are reported to have petitioned the Kansas city authorities to have the buncomen arrested, but the answer came back that there is no law whereby they can be punished. It is also said that the interstate commerce law was violated (reduced rates were not advertised 10 days) and attempts will be made to punish the guilty parties (nit).

THE LESSON THAT MUST BE LEARNED.

To The Daily and Weekly People:—"The Erie Herald" of the 19th inst. says: "The strike of the Erie plumbers is petering out. Many of the best plumbers have left the city. Some have returned to work and to-morrow evening the Board of Health examining board will examine a batch of applicants who want a license."

Perhaps it would be well to explain: Early in April the boss plumbers, who are identified with the "Citizens' Alliance," declared for "the open shop," and a nine-hour day. This action was a direct breach of contract between the bosses and the men, and, of course, the plumbers refused to submit. They did not strike, they were "locked out," and thus they have been compelled to make an unconditional surrender to the bosses.

This proves beyond doubt that the contention of the S. L. P. is the correct one, viz: that the pure and simple union is defenseless, as it is not able to meet the present conditions.

It is almost impossible to impress upon the minds of our class that they are getting just exactly what they voted for, and the consequent necessity of re-organizing the labor movement. However, it is as certain as two and two makes four, that the time must soon come when there will be an awakening. The lesson that must be learned is that the workingmen must organize as wage-workers, and not as plumbers, machinists or brick layers. In short, the necessity of the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance becomes more apparent every day, not only in Erie, but every other place, especially as the bosses seem to forget everything, except that they are employers of labor. As a result we have Mr. Parry's organization—the National Employers' Association, which is the direct opposite in its aims and purpose to the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance.

When the workingmen realize this fact, as they soon must, there is no doubt as to the final result. Speed the day. Fraternaly, Jer. Devine. Erie, May 19, 1904.

THEY AIM TO CONFUSE.

To The Daily and Weekly People:—When one reads the editorials in the large dailies he often wonders whether the editors are misinformed on certain subjects or whether they are merely guessing. Such is the case when one reads the writings of the editor of the St. Louis Globe Democrat, in to-day's issue. In discussing the Socialist chances he has the following to say:

"As a candidate of the Socialist Party in 1900 Debs got 88,000 votes. The party was divided that year. The more extreme section, which called itself the Socialist Labor Party, nominated Maloney, who received 40,000 votes. This year there is talk about a union between the two factions."

Nothing could be further from the truth than the above remarks. There is no talk of a union between the so-called Socialist Party and the Socialist Labor Party any more than there is of a union between the Republican or Democratic Party and the Socialist Labor Party. Nor is the Socialist Labor Party the extreme section of the "Socialist" Party; on the contrary, the "Socialist" Party is a counterfeit of the Socialist Labor Party, organized to destroy it. So the editor of the Globe Democrat is wrong.

Further he says: "The convention which has just nominated Debs, has made an overture of peace with the more extreme section by declaring in favor of labor unions."

There is no truth in this statement whatever. No such overtures were made, and it stands to reason that considering the fact that the S. L. P. is opposed to the trades unions, upheld by the "Socialist" Party, declaring them to be bulwarks of capitalism like that party itself, no such overtures would have been accepted.

We, of the Socialist Labor Party, recognize only one trade union, viz: the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance. When the so-called "Socialist" Party declares in favor of the S. T. & L. A., we will listen to its overtures; not before!

GRAFT, GRAFTING, GRAFTERS.

To the Daily and Weekly People:—Now that the season of Grafting has arrived, I would like to express a few thoughts on Grafting. Grafting is a science, and, in America, it is an exact science, and is practiced by a large number of people; some are born here and some come from Europe and other parts of the world to practice their profession on the people and organizations of America. Although the word Graft is an old word, the meaning is new. In botany the word Graft means to take a small shoot (or sucker) from one tree and insert it in the stock of another tree, as the stock which is to support and nourish it. These unite and become one tree, but the Graft determines the kind of fruit. To Graft,—to insert in a body to which it did not originally belong.

The word Graft has made the word Politician obsolete; the politicians are all known now by the name of Grafters. There is no party or organization too small to escape the "Graft"; they are vermin to be guarded against at all times, but are especially dangerous to a small organization. All of the Democratic and Republican politicians are Grafters, all of the "Social Democratic" politicians are Grafters, all the "Labor Leaders" in the Pure and Simple Trade Unions at the present time are Grafters, and the S. L. P. rank and file should carefully scrutinize its membership at all times to escape the blood sucking propensities of the Grafters, and keep him out or fire him out, if he should succeed in getting in; he is easily recognized if we follow a few simple rules.

Like the sucker on the tree the Graft produces no fruit, but draws his sustenance from the organization or party he attaches himself to. He is lazy, but usually a good talker, generally a poet, and sometimes a writer with a good knowledge of history, "if he has a good memory." Having plenty of time to listen to speakers and read books that are loaned to him, for the Graft never knows to buy, if time was money, he would be a millionaire. He don't work for the organization, the organization works for him; as soon as he gets acquainted with the members, he tries to borrow money from them; it is so much easier than working for it. The fraternal society is the breeding ground of the Graft; his first Graft is to be elected to a convention, get his carfare, hotel bill and "spending money" while doing the slums or tenderloins of the convention city. He uses the members and the organization for his own benefit, and then he graduates into a "Labor Leader" or a Politician; if he becomes a Politician then he joins all the fraternal societies, gets elected mayor or senator and sells laws and franchises to capitalists; but if he drifts into a labor organization, he runs the organization for the benefit of the boss and sells the members' votes to the highest bidder at election time, and he is very careful to keep politics out of the union, for it don't do for the members of the trade unions to know where they are marching; they are not to reason why, their's but to work and die. The Grafters will do all the thinking about politics for the union, for is not the interest of the capitalist and the union the same, and isn't the Graft the union?

The life of a peach tree is usually about four or five years, but if you graft a peach sucker on a plum tree, it will live to be fifteen or twenty years, and this seems to be so with a party or organization; the more Grafters there are in it the longer it seems to live; this is so of the pure and simple trade unions, of the Democratic Party, and also of the "Social Democratic Party." The "Social Democratic Party" are Grafting members of the "Social Democratic Party" are grafting on the pure and simple unions, and they manage to keep alive and help keep the pure and simple unions alive. As soon as a Graft finds that there is no chance for him to Graft on an organization or party, then he begins to find fault and tries to disrupt and kill the organization, for "what's the use of the party if he can't live off it."

The New York Labor News Company is the literary agency of the Socialist Labor Party and publishes nothing but sound Socialist literature.

CHARITY

To define charity and confine it within certain limits would prove a formidable task. The subject of charity embraces within its scope a great many tender and sympathetic emotions of the intellect and heart. One may be charitable in an hundred different ways; in thought, action, speech, etc., etc. But charity, as the thing is now generally understood and practiced, consists of material help, tendered one individual by another, or, when practiced on a large scale, it means the succor of individuals by various organizations. It is with such charity that we intend to deal in this article.

Various reasons underlie the charitable acts of society as well as of individuals. Religion, conscience, self-preservation, sympathy, business and other causes are responsible for charitable acts of different individuals. Some expect the portals of heavens to be wide open for their reception, their admission ticket being the penny they gave to the poor in this world. Others, not entirely unscrupulous and hardened, experience a sort of guilt by comparing their luxurious lives with those of the unfortunate poor, and try to atone for it by dispensing microscopic charity. With a good many it is business, nothing more, nothing less. With them a certain sum invested in charity, and well advertised, is calculated to return a certain amount of profits. A few, indeed, are touched by the unspeakable iniquities and sufferings of the masses and exert themselves, according to their understanding, in reducing the sufferings of the miserable. While the great majority is actuated solely by the spirit of self-preservation, blindly fearing and expecting some violent outbreak of the sufferers directed against their ill-begotten wealth.

The world is full of charity—at least—of what passes for it. There is private charity, municipal charity, national charity, organized charity, etc. Charity takes the form of hospitals, dispensaries, day-nurseries, homes of all sorts, free lodging houses, soup kitchens, orphan asylums, christmas dinners, and innumerable others. Municipal, state and national governments devote it to the dignity of one of their departments. There is no city, no town, no village ever so small but it boasts of a charity commissioner, overseer of the poor or poorhouse keeper. In the face of all these innumerable institutions and the thousands of people they employ to "look after the poor," to deny the existence of widespread and general poverty is extremely un-American, socialistic, anarchistic, etc.

No doubt all these institutions do not prove the existence of poverty. They are maintained for the benefit of the well to do. No doubt they are, but in a different way. The rich do not wish to come into direct contact with the poor. It is too disagreeable, you know. By paying or donating so much a year, they can get other people to attend to that. Someone else is doing all the other work for them, why not that also? The only thing they do attend to personally is eating, drinking, sleeping and pleasure hunting. Are you poor? Why, there is the charity commissioner to look after you.

"No Beggars Allowed." That is the legend hung up conspicuously in the entrances of even tenement houses. There are no such signs on private residences. None are necessary there. A beggar venturing there would be arrested on sight and probably severely punished. At the entrance of their business places down town another sign is displayed. "All applicants for charity are referred to the various charity organizations." We have all seen those signs. They are everywhere. Does not that prove further our great prosperity? Beggars, deserving or not, "keep off the grass."

To feel sympathy for the poor is human. The wish to aid them is natural. But to do so through doling out charity and feel contented is weakness. Therefore charity, self-satisfied and ultimate, is the refuge of the weak, the makeshift of the mentally inconsequential. Instead of abolishing distress it would perpetuate it. To relieve misery is laudable, but to prevent it is logical. What philosophy is this of robbing the hungry of a loaf of bread and returning the slice? Yet this is approved by so-called philosophers; exalted by the church, applauded by public opinion.

Charity blunts the finer sensibilities of the giver, and lowers the self-esteem, self-reliance of the taker. We admit of it being indispensable in the present chaotic state, but it being only a means, not an end, we deny it any higher ideal.

The duty of thinking men and women is not to stand idly by and watch the blind Samson beg and fight for crumbs which fall off the table which he himself has furnished so sumptuously. Their duty is to open this Samson's eyes. Charity of the pious, conscientious rich is only one more subterfuge of the parasite which will do everything, except to get off the worker's back. Capitalism, which degrades everything, has the same influence on charity, to which it points with pride as one of its saving virtues. As proof of this we need only recall the brutal treatment of poor patients in hospitals, the brutality of the majority of ambulance surgeons, the inhumanity of the authorities towards so-called tramps, etc., etc.

Charity, individual or organized, mean or generous, will not stem the tide of rising socialism. It is the working class, in fact, which is charitable to a fault, in allowing a small class to live in paradise, while they who created it, live in hell. Down with capitalist charity! Let them return to the working class what they stole from it, and it will be they who will become beggars. S. K.

Though the field is hard we must work it. Our press is the great bulwark of our movement at present. Push it along, and we will succeed, even though "hard times" prevail,—nay, because of them.

LABOR NEWS CO. NOTES.

Don't fail to read Comrade M. Ruther's letter on his "Book Campaign." It shows what can be done to promote the sale of our literature.

Adam Marx is not going to permit all the honors to rest with Comrade Ruther. He orders another two dozen of Bebel's "Woman Under Socialism," and writes that he will not stop until he has sold as many of them as he secured subscribers to the Monthly People—754.

G. S. Jennings, E. St. Louis, and H. S. Santee, N. Y. City, have also joined the corps of canvassers for the work. Others are still wanted. Send to the Labor News Co. for terms and enroll.

Comrade F. Bombach, of Boston, Mass., orders 25 copies of "The Pilgrim's Shell," 5 copies were sent to the Workman's Educational Club St. Charles, Mo., and an order of 5 copies from John Wanamaker and Co., this city, was also filed.

Comrades are urged to take this work up and increase its sale. They are particularly requested to ask for it at the book departments of department stores, and at public libraries, giving name of book, author, translator and publisher. This will create a demand for it and place the book where the public will see it.

Section South Hudson, N. J. isn't permitting the strikes and lay offs to go by without utilizing them. It has ordered 4,000 leaflets, consisting of "The Difference," "Union Wreckers," and "Why Strikes Are Lost." Every other section should do likewise.

Attention is called to the new leaflets: "Why Strikes Are Lost," and "Where Wages Come From," extracted from Daniel De Leon's "What Means This Strike?" to meet the demand for that work in leaflet form. Just the thing for distribution.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT NOTES

The numbers of subscribers to the Weekly People received during the week ending May 27 was 252. This is an increase over last week, but the total is still below the figures of last Fall. Considering that this increase takes place amid announcements of lay offs from all sides, it shows that much can be done despite the "hard times." Keep it up! Use the "hard times" to point out to the workingclass the necessity of reading our party press to learn the cause and remedy for them. Turn disaster into victory.

The list of workers for the party press sending in 5 or more subscribers is as follows: J. S. Knight, Pueblo, Colorado, 19; 34th A. D. N. Y., 17; Goodwin, Salina, Cal., 10; John D. Goerke, Cleveland, Ohio, 8. G. A. Jennings, E. St. Louis, Ill., 7; A. Anderson, Brooklyn, N. Y., 6; F. Bombach, Boston, Mass., 6; Section Los Angeles, Cal., 5; E. J. Eues, Rochester, N. Y., 5; J. M. Francis, Du Quoin, Ill., 5; A. Rutstein, Yonkers, N. Y., 5; C. Pandorf, 5; V. C. Koneczey, Two Harbors, Mich., 5; Wm. O'Brein, Dublin, Ireland, 7.

Following amounts were received for prepaid subscription blanks: J. C. Anderson, Tacoma, Wash., $10.00; J. A. Stromquist, San Francisco, Cal., $5.00; O. S. Rosas, Superior, Wis., $2.50; W. H. Slater, Newport News, Va., $2.00; 34th A. D. $2.00; 5th A. D., Brooklyn, $1.

Section Indianapolis has put a solicitor for the Weekly People in the field. He writes: "This is a hard field to work, but we will work it." Section Cincinnati's agent writes: "We are determined to spread the Weekly People here, as it is the only bulwark of our movement." These two sections show the right spirit.

LETTER-BOX OFF-HAND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

[NO QUESTIONS WILL BE CONSIDERED THAT COME IN ANONYMOUS LETTERS. ALL LETTERS MUST CARRY A BOX FIVE SIGNATURE AND ADDRESS.]

W. S., MADISON, WIS.—"Workingmen are liable to fits of passion"? Maybe. But old and sound is the maxim that "the influential classes, and those who take upon themselves to be leaders of the people, are fully liable to all the passionate error that has ever characterized the maddest mob." And the author of the statement is American and of high repute as conservative. Do you doubt it? And the observation is made apropos of a passionate error indulged in by "genuine American leaders of the people."

H. F., CINCINNATI, O.—The "Arbeiter Ring" was started as a Jewish workmen's sick and death benefit association. That was the pretext. The actual object was to give jobs to broken down hacks such as Feigenbaum, Rosenzweig, etc. There is no constitutional prohibition in the S. L. P. constitution against a member joining the ring, if he has money to throw away.

Second. The so-called Polish Socialist Party of America is an organization hostile to the S. L. P.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.—What kind of a paper is the Polish paper "Przedswit" published in Cracow by Daszynsky?

M. M., NEW LONDON, CT.—Too busy for the next four months. Could not think of accepting the job.

F. J. C., BOSTON, MASS.—The N. E. C. should be the only medium through which to arrange for any speaking that falls during the campaign.

J. H. E., BROOKLYN, N. Y.—There is no Social Democratic publication that is not private property. The Worker, etc., is private property of the Volkszeitung Corporation. Why, what was the suit of the Volkszeitung against the S. L. P. all about but because the corporation claimed to own the party press? And when the Party whipped it, the corporation dropped the stolen name of The People, and took the name of Worker for its English paper. The Labor News Co. belongs to the S. L. P. absolutely. So much so that all the suits brought by the Kanglets for back wages done there were brought against the treasurer of the S. L. P. The only beneficiary from the Labor News Co. and The People is the S. L. P. These questions have been answered now fully ten years. The S. L. P. owns its press absolutely and all that thereby hangs. The story about the sell out to the Chief paper is a lie of the whole cloth.

H. S. A., DENVER, COLO.—As shown in one of "The Epistles at the Lambertians," looked at from one, and an important viewpoint, there is no fundamental difference between the Marxian materialists and the anti-materialists, the latter standing as completely upon the materialist basis as the former, only that the latter pretend not to. Consequently, Buckle cannot choose but do what he does—look for the material basis for his theories. At the same time there is such a thing as a man's deceiving himself. The anti-materialists do. Consequently, Buckle frequently forgets all about the materialist basis that he otherwise builds upon and places the cart before the horse, whereas Marx never does.

T. P., NEWARK, N. J.—Eschew that word "consumer" all you can. It is a pit-fall word that leads only to error. Everybody is a consumer; to talk of the "consumer" as distinct from the "producer" is nonsense. The capitalist is no

THE PRESS SECURITY LEAGUE.

When the navigator at sea notes by the indications that a storm is brewing, he immediately prepares to weather it by making all snug aloft and on deck. At the present moment all signs in the industrial world betoken an approaching storm—the crisis. Strikes, lay offs, retrenchments are the forerunners of the crash that is following. At this time the S. L. P., like the careful navigator, must prepare to ride the storm and to utilize it to drive its bark along. It was for such work as this that the S. L. P. Press Security League was organized, and all comrades and sympathizers who are financially able should give it a hand. Many whom we have approached have paid no attention to the matter, at least we have not heard from them. It takes but a moment of time and a two cent stamp to let the League know whether or not it can count on you to help safeguard the party institutions.

producer, yet he is an all-devouring consumer. Hence it is the producer, and man from the producer's side only that is to be considered.

C. S., NEW YORK.—Inquiry is being made.

T. B. P., BUFFALO, N. Y.—"Modern individuality"? Where is it? Is it in our people's homes? Stand on any street; look down the rows of houses; what a plodding uniformity! Look at the clothes; they seem to be cut by one pattern! Look into the shops; the men move like soldiers. Look into the meeting of stock-holders; the few hold the majority stock, decide and do, the others submit. And so along the line. The feature of capitalism is that it wipes out the individual's identity.

D. O'B., PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The Concordat is a treaty between the Vatican and France. The gist of it is that the French Government, and not the Pope, appoints the bishops, and, consequently the government pays them. The revocation of the Concordat would have for its immediate consequences—First, That the French Government would be in $10,000,000 annually, that being the amount said to be paid to the clergy; Second, That the clergy would cease to depend upon the Government and would become more directly the agents of Rome. From these two immediate consequences numberless possibilities arise. The Jaures or Millerandist so-called Socialists are the sole ones in the Socialist Movement of France that are stirring up the Clerical Question.

R. T. C., SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—First. As to the Eugene Sue stories, they cannot be resumed in the Weekly,—not for the present. Already campaign matters are crowding. They will crowd numerously as we draw nearer to November. What may be done after that we cannot now tell. Until then the stories will go into the Daily Sundays excepted. The one that is now running through the Daily is "The Gold Sickle," or, Hena the Virgin of the Isle of Sen," it is a story of about the year 40 B. C.; the next will be "The Iron Tretvet," or, Jocelyn the Champion"; it is a story of the 14th century; the next will be "The Abbatial Crosier," or, Bonaik and Septimie," a story of the year 700; the next will be "The Executioner's Dagger," or, Joan of Arc," that is a story of the 15th century. The translations of these are now ready. They are all exquisite. The others will follow, one after the other till the whole series is ended. Why they are not taken in chronological order would take too long to explain. But each story stands on its own feet.

Second. Can't be helped. The address on "The Burning Question of Trades Unionism" will surely take over three pages of the Weekly and will be published in one issue. You see it is this way. One set wants it one way, another wants it another way. In the witty language of the manager of the Labor News Company, "Unable to suit all sides, we adopt the happy medium—suit ourselves." If you can know any better way let's know.

D. J., NEW YORK; A. C. P., ALBANY, N. Y.; F. S., ALLEGHENY, PA.; D. J. R., TROY, N. Y.; R. W., BOSTON, MASS.; C. C. O., PLEASANTVILLE, N. Y.; D. O. J., AKRON, O.; M. S., CHICAGO, ILL.; D. S. J., PHILADELPHIA, PA.; J. S., NEW YORK; S. L. W., READING, PA.—Matter received.

Comrades and sympathizers who have not received the League's circulars, and who would like to know more about the organization, may learn all about it by addressing

COMMUNICATIONS:—From Section London re national convention, filed. From Ernest Neys, Fernie, B. C., seeking admission as a member-at-large into the party, stating as his reasons that he purposed making a tour of B. C. shortly, mentioning that he would soon be in Vancouver.

AS NO OBJECTION could be foreseen by the N. E. C. of the United States to their representative acting in a joint capacity for the S. L. P. of Canada along with the S. L. P. of the United States, it was decided that an appeal for an endorsement of this arrangement, and the necessary funds, be made by the NATIONAL SECRETARY to all Sections and members-at-large in Canada. Under new business the National Treasurer was instructed to pay postage account for $150.

AFFAIRS in Hamilton next engaged the attention of the N. E. C., and it was decided to instruct Section Toronto to send a suitable comrade to that city to try, if possible, and straighten out matters, and report condition to N. E. C.

IT WAS ALSO DECIDED upon report of Comrade Pierce to again, if possible, reorganize Section St. Thomas, as the conditions there were now more favorable than for some time. D. Ross, Rec. Sec'y pro tem.

ILLINOIS STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Session held May 22 with Veal in the chair. All present except Yochum and Fennell. Secretary not having minutes of previous meeting, reading of same was dispensed with.

CORRESPONDENCE:—From Organizer of Section Chicago, stating that he had discharged A. McGinnis as solicitor for the party press, giving good reasons, which action was endorsed. He also reported the prospect of getting a few of the honest, revolutionary rank and file of the so-called Socialist party into the S. L. P., due to an eruption in the S. P., and enclosed $2 for the N. A. F. From G. Renner on national delegates and matter for National Convention, turned over to delegates. As to national delegates the State convention decided to send 5 if $100 could be raised; this has been pledged. From Promis and Signori, of Peru, notice that they are not American citizens, hence their place on ticket will be filled by others. They each enclosed $5 for State agitation fund. From Duquoin, inquiring about nomination papers. From organizer of Section Peoria bearing on national delegates, national convention, accepting second place on State ticket, and stated his pleasure with proceedings of State convention. From H. Sale, of Chicago, bearing on national delegates, accepting his election as one, also stating he will take up the work of soliciting for the party press if his craft is locked out, as is expected. From California State Secretary sending matter in the shape of a circular letter sent to membership in that State.

A CALL

The date of the National Convention of the Socialist Labor Party has been set for Saturday, July 2, and the gavel will fall at 9 a. m. of that day, calling the convention to order.

FOR THE PLACE of the convention Grand Central Palace has been chosen, the same locality where the conventions of 1896 and 1900 have been held.

DELEGATES coming from points west of St. Louis can save in cost of transportation by going via St. Louis, as fares from that point to New York and back again are apt to be lower because of extra rates introduced in view of the exposition.

MEMBERS of Section New York who are in a position to lodge one or more delegates and are willing to do so, will please send their names and addresses to the undersigned.

For the National Executive Committee, S. L. P., Henry Kuhn, Secretary.

back to such a simple system, even if it would not involve—as it would—a return to the whole hierarchical, or feudal state of society. On the other hand, it is as necessary for the existence of art as it is for the well-being of the people otherwise, that the workman should again have control over his material, his tools, and his time; only that control must no longer be of the individual workman, as in the Middle Ages, but of the whole body of workmen. When the workers organize work for the benefit of workers: that is to say, of the whole people, they will once more know what is meant by art; but if this social revolution does not come about (but it must), art will assuredly perish, and the rich will have no more of it than the poor.

IT IS MOST IMPORTANT, therefore, for the workers to take note how capitalism has deprived them of art. For that word means really the pleasure of life, nothing less. I beseech them to consider it not a light thing, but a most grievous wrong, that their work should be barren of attractiveness and their homes barren of beauty; and I assure them that this wrong is not an accident, nor the result of the carelessness and hurry of modern life, which a few well-meaning men of the middle class backed by money can set right. It is not accidental, to be met by palliatives and temporary remedies, but it is the result of the subjection of the poor to the rich, and, at the same time, is the most obvious badge of that subjection. One thing only can amend it: the outcome of that class-struggle now happily in progress, and which will end by abolishing all classes.

Nothing will restore the party to its constitutional standing but a speedy and emphatic rebuke, by the members; of this small crowd of disorganizers who are attempting to split the party at the opening of a presidential campaign because they cannot control its membership. Bring up this matter in your ward branches and instruct your delegates to stand by the regularly constituted officials until they are overturned by the means provided by party law.

AWAKENING OF THE BREWERS' UNION

(From the "Socialistische Arbeiter Zeitung," translated for the "Daily People" by Gotthold Ollenderff.)

New York, April 18th, 1904. At last the International officers of the Brewer's Union seem to recall their duties, and if the New York correspondence of this paper has, as it seems, been, at least in part, instrumental in bringing about this result, it has, if only to a certain extent, accomplished the object desired.

The Executive Committee of the International Brewer's Union has sent out directions for a general vote on the proposition: if the firemen and engineers of the whole country shall be permanently transferred to their respective trade organizations or not.

New York Brewer's Union No. 1 has resolved to protest against a general vote of this kind, being dominated by its rotten-to-the-core officers, who are the authors of the treason and the most active movers in the contemplated destruction of the brewer's union.

After an adherence of tens of years, after having staunchly fought through all its battles, the New York engineers and firemen of the brewer's union were shamefully abused by the venal subjects of the "sister" unions, simply because they declined to renounce the already gained 8-hour working day, and to again work twelve hours per day for seven days in the week.

If at that time the international officers had not neglected their duties, the Bohms, Pommers and similar riff-raff, would have been consigned to the ash-barrel long ago, while at the present only a timid attempt is made to decide by general vote a question which involves the very existence of the brewer's union.

What useful purpose can this union still serve, when the engineers and firemen are excluded, the beer-drivers disorganized and the bottlers gone to the Lord knows where? The foremen and their assistants in all the departments of Greater New York's breweries, according to the pool contracts, do not need to be union men—and the rest!

The answer is very simple. Should there ever be any trouble, the engineers and firemen, by order of Ex-Deputy Sheriff Healy and other ward-healers, will stay at work, for Healy and his crew always were the refined enemies of the brewer's union.

Furthermore, the International Teamsters' Union, which aspires to jurisdiction over the beer-drivers, is also not in friendship with the brewer's union; the bottlers do not amount to anything, and thus the beer-brewers would have to solely depend upon their own resources.

Any person, only half-ways familiar with the modus operandi of a brewery, knows that of all the workmen of a brewery, just the beer-brewers are those easiest to be replaced. A good brewmaster, a couple of tip-top slave drivers suffices to keep a brewery in operation with green "hands," if only the rest stay away from the "schooners."

To bring about such a state of affairs is the endeavor of the hired corruptionists of New York. They have been successful in the city, but as the despicable pool-contracts threaten to grow into a menace for the brewery-workers of the whole union, the international officers have at last decided to act.

Are they actuated by a desire to conserve the interests of the whole membership, or simply to insure the permanency of their own positions? It does not require a great deal of mental effort to find the proper answer to this question, if one considers that up till now they have not interfered with the nefarious machinations in New York, in which connection at least three of the secretaries cannot raise the plea of ignorance. Had they made the right use of their knowledge at the right time, and put down and out Pommer, Graven, et. al., the brewer's union would not have

THE IDEAL CITY

Cozimo Kato, M. D. Cloth bound, laid antique paper, 27 pages. Price, $1.00.

A pleasing and entertaining story, in which the New Orleans of to-day, with its poverty, misery, disease and crime, is changed, in a sane and scientific manner, into a healthful, beautiful Paradise for man. The aim of the book is to show:

- 1. That medicine, as practiced nowadays, is immoral, and that doctors, generally speaking, are but impostors, and often murderers.
2. That the road wherein now marches medical science in order to fight out disease, is wrong.
3. That Socialism alone can permit medical science to destroy all kind of diseases.
4. That man, living according to the laws of nature and of hygiene, things that under Socialism everybody could do, may reach an age twice as great as is now considered exceptional.
5. That old age as we know it is not a normal evolution of the body, but the result of diseases more or less apparent.
6. That Socialism is not a question of the stomach for some people, but is a question of the health and happiness of all people.

"The story lays no claim to economic or scientific merit. It is an outburst of a warm heart, that bleeds at the sight of human suffering under the modern system of society, and that, animated by Socialist sentiment, slings the proce some of the ideal city. As a man of science, the author has built upon the solid foundations of medical science, and that vein is permeated with the most typical, as it probably is the most pleasing and instructive to strike and follow in the book."—New York Daily People.
