A TYPICAL BATTLE

Fought Out in the United States Senate for the Poor.

The Struggle in the Senate on the Duty on Mattings is a Struggle that Typi-fies the Character of the Political Struggles of Capital.

On the tenth of last month a certain battle was fought that is infinitely more significant than the conflict between Turks and Greeks at the Miluna pass, and yet received very little general notice. The battle of June 10 cost not a drop of blood; its theatre was the Senate room at Washington.

The tariff being under discussion, a motion was made to put a duty of 4 cents per square yard on Chinese, Japanese and India straw mattings. The Senate promptly divided into two camps. One side fought for the duty, another against. After a hot contest, the latter won. To appreciate the deep significance of what took place certain facts must be kept in mind.

There is an oilcloth trust or combine in the country. It consists of four firms with a capital of $4,477,000. Oilcloth is the poor man's carpet. The combine is making large profits, but it wants more. Although it controls the oilcloth market. its goods have a competitor in the cheap straw mattings imported from China and Japan and not manufactured here. These mattings are quite a favorite with the poor. In order to remove their competition the trust had to force their price up; and to do this it got its men in the Senate to lay a duty upon the mattings. This was the secret of the move. It is evident, on the one hand, that the move, together with the Senators in charge of it, was in the interest of a trust and "against the interests of the poor man." Of that there can be no doubt. On the other hand, it would seem evident that the move against the duty, together with the Senators in charge thereof, was against a trust, and consequently in favor of "the poor man." Yet not so And herein lies the significance of the incident. How did these Chinese and Japanese mattings come into the country? In whose interest was it that they be sold cheap? Who imported them?-Answer: "A yet bigger monopolist and grinder of the poor man than the Oil Cloth Trust-James J. Hill."

Mr. James J. Hill is president of the Great Northern Railway, is deeply interested in shipping as a ship-owner of ships on the Pacific, and last, not least, is a bonanza farmer. One asks at this stage. What has any of these lines of industry got to do with Chinese and Japanese mattings? This: Mr. Hill wants to sell his grain in Japan and China; that is his natural market; his railroad and shipping facilities, added to his bonanza facilities, enable him to land his goods in the Chinese and Japanese markets more cheaply than anybody else; this enables him to control these markets and make tremendous profits; but these profits can be more tremendous yet; they can be made so if the ships that take his goods to China and Japan are loaded on the homeward trip with the cheap mattings of those countries and if they can be imported free of duty. If he can do so, then the cost, wear and tear of coming home of the ships need not be entered under "loss," and thereby diminish his large profits. The expenses of the return voyage would then be amply repaid by the ready sale of an article in vogue with the poor. A duty on these mat-tings would diminish the profits made on the homeward trips. The Oil Cloth Trust's scheme would have the effect of, by so much, hurting the towering monopolist of the Pacific! Thus we had a conflict between two Trusts—the Oil Cloth Trust and Mr. James J. Hill. The Senators in either camp stood not for the working poor over each camp waved the standard of a Monopoly, and each of the individual combatants were the livery of one or the other of the two monopolistic interests.

The issue of the struggle gains deep significance by the light of these facts:
THE LESSER MONOPOLY LOST, THE BIGGER WON.

This fight in the Senate is but a spe cialization of the political fights between the parties of capital, a fact that the parties of capital, a fact that becomes all the clearer when one considers the flaming headlines in which the plutocratic press announced "A Trust Defeated," when what happened was the defeat of one Trust by another.

As it happened in the Senate, so it happens in the political field of the capitalist parties. The fight in the Senate was the fight of capitalist interests, carried on behind the mask of the "poor man's interest." Two capitalist concerns being at war, one had needs to lose; but the loss of the one meant the victory of the other—with the working poor out in the cold. So with the polivictory of the other—with the working poor out in the cold. So with the political struggles. The capitalist parties of gold and silver represent capitalist interests; they fight behind the mask of the "poor man" Whichever vanquishes, whichever is vanquished, it is the robber class that vanquishes—with the toilers left out in the cold.

CLASS-CONSCIOUSNESS.

Is the "Gompers Union" A Class Concious Form of Organization? The question comes to us: "Is the Gompers' union a class conscious organization?"

A test of the class consciousness of an oragnization is whether it tends to solidify the proletariat, or to split it up. Brought to this touchstone, the Gompers' union is not a class conscious organization.

The recent issue on the tariff, raised by Congress, illustrates this point to perfection.

None but insane free traders or insane protectionists will claim that there is any abstract principle of justice, patriotism or politics in the respective theories. A capitalist is a high, or low, or notariff man according as his industry may happen to need a high, a low, or no tariff; and this question is determined by a number of special facts, that shift as time shifts. In the instance illustrated on the first column of this page, we see some of the principles that, under special conditions, affect the stand taken by a capitalist on the tariff; there are innumerable others. The question is not one of general principle; it is one of specialized interests. It follows herefrom that harmony on this question is in no country a likely thing among capitalists; and that in this country, where agriculture is as fully a field for capitalist operations as the mechanical trades. harmony is wholly out of the question among them. The capitalist camp in America must be perpetually a house divided against itself on the tariff question.

An issue that DIVIDES can never be an issue of class conscious proletarians. The issues of the class conscious proletariat are issues that weld the whole class into one solid lump. The tariff question is, even if examined by no other light than this, not a proletarian issue. The moment the proletariat touches this issue, it is bound to break up into as many fragments as there may happen to be special interests in the fields it is engaged on. The moment the proletariat touches this issue, it drops from sight the one issue, the touch of which makes the whole class kin; to wit, the issue of the ownership of the means of production, and its eye becomes filled with a different issue, the issue of the power to take possession of the market for certain goods at the expense of others; in short, the issue of its employer's or skinner's interests against the interests of some other employer. To return to the illustration on the first column of this page, if the employes of the Oil Cloth Trust and those of Mr. James J. Hill touch the tariff question they are bound to stand up against one another; the former will be shouting and straining and resoluting for, the latter will be doing the same against a tariff on Japanese mattings. There is an illustration still more closely to the

One of the Gompers unions is the International Cigarmakers' Union. The members of this body are employes of cigar manufacturers. These manufacturers have an interest in lowering, if possible, at any rate in preventing the raising of the tariff on leaf tobacco, and Congress, and have backed up their petitions with a number of resolutions adopted by several local unions of cigarmakers. On the other hand, the Kentucky raisers of leaf tobacco, who want their stuff to be bought, and no other, have an interest in raising the tariff as high as possible on leaf tobacco, and they have been getting their employes to petition Congress in a sense just the reverse of that in which the cigar manufacturers in some places got their employes to petition Congress. Here we have two sets of wage slaves—those manufacturing cigars and those raising leaf tobacco-in conflict with one an-

The Gompers union, in other words, the "pure and simple" or British abor-tion trade union, is evidently not a class conscious organization. It neglects as "rainbow chasing" the principles of the class interests of the proletariat, refuses to hold up the principle of the abolition of the wages system as the only foundation of a labor organization. and strains for immediate results. As a consequence of this a convention of such unions is agreed only upon very insignificant questions and on beautiful phrases; on everything else they repre-sent a reflection of the division and the quarrels seen in Congress between the representatives of their bosses. At the F. of L. conventions the iron workers demand protection, cigarmakers shout for low tariff, and so on; and the labor movement, in so far as it is per-vaded or infected by the Gompers prin-ciple, is rent into fragments of warring

The Gompers union, by reason of this fact alone, not to mention a score of others, is utterly disqualified to unify the working class; it can only keep the working people divided and divide them still more, and by so doing prevent, not only labor's emancipation, but any important in the left it is consequentprovement in its lot. It is, consequent-ly, a class unconscious organization, and, as such, it is deserving only of annihilation and reconstruction.

An American Millionaire's Yacht. Gave Up Life's Battle.

Around the world in a steam yacht! It is the lot of very few to know from experience what such a delightful trip means. One of the handsomest steam yachts ever built started during the early part of last month on a voyage that will occupy the best part of a year, during which time all the principal saports in the Orient, India and China will be visited.

Col. Anthony J. Drexel's "Margar'ta II." is the yacht. She is said to be the most costly vessel of her class affeat. Captain G. E. Rayner, her commander, who crossed the Atlantic in her, declares that he never set foot on board of a better sea boat in his life, so that, barring accidents, Col. Drexel, his family and guests need have no fear that the noble vessel will carry them safely to the end of their globe-circling Everything that modern ingenuity can devise for the comfort of the ocean traveler has been supplied by the designer. In short, the "Margarita II." is an American gentleman's home affoat, While New Yorkers were experiencing the chill blasts of winter during the months of January, February and March, Col. Drexel's yacht was steaming along at a speed of twelve to fifteen knots under sunny skies in the tropics, for, after visiting Gibraltar, Nice, Genoa, Naples and other points in the Mediterranean, she passed through the Suez Canal into the Red Sea, and later up the Bay of Bengal to Madras and Calcutta. On her way south from there she called at Singapore, going thence to Hong Kong, several other ports in China, and some in Japan. She returned by much the same route to the Mediterranean and the Riviera, where the British yachts raced in the spring. Col. Drexel hopes to be able to reach Newport next August in time to loin test the New York Yac

From the scuppers to the waterline the yacht has a freeboard of about eight feet. Her bulwarks are breast high, and she has the graceful sheer fore and aft that are characteristic of all the Watson steam yachts.

So admirably arranged is the interior of this yacht that a detailed description of it will not be out of place.

From an aisle or passage amidships one walks into the great dining saloon, thirty-one feet wide and twenty feet long. It is like stepping into the dining hall of some old English mansion. Overhead is a dome, set with twelve great panels of stained glass framed in dark mahogany. The sides of the room to a height of eight feet are fine finished in panelled mahogany. Above this, extending to the ceiling, or rather deck of the yacht, is a wide border of garnet brocade velvet on cream satin. At the centre table-a splendid piece of mahogany-twenty-four persons can be seated at dinner.

in this room are a piano fitted with electric lights and a grand Aeolian, something out of the common, which is also illuminated by electricity. The ceiling is studded with incandescent lights, inclosed in ground-glass globes to mellow the light. In the daytime ample light is furnished by eight round port-holes in the vessel's side. The mantelpiece and fireplace look exactly as if built in a house. Above the exquisitely carved pilasters and the antique andirons and brasses is placed a carved clock. A sideboard of carved mahogany, filled with rare pieces of china, a music cabinet, two spacious sofas and a buffet complete the furni-ture of this handsome apartment, the parquet flooring of which is covered by an immense Turkish rug. On the port side is the children's room, measuring 9 by 10 feet, containing a sideboard and a sofa, and on the starboard side the steward's pantry.

The sides of this room are covered with panels of flowered silk, while the bedstead and doors leading to the apartment are hung with lavender silk curtains of heavy material. The bedstead itself is a wonder of the carver's handlwork. The head and foot boards show at least a score of little cherubs carved in bas relief. The bed posts, carved to represent ropes, are surmounted by figures of cherubs in various attitudes.

At the right hand side of the bed close to the pillow, is set a cylindrical-shaped device entirely new to the yachts of this country. It is called a homacoustic, and it consists of a series of rubber tubes, the ends of which con-tain a telephonic receiver and sender which may be placed in position at the owner's ear and mouth without his leaving the pillow, much less the bed. By this system he can communicate with the captain on the bridge, the engineer in his room, the steward or the pilot. The entire contrivance is com-pact and simple in construction, and yet it is said to be very effective.

AND THEN AT THIS! Bulletin of Misery!

Body of George F. Paul, Former Labor Leader, is Recovered at Peoria.

PEORIA, Ill., May 25.-George F. Paul, who some years ago was a wellknown labor leader of Illinois, committed suicide several week's ago, his body being found in the river here this

In his pocket was found a letter to George F. Schilling, of Chicago, sec-retary of the State Board of Labor Statistics, philosophically reviewing his situation, and concluding that suicide was justifiable, because of his age and the supplanting of labor by machinery. Paul leaves a wife and daughter.

Would Sell Her Foreinger.

WANT OF MONEY TO DEVELOP TALENT MAKES A YOUNG WOMAN READY TO SUBMIT TO MULTILATION.

For $1,000 a young and pretty woman recently announced herself willing to sell one of her fingers. She is Miss Grace Dinsmore, and her home is in Binghamton, N. Y. One day this week she saw the following advertisement in a New York morning newspaper:

WANTED-Woman who, for liberal pay, will lose middle finger at middle joint, in a necrosis, or bone-grafting operation; stiff finger preferred.

The address given was that of an uptown institute, where similar operations are common. The advertiser said that he hardly expected to receive any response to the notice, but had actually received five by mail and one in person, that person being Miss Dinsmore. She arrived in this city alone and registered in a bold hand at the Grand Union Hotel.

She lost no time in calling at the institute. There she learned that the five other women who aspired to the same self-sacrificing position had sent measurements of their fingers, but that none of them had been found to be of the exact dimensions desired to fit the stump of the forefinger of the right hand of Mrs. C. V. Barton, of No. 701 St. Emanuel street, Houston, Tex.

Mrs. Barton is a wealthy woman, but is afflicted with necrosis, which means a dead bone. She learned that bone grafting had been performed with varying success, even at times when the bones of animals were used. She was not willing, however, to have the bone of an animal engrafted upon her finger, and insisted that a human finger bone be employed, hence the amazing advertisement.

Miss Dinsmore, at the Grand Union, said: "I am an orphan. My parents have been dead two years. I have succeeded in earning a living by means of evarious clerical positions. I have succeeded in

I had received instruction in vocal music while my parents were alive, but at their death it was discontinued. not hesitate to say that I am anxious to become a singer, and to that end I wish to complete my musical education at the Boston Conservatory. Of course, I cannot do that unless I have money, of which I have very little. That is the reason why I answered the advertisemy finger; I am only afraid of losing

"I have not," she continued, "yet met Mrs. Barton, but I have an appointment to do so. Meanwhile, however, I have been given to understand that the price which I placed upon my finger, and which I am perfectly willing to have amputated for this purpose, will be paid. The price is $1,000. I need that additional sum of money to complete the education I desire to obtain.

Miss Dinsmore is a blonde, tall, with blue eyes and ruddy cheeks. She is apparently not more than twenty-one Attempts Suicide.

BEING DISCHARGED AFTER YEARS OF FAITHFUL WORK AND LOW PAY.

Professor J. D. Dennison, seventythree years old, one of New Jersey's educators, who has a record remarkable for fidelity and hard work, is dying at his home in Haledon, a suburb of Paterson, as the result of self-inflicted wounds. His attempt at suicide was a most pathetic one. He had grown helpless and sought by suicide to relieve his wife of the burden of his support.

For eighteen years Professor Dennison was principal of the Haledon school, holding the position until four years ago, when the township authorities decided that it was necessary to have a younger man, with more up date ideas. Professor Dennison never recovered from the blow of his dis-missal. Previously, although aging fast, he had been vigorous and clearminded, but afterward he grew rapidly feeble in mind and body. From the window of his home, one hundred yards from the school, where all his interest in life was still centred, he would watch the children passing to and fro daily and brood over his misfortunes. His meagre salary had all along been barely sufficient to support himself and wife, and now his faithful helpmate had a hard task to make ends meet.

Finally Dennison had to take to his bed, and doctors' bills were added to the household expenses. Crazed by ap-proaching want, he attempted suicide.

IN THE COAL MINES.

Enlightenment Breaks Through Dark Clouds of Adversity.

The condition of the coal miners of the United States is as bad as or worse than that of the workmen in any other calling. When employed, their wages are of the lowest. Added to this they have employment only one-half or onethird of the time; in many cases even less. Nor is this all. Low wages and little work tell only a part of the story. Generally, capitalists employing workmen pay them their wages in money of some kind, and the workman can pick out any particular capitalist he chooses with whom to spend his wages; thus getting the benefit, where menopoly has not yet covered the ground, of the low prices sometimes offered by competing merchants. But none of the "blessings" of cheapness are known to the miner. Low wages do not mean low-priced commodities to him. He is compelled, "in consideration of employment," to trade at the "Company Store," and the Company Store is run for the express purpose of showing that the man who sells his labor-power at the lowest price can make his employer still richer by buying commodities of him at the highest price. Than the coal miners, there is no example which shows more clearly the law that the greater a man's pov-erty and the lower the wages for which he works, the greater the degree of exploitation and the higher the percent-age of profit. Crude, indeed, were the tactics employed by the knights of the road in the old time—robbing only the rich. Would-be pirates and burglars, who at the most get a few thousands at great risk of life, limb and liberty, cracking safes and robbing the well-todo, should take a trip to the coal regions and see their more progressive brothers-the capitalists-make their tens of millions robbing the poor

Full well the miners know what it is to be in want. The miner starves when he works and he starves when he has no work. This, that the mine-owners ay "make money."
From the day a man enters the mines he can see ahead of him a few years of work and want, and want of work, poverty and privations at the beginning; and at the end the "reward of his industry"—starvation. It is coming when starvation will be the cause of "natural death" among the miners. Things tend fast in that direction. But now not all meet that fate There are more ways to kill a miner than starve him. Many of them go by way of the blast that went wrong, a falling rock, a cave-in, a breakage in the machinery

These conditions among the miners are not new. They have existed a long time. Perhaps they may get even One might think there could be nothing worse than starvation, chronic or acute. But you can't tell. If the capitalist can make an additional dollar making things worse for the miner, then things will be worse for the miner. All the world may be said to know of the state of affairs at the coal mines President McKinley knows it. So do all the members of his cabinet. Likewise the United States Senators and the Justices of the Supreme Court; also Speaker Reed and the members of the of Representatives. And the Governor of the great State of Pernsylvania (he is a mine owner); the members of the Legislature, and the lawyers and judges and clergymen and business within and without the State And have these people the power to change the state of affairs so that the miner will have justice and the right to live on the earth? And will they use their power? Are they not good people. respectable people, and do they not, all of them, tell us how how much they will do for the working-man-before election?

No. These good people cannot change these conditions; nor would they if they could. The slavery and starvation of the coal miners is a part of capitalism, and all these "public servants" are themselves capitalists or their agents. The miner's want is their wealth; out of miners' wages cometh their raiment; out of the poverty and woe of the miner is coined the plenty and pleasure of the capitalist; because of the ignorance and starvation of the miner's child shall the child of the capitalist be schooled and traveled and stuffed to satiety and curse his father.

Then these conditions will not be changed by our great, good, respectable people and prominent citizens. Must they always remain as they are? Must the workmen always starve that the idle may feast?

For answer, the miners of the Luzerne Valley have organized a So-cialist Trade & Labor Alliance. They do not propose to ask capitalists to de-liver them from capitalism. They be-lieve that the working class alone can save itself, and that it will do so, and in order that their belief and judgment may bear fruit they have organized on the economic and political field. The mining region is covered with the wreckage of pure and simple trade unions. It took nerve and hard work to get the men who had been buncoed by labor fakirs times without number to undertake anew the work of organization. But the miners of Luzerne have done it, and they are making splendid progress. New members join every meeting, and it has been found necessary to hold meetings every two weeks, instead of monthly, as at first. Best of all, this is not our experiment. Incontrovertible argument to the point of demonstration proves that the mo-ment the working class relies upon it-self to accomplish its own political and economic emancipation—from that mo-ment victory is theirs.

BEN HANFORD.

For the Unemployed Demanded in

Address of B. Reinstein, Spokesman of the Committee, to the Mayor of Buffalo on June 16, 1897.

Your Honor:-We come here as a commmittee sent to you by the thousands of unemployed workingmen and citizens of Buffalo. We did not come to appeal to your feelings; nor did we come to beg from you alms or charity. as we consider that charity is degrading, nay, positively insulting to the working class. We came to DEMAND from you, as the head of the city government, that you provide for the thousands of unemployed workmen work enough to enable them to support their families without the assistance of the poor-houses, work-houses and Souphouses. We say that we DEMAND work, because we hold that the class we represent, the class of wage-earners, has a right to DEMANT it.

We know that the working class alone produces the entire wealth of the nation and are consequently entitled to every cent's worth thereof, capital being nothing but accumulated, unpaid labor, and the result of a long series of legalized and illegalized confiscations does not a series and the series and the series are series. tions, does not as such entitle the capital-holders to a single cent's worth of the nation's wealth; that, consequently, only when the capitalists will contribute their share of useful labor to labor of the nation, and only in the measure of the labor thus contributed by them, will they be entitled by right, justice and common sense to treat as their own that part of the wealth that will be then due to them.

We know, however, that now, thanks to the modern capitalist arrangement of society, which allows private individu-als or private companies to claim as their own exclusive property the land, the factories, machinery, mines, rail-roads, telegraphs and all the other means of production and distribution. which should belong to the whole peo-ple collectively, this non-producing, numerically insignificant capitalist class has succeeded in concentrating in those few hands of theirs nearly the entire wealth of the nation and nearly all the means of production and distribution, leaving the bulk of the population, the millions of wealth-producers, property-less, compelled to sell themselves to the capitalists into wage-slavery in order to escape starvation with their families. We also know that this state of affairs, coupled with the continuous per-fection, which, instead of REDUCING THE HOURS OF LABOR OF ALL, is used by its present private holders to displace more workmen; to increase the erve army of unemployed, which is an essential thing for the capitalist's "prosperity"; to accentuate the com-peti ion on the labor market and thus to REDUCE THE WAGES OF ALLwe know that this state of affairs enables the capitalist class, according to latest returns of the U. S. census, to withhold from the wage-earners, as their "legitimate profit," about 80 cents on each dollar they produce, leaving to the working class for its hard labor the remaining 20 cents on the dollar, which is too much to die and not en-ough to live on. Thus the debt the sponging capitalist class owes to the wage-earners is a continually increasing

As Socialists we know that this debt

MUST and certainly WILL sooner or later be paid to the working class. We know, however, that the capitalists will not pay this pelled to and that they cannot be compelled to do it till the American prole-tariat, realizing that their class interests are diametrically opposed to the interests of the capitalists, realizing that the Republican and the Democratic, the Populist and the Prohibitionist parties represent only different factions of the same capitalist and nonproducing class, will withdraw uncon-ditionally their political support from those parties and, uniting as a class on the platform of the Socialist Labor party, which alone stands for the entire abolition of capitalism and wage-slave-ry, and for restitution of all means of production and distribution to the whole people, will wrest from the hands of the capitalist parties by means of the Socialist labor ballot the governmental power and establish the Socialist Co-operative Commonwealth, thus ensuring to every citizen not only a chance to work, but the enjoyment of the full fruit of his labor.

We are fully aware of the fact that it will take a few years yet before the mass of the people will be brought to understand their rights and to act accordingly. cordingly. Therefore we demand now as a PAYMENT ON ACCOUNT, AS A PART-PAYMENT of the debt that the class, which Your Honor represents, owes to the working class, that the gity authorities take immediate and proper authorities take immediate and proper action to provide work for all the unemployed of Buffalo.

As additional ground for this demand we claim that the class of citizens we represent—the wage-working class—is the very one who is the actual tax-paying class. It is generally contended by the ruling classes that the vast majority of wage-garpers holding vast majority of wage-earners, holding no property, do not pay taxes, and con-sequently have nothing to say as to how the money of the city is to be spent. We claim, on the contrary, that every cent in the city treasury comes directly or indirectly from the sweat of the brow of the working people, and from that

ANOTHER SAMPLE OF THE VUL. GARITY OF BOURGEOIS THOUGHT.

If the trustees of the University of Michigan have any sense, they will promptly depose President James B. Angell; for a confusionist he seems to have no equal; if left alone he will grind out the veriest lot of mixed up graduates. Some time ago we called attention to a stupid baccalaureate address delivered by him to the students. Last Monday he again put his foot into it. Said this bourgeois Presidential muttonhead:

"It would be difficult to name brilliant young men who for a consideration have placed their talents and attainments at the service of unscrupulous managers of the worst types of municipal politics in our large cities. It is no secret that a powerful and notorious organization in New York city has for years sought gifted young men from all parts of the country and enlisted them in its service in that city, and crowned them with pe-cuniary and political rewards. It would be easy to name many men, who, with no evil intent, have by their irrational itching for office wrecked fair prospects of professional usefulness and are stranded now in middle life without of-fice and without professional support. I know of few more melancholy spec-tacles than the long procession of these chronic officeseekers."

To mistake cause for effect, to confuse the form with the substance, to take appearances for essentials-these are the earmarks of vulgar bourgeois thought; and we find them all in the above passage.

The "brilliant young men" who sought office and are now stranded in middle life did not seek office for the love of it; they sought office for the sake of a living. The cause of their wreckage is not the disease of "office-seeking"; it is the lash of want or fear of want with which they were driven by the capitalist system-a system of which President Angell is a leading exponent. These young men sought office as others start a grog shop, others a pawn shop, as others take to stealing, others again to prostitution-all fleeing from the consuming prairie fire of capitalist concen-

President Angell would have done a good deal better had he given a sort of living picture baccalaureate, and, standing under a full head of light, addressed the students thus:

of the representatives of the capitalist class, one of the tongues of fire that are shot forth from the Tophet of capitalism and that are wrecking the youth of the land."

Had he done that his name would have gone thundering down the galleries of fame as the first capitalist college president who did not talk through his hat on matters appertaining to the Social Question.

SPECIALIZED SOCIALISMS.

He who takes for a Socialist any one labeling himself "Socialist," and who considers how numerous are the specimens floating about self-labeled "Socialist," is apt to leap to a curiously mistaken conclusion. Proceeding from the correct maxim: "In Union is Strength," his conclusion is that if all these "Socialists" were only to unite they could carry everything before them. True enough-"if"; but could they unite? Let's see.

There is, for instance, Editor Jim Jams. He was originally a farmer; the bonanza farm, together with other capitalist contrivances, bore down upon him; a mortgage cropped up and spread its branches over his fields; the market price of his carrots and pumpkins no longer suffices to make the ends meet; without throwing off his neck the millstone of the petty farm that is dragging him down, he opens another "industry," starts a paper, and seeks to catch pennies with it. Through his exchanges he becomes acquainted with the Socialist movement; he contemplates it; contrasts the shady, peaceful groves of that social system with the burning, harrowing hole in which he was and is; he likes the prospect, and forthwith pronounces himself a "Socialist." But there is that mortgage that he wants to rid himself of; the desire to do this is paramount with him; the illusion of small "property" still has a strong hold on his mind: he is set upon reacquiring his old dunghill. To do this he becomes a "Sixteento-oneist." He is a Socialist, he'll say, and probably means it in his fashion, but he must FIRST have the money to pay off his mortgage. His motto is 'Socialism ultimately; Sixteen-to-oneism first." Across the street, or river, or State line from where Editor Jim Jams is spilling ink, there is Real Estate Agent Snick Snooks. His face is careworn, he is in shabby habiliments dressed, and the rust has long since invested his vest. He does a little "laying-out of money" in mortgages and the like; but the capital at his disposal is too small a hook to fish with; many an aspiring shark ran off with his bait, hook, line and allex-Farmer Jim Jams among them; mortgagors would not or could not pay interest, let alone return the principal, and he, being a small fry capitalist, lacks the necessary "pull" to "fix them." Him also, it is evident that the development of capital is leaving stranded on the beach of the middle class. The bad times afford him leisure to do what he never did before-read. A pamphlet on Socialism falls into his hands; he devours it. "Oh," thinks he, "would we were so far when this unnerving strain for a bare existence is no. more! Of course, I am a Socialist." But he squints at his ledger; he opens it; the taste for his shekels returns at the sight of the long columns of figures due him; he, too, is still dominated by the illusion of small "property"; he wants to recover his little loans. To do this he must be a stout upholder of "Sound-moneyism." He is a Socialist, he'll tell you, with whatever honesty there is left in him. but he must FIRST have his money back from all his mortgagors-ex-Farmer Jim Jams included. His motto is:

"Socialism as soon as may be; but Sound-moneyism right away."

Take a third "Socialist"-Mr. Flim Flams. He lives in shabby-genteel apartments on the fifth floor of a shabby - genteel bachelors' lodging house. He has lived the life of part skinflint, part sponge. The fear of eventual want dried within him the well-springs of the milk of human affections. He spent nothing, reached the age of 50 childless and unmarried. His savings ran up to several thousand dollars; with them he resigned his clerkship, bought U. S. registered bonds, and, on the slim dividends they yield, he lives a life in which he estimates and considers the cost of every breath he draws and breathes or not accordingly. In his sleepless watchfulness over pennies, he frets at his gas bill, although most of the time he goes to bed in the dark. He hears about the "anti-monopolists" who propose to "wrench the gas plants from the greedy clutches of the gas octopus," and he silently makes up his mind: "That's the ticket for me." In the meantime he waits. To spend money in any pastime is, with him, out-of all question. No theatres for him, only free shows. Thus animated, he drops accidentally some cold Sunday evening into some variety show free lecture hall. There he hears the fag end of a speech denouncing the existing social system and putting in some goods words for "Socialism." Too stingy to purchase sound Socialist literature and post himself, Flim Flams declares himself a "Socialist." Next day his gas bill comes in: he pays it with an internal oath and takes his resolve: "Yes, Socialism some time; but Cheap-Gasism now, by thunder!"

The list of these specialized "Socialisms" could be prolonged many a yard. Harmonize them?! The bare thought of Jim Jams who wants 16 to 1 now, Snick Snooks who wants first 32 to 1, Flim Flams who cares not a rap for either, but swears he must have cheap gas on the spot, etc., etc., etc.—the bare thought of all such "Socialist forces" getting together is preposterous. As well imagine dogs and cats, tied together, each intercepting the other's sun heat, joining in one common pur-

Specialized Socialisms are unimitable The basis of Socialist union is a right understanding of basic principles. The ash-barrel of society furnishes no material for that revolutionary, compact army that Socialism requires to overthrow capitalism and save civilization.

THE ROTHSCHILDS' LATEST COLONY

It is now learned positively that the Rothschilds are about to make a loan to Spain, secured by a mortgage upon her quicksilver mines. The fact is pregnant. It means Spain's complete subjection to capitalism, and this in turn points out the minor workings of the mechanism of capital.

The Spanish quicksilver mines are reputed to be the very richest in the world; their yield during the preceding 20 years is estimated at $80,000,000, and it is asserted that, under more perfect operation, they will yield enormously more. Why does not Spain operate these mines herself, and thus keep to herself all the wealth there is in them? Surely, her treasury is not so full as to cause her to be generous to others. Why is she willing to part with a large chunk of wealth when she is in dire need of all she can get? She is willing because she must; and she must because despite all her rhodomontades about "freedom," "independence," "national glory," she, like all other nations in which capitalism prevails, is ingloriously the slave of the international tyrantthe Capitalist.

Where capitalism prevails, money with intrinsic value is as indispensable "to make the mare go" as steam is indispensible to make a steam engine do its work. Without money, international money, intrinsic value money, not a wheel can move in the whole mechanism of capitalist society. Its sound, its touch, or the promise of its sound and touch, is the wizard's wand that alone can conjure up industry; and the absence thereof strikes with palsy every arm. Spain, like all other capitalist countries, may or may not live, according as that sublimated capitalist, the banker, wills, or will not.

Passing odd is the spectacle offered by Spain, while furiously seeking to subjugate Cuba, meekly bending her neck to the yoke of another!

POLITICAL and ECONOMIC.

The "Diamond Jubilee number" of the London "Labour Leader" is illumined by this little poem:

When the royal ode is all the mode. And rables in the season What wonder if, in consequence The fool should seek in fraud's defence, To muzzle simple common-sense, And flout the truth as treason.

A fulsome blare is in the air. And forth from tower and steeple Resounds abroad once more, I ween, That ancient cant God Save the Queen, While democrats chip in between With-Reason Save the People.

God Save the Queen, yet the grass is green, And London's full of gentry, So while you fake the jubilee, In a badge of red, and fancy free, I'll just slip off with I.L.P. Into the open country.

Here is "harmony" for ye, all ye who want to "harmonize" the "reform Says the Pittsburg, Kans.. forces.." 'Pittsburg Kansan":

With single tax as a balance wheel, with Effective Voting and Direct Legis lation as guarantees for a government of the people, by the people and for the people, the state of Washington would ere long demonstrate that the Socialism of common ownership of public utilities, tempered by the individualism of the Single Tax, was the highest form of Socialism and the highest form of individualism."

The story is told about a German prototype of our own American "harmony cranks" that, feeling running high in certain South Germany village on the subject of the press, a local philosopher and sage determined upon "uniting the 'reform forces.' " One "force" wanted a more rigid form of censorship, the other demanded a free press. Our harmony crank thereupon bobbed up serenely with the slogan: "The Censorship and a Free Press!"

The unconscious wit on the "Pittsburg Kansan" may see his own features in the mirror of the German harmonizer above quoted. To imagine a union of Single Taxism and Socialism, of a social principle, which, like to Single Tax, being grounded on class rule, recognizes the necessity of the Capitalist State, and, so recognizing it, logically insists upon a certain form of taxation; to imagine a union of such a social principle with the Socialist principle, which, being grounded upon uncompromising hostility to all class rule, determines to overthrow and annihilate the Capitalist State, and, being so grounded and determined, logically rejects all such forms of class rule as taxation-whether single or complex, direct or indirect, to imagine and propose "harmony" between two such principles is identical with that of the above quoted German village philosopher and sage who would harmonize the "Censorship" and the 'Free Press.'

Truly, the stomach of the brain of the 'harmony crank" is suffering of chronically acute indigestion.

Mr. Edward Irving, an article by whom appears in the Detroit, Mich. "Sentinel," either has a roundabout way of stating things, or is one of those wildeyed money blabbers. He says:

"If you have not your fair share of the good things of life, then it is because you have been deprived of your just rights by an erroneous monetary system. The average producer in the system. The average producer in the United States creates over ten dollars' worth of wealth every day. This is an absolute fact proved by the United States labor statistics. If you do not get this it is because the imperfections of this, it is because the imperfections of our system of exchange enables some other fellow to get hold of the greater part of what you produce.'

If, by imputing the robbery perpetrated upon the working class to the existing monetary system, Mr. Irving means that, once a Socialist system of production is instituted, "Socialist money" would go along with it, and, capitalism being overthrown, the worker would enjoy the fruits of his labor; -if he meant that, he meant the right thing, but took a very misleading and roundabout way of stating the truth.

If, however, Mr. Irving meant that the whole question of keeping what one produces solves itself into the question of money-whether the money is of this, that or the other material, whether its "per capita" is large or small, etc., etc., I then he is just the sort of writer that a labor paper should steer clear of, he having nothing to say except what will confuse the workers' minds, and thereby keep them in slavery.

"Columbia Weeping To-day" is a many-paged "poem" just published in San Francisco that may be entered on the list of causes that make Columbia weep. Its plan is to staunch Columbia's tears by a method for raising loans. Unhappy Columbia, to whose tear-red eye lids so many thorn-woven fabrics are being applied that prick her all the more!

The Leadville, Col., "Western Miner" is in decided bad luck in the choice of the employé who furnishes it with articles against the Socialist Labor party.

Early in May, the "Western Miner" contained an article with the following choice bit of information, forecast and sample of controversial courtesy:

"For twenty years it has been the custom of the S. L. P. in this country to hold meetings in the back rooms of saloons, with the same audiences week after week, and a new listener only when the barkeepers were changed; this method of spreading the propaganda of Socialism has been so success ful that at the present ratio of increase in the orthodox wing, the co-operative commonwealth will be greatly intro-duced about the year 17,327."

And in its issue of June 12th, it is virtually forced to eat crow by publishing an interview with Debs in which, speaking of his colonization plan, he says:

"In the campaign of 1900 the new movement will be a factor in the elec-tion. ITS POLITICAL PRINCIPLES WILL BE THOSE OF THE SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY, AND ITS POLITICAL BATTLES WILL, DOUBTLESS BE FOUGHT UNDER THE BANNER OF THAT PARTY."

We certainly would not quote Mr. Debs as authority on what will happen and how it will happen; but we feel quite confident that he is not a 'barkeeper,' and his opinion of which party it will be, under whose banners the battle for freedom is to be fought, as well as the near date when that event will take place, look funny, to say the least, in the columns of a paper that takes so much stock in him, that reduced the S. L. P. to back rooms of saloons and that put off the success of the S. L. P. some 17,000 years.

But the "Western Miner" does not seem to read itself, or it has a particular fancy for its own vomit. In the issue of June 19, just one week after it published Mr. Deb's admission of the S. L. P's soundness and power, it returns to its good slinging and further illustrates its general ignorance in the following passage meant to be a clever hit at the S. L. P.:

"A great race was on between the swiftests chariots of Rome. While the arena a fly sat on the axle of a chariot wheel and said: 'Great God! what a dust I do raise!'"

The story of the fly is one of Aesop's fables. The above quotation, accordingly, is tantamount to saying that Rome was charioteering about before she was built!

These articles of the "Western Miner's"writer on Socialism justify the belief that he is an habitué of barrooms; it is only in such places one can get so thoroughly muddled up.

Says the Columbus Junction, Ia. 'Age of Thought":

"The true remedy for monopoly is not more monopoly, but competition, the antithesis of monopoly."

Thereupon the San Francisco "New makes the following prompt, apt and sharp retort:

"When I read extracts like the above I wonder how long it will be before the editor who wrote it will reach the age It would be a certain waste of time to reason with a man who

of thought.' cannot see that competition leads to monopoly, and that monopoly is simply the result of a competition so succes fut that it has crushed out all compet-

'SOCIALISTIC" PAPERS.

The Confusion they Create, and the Discredit they Throw Upon Socialism.

The "Socialistic" papers which "make people think" are beauties in their way. One of the latest, called the "Rights of Man." reached me some time ago. For unexcelled ability to create thought, it seems to deserve the bakery. On the front page is found the following terse and truthful statement: "When one individual becomes wealthy, hundreds must become poor"; again, "The price of labor is fixed by the capitalist"; again, "To get rich is merely the ability of one man to take from another the products of his labor"; concluding with: "The only salvation for you, my workingman friend, is in the ranks of a class conscious body like the Socialist Labor Party. "Go to work for your own emancipa tion from poverty, and let the idle rich take care of themselves." There is contained in those sentences plenty of thought-making material, but the editor or proprietor evidently does not think such food sufficient, so he makes the dose greater by announcing on the succeeding page that any one sending a subscription of 50 cts. is entitled to a horoscope of his or her life, which mean that when you send the 50 cents you will also send the date and hour of your birth, an astrologer will tell you wheth-er or not you will be successful in business, marriage or any of the trades or professions. All this notwithstanding that the other pages of the paper bristle with statements to the effect that cap the stealer of all talent; that it kills oportunity, and makes a few lords and the many slaves.

thoughts created by "thought-making" statements are liable to give a man mental strabismus trying to find out where or how the fact that being born under certain stars means success, when success depends on "ability to take from another the products of his labor." Such thinking is liable to raise warts on a man's brain and make his think tank run over and flood the surrounding country. In the same paper, under the head "What Socialism Is" appears the follow-

"The principles of Socialism are identical with the ethics of Christian-Socialism has its growth among the workers who are unused to juggling with words, and who are more apt rive at conclusions by rough and read; reasoning than by a continued study of principles, so that when the worker, who has heard that Socialism means the ownership of tools, materials, etc., with which to work, is brought face to face with the foregoing statement he is apt to think of the wood yards conducted by the Salvation Army and other Christian Institutions; and knowing that such Institutions mean for him the sawing or splitting of a half cord of wood for which he receives three tickets, one entitling him to one meal of a doughnut and a plate of mush, another to a plate of mush and a doughnut, while the third entitles him to a certain interest along with different varieties of vermin in a dirty cot in some old fire trap-his thoughts of the Socialist common wealth are apt to be permeated with the "ethics" he acquired in the wood-yards. He has not time to find out what the word "ethics" means. He don't care for fine-spun theories; "Christian ethics" may be all right, but somehow whenever he runs up against a Chris-tian business he finds it almighty mean and, if Socialism is the same thing, it is no good. Such papers as are here re-ferred to are straws which show the set of the current. They are conducted by men who see the chance to make something out of a rapidly increasing movement, and therefore attempt to gather in the shekels from those who are desirous of seeing Socialism succeed; but their freak nature breaks out in spots either in horoscope schemes or some other fool way.

The best way to preach Socialism is to preach it. Let astrologists preach astrology, and Christians preach Christianity. Use terms and words that the ordinary reader can understand and leave "ethics" to Herbert Spencer. Don't add to every ten words of sense two words of nonsense; it only the cause ridiculous, which I sometimes think the "socialistic" papers which "make people think" are very apt to do.

UNCLE SAN & BROTHER JONAL YAM

Brother Jonathan-I have written a book on the Solution of the Social Ques-

Uncle Sam-Where is it? B. J.—I have not yet got a publisher. It is on that point that I want to consult

you. Do you know a publisher?
U. S.—I know lots of them.
B. J.—What I want is a publisher who is interested in reform. Do you know of

U. S.—You will have to define that word "reform" before I could aid you. B. J.—By "reform" I mean a publisher who is interested in the improvement of the people.

U. S.—It is getting worse now. You will now have to define two words: "improvement" and "people," before I could give you an opinion. B. J.-Do I need to define two such plain words as "improvement" and "people"?

U. S.—As a rule, the words are plain enough. They are plain enough in every day talk on every day subjects. But in connection with "reform" and "solutions of the Social Question," and such matters, the words have many and conflicting and special meanings. You will have to define them. B. J .- I never heard of such a thing! U. S.-I'll show you. Have you ever heard of the gold mugwumps?

B. J.-Yes. U. S.—They are "reformers." Now. with these reformers the word "people" means two things. It generally means their pockets; when they use it in that sense, they understand by "improvement of the people" the filling up of their pockets, which is the same as saying the "skinning of the workers some B. J.-Well, of course, I don't mean that by "improvement of the people. U. S.—Sometimes the mugwump uses the word "people" in the sense of the workingmen. When he does so and talks about the "improvement of the people" he means the administering to them of good clubbings to keep them B. J .- Of course, I don't mean that either.

U. S.—Then you have the silver mine barons. They rank themselves with "reformers." Now, when they talk of the "improvement of the people" they mean the administering of the rifle diet to the miners. By that they consider that their miners, whom they rob right and left, will be so far improved as to become "loyal American citizens," and help to support the European barons who married American heiresses of silver mines. That is their way to "improve the people." B. J.-Now, you know I can't mean

U. S .- I only know what you say, and I want to understand you. Then there is Rockefeller's Prohibition party. When it talks about the "improvement of the people," it has in mind the idea of reducing the expenses of the working people so that the capitalists who run it can squeeze the wages down, and make higher profits-B. J.'s eyes open wide. U. S.—Do you mean that?

B. J.-N-n-0

U. S .- Then you have the municipal ownership reformers a la Glasgow

B. J .- Well, are they not all right?

U. S .- Guess they are from their

B. J.—And what is that?
U. S.—By the "improvement of the people" they mean to bring the workers on public industries under the political club of the capitalist class so that this class may hold over them both that and the economic club, and in that way hold the workers in more complete slavery. B. J.-I do declare! Why that knocks out my book!

U. S.—I thought as much.
B. J.—I shall have to re-write it!

U. S.—A good idea. B. J.—But is there no such thing as "improvement of the people"?
U. S.—I mentioned four different ones.

But there are more. One of them is the Socialist B. J.-What do they mean by it?

U. S.—By the "people" the Socialists mean the working class in particular; by "Improvement" they mean ridding the working class of the parasite class of capitalists that devours the substance of the workers. By the "improvement of the people" the Socialist Labor party means the overthrow of the capitalist system, thereby of the system of wage slavery, and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth under whose dome he who works shall eat, and he who can but won't work shall enjoy full freedom to starve and freeze to his dearest heart's content. B. J. looks stunned. U. S.—Now, go home, throw the man-uscript of your book into the fire, and start a new book.

B. J. walks off scratching his head and mumbling to himself: "A queer way these Socialists have of looking at things! They want us to work! Hem!"

The Logic of History in Determining the Course of Revolutions.

THE PEOPLE has in its article July 20, fully mastered the burden of Mr. Wells' question, and its argument is conclusive upon the main point. But the form of the question is pregnant with an assumption, which, though conclusive upon the main point. But only slightly bearing upon the point raised, is of great importance. The correspondent of THE PEOPLE labors apparently under the conviction that an absolute majority of the people must be enlisted under the banners of the S. L. P. before a social revolution may be reasonably expected.

Though the question has only an academic interest in determining the present attitude of the S. L. P., it is of material weight for the purposes propoganda, in as much as the degree of remoteness of the final goal influ-ences the minds of the comrades to whom the capitalistic system is stench in the nostrils, and of the sy nathizers who vascillate between logic of fact and history, on one side and their inherited Social and traditional proclivities on the other. Having in view this end, I shall endeavor to demonstrate that neither is it at all probable, if we are to draw analogics from history, that the Party of Revolution will be peacefully developing with such majorities of the nation as 75 per cent., and the capitalists remain all the time in undisputed control of gun and cannon nor are the forces of this revolution determined by the apparent num ber of Socialists at the time of its in-ception, once the economic conditions are ripe for a social change, and the intellectual development has graspe these conditions. Let us be taught by reason and experience.

Had a plebescite vote been taken be-fore the English, American or great French Revolution, asking the people whether it was their express will to overthrow the respective governments and establish a new political system, who, that intelligently reads history and understands the spirit that actuates the masses, doubts that such a proposition would have been snowed under by an overwhelming negative under by an overwhelming negative vote. The great bulk of the people, though conscious of suffering and loud in its complaints, had not then, nor has it as yet, clearly determined the cause of its calamities. So much does the timid general intelligence adhere to old forms and recoil from a radical change that it will much prefer to put up with evils that are familiar than to risk the chance of a trial of things unknown, be they ever so promising. It ever was the task of a solid and tan-gible minority, that clearly saw the original cause of a disease in the body politic, and had some defined remedies. to rise and eradicate the one and apply the other. The passive majority looked on, where it was not forcibly led to take parts with one or the other side. Hence a principle is advanced in political science that, no matter what the form of covernment may be, active minortips wie passive majorities. Whether or not so in time of peace, the principle becomes manifest during every great social upheaval. Then the force of each active individual is brought to bear directly upon the ultimate aim, and the influence of his political idiosyncrasy upon the character of the political state is proportional to his consciousness of purpose and the proximity of the orig-inal motive which impels him to action.

The French Revolution was boundless in the scope of its aspirations, but inasmuch as it aspired to be universal its purpose was vague and its aim was clear only where it was true to the historical moment. It was a most com-plete and thorough-going change of social forms. There was no reform of social forms. There was no reform of old systems—they were completely discarded. Economic, political and religious creeds were thrown overboard, and the nation was for a time left to shift with the best thing at hand. Such a mercliess sweepout was not the man-date of the majority. But there was an active minority sufficiently numerous to force things to an extreme.

lution were by no means as universal, and its aims were modestly circumscribed by the exigencies of the moment and locality. The ideas of the English Revolution were insular in scope but intense and clear in purpose, and it carried out every letter of its programme ferocious clearness and con-The Puritans were people of an extremely positive turn of mind, and si-ways knew what they were about. Cromwell, though himself nothing cromwell, though himself nothing loath, could not, with more than regal powers in his hands, be crowned a king. The majority of the nation would not have opposed him—the majority were passive observers, but there was a minority exercising an active will. The Puritans did not want a king, and the Puritans knew their own minds.

Now a Socialist knows what he

Now, a Socialist knows what he rants whether or not he is able to express it in definite terms. Bourgeois society, based upon the maxim, "Every one for himself, and the devil take the hindmost." was an unavoidable link in development of social forms. This last social form has outlasted its necessity. and now exercises a sinister influence course of progress. Any justification of the system of Free Competition, of "Laissez faire, Laissez passer," has passed away, leaving society in a state of war of one against all and all against one; where the few hold grimly on to the tools of production, and the mass of mankind is cursed to misery. These monstrous relations cannot continue, and if there be no exit mankind must perish in the chaos. But Socialism points a hope to despair, and assumes the Herculean task of cleansing and re-Juvenating society. All the impartial conclusions of a pure human intellect; all the cravings of oppressed humane aentiment; all the logic of events; the trend of economic development point to the only—the true way out—Co-operation; emancipation from wage-slavery paid slave and no paying master final crowning of labor; to humanize toil, so that every man freely works for all, but for no British lord, for no French count; not for the dissipated band of prostitutes and thieves of Fifth avenue, St. James', or St. Germain. This clearness of purpose of every cialist strikes with dismay the un holy gang, and invariably routes all the apologists of capitalism of the "liberal, "reform" or "pure and simple" type in their argumentative encounters with Socialism. How useless it is to write books and devise new systems of phil-osophy oto demonstrate the impossibility; impracticability, iniquity, etc., of a Co-operative Commonwealth. It is so much muscle-tissue and gray matter wasted. The Socialists know what they want, and are secure in their future, for when issue is joined Socialism will be when issue is joined Socialism will be sustained by the Reason of impartial Philosophy, by the Ideal of the Poet, by the Logic of History and by PHYSICAL FORCE. And as in the constitution of modern society the Socialists are the modern society the Socialists are the only class that is consciously and progressively ε tive, and impelled by proximate motives of ever increasing strength, it is to them that the future destinies of mankind are intrusted. The Socialists are the makers of history for the time being. All opposition to them must vanish as chaff before the breath of the storm. So much for the lessons of history.

Now, we shall attempt to determine the function of human character in the evolution of society.

It is only the strong-minded individuals who first discern and become consciously susceptible to new acting causes as they arise. It is only singular characters that always seek fresh channels for thought, new directions for their course. The great unwieldy mass of mankind follow the trodden paths, though the causes that have, generations ago, prompted their an-cestors to take that particular course have long ceased to act. While the pioneers of civilization explore with torch and axe the never light-stirred darkness, and hew roads towards better lands, the great numbers continue their cycle in the beaten track. And the greater the number the greater is that inert force which the acting causes must overcome in order to change their course. The new motive powers acting in a different direction retard the motion of the masses, but, though the aimlessness of their course lights upon them more and more; aye, now and then glares them to the face; though they wistfully listen to the song and the sound of the axe of their comrades exploring and clearing the wilderness though yearning to extend a helping arm to their fellow toilers-yet, deeply is habit imbedded in their nature that, with all the voices of the morning calling to them to awake, to arise, on and on they drift in a hopeless It requires an earthquake, a chaos. social cataclysm to throw them out of the rut, but once out, there is no mis-take on whose side THE MAJORITY MEN WILL STAND.

Now let us reason from general determinations to particular cases.

We assume that we have reached a state of social progress when not a majority of 75 per cent., but a minority of say 30 per cent., numbering approximately four millions, strikes What sort ballot box for the S. L. P. men are those four millions of

Friend or foe! You know this not to be the fact.

Every Socialist is one and a selfacting unit in himself. Every Socialist is a conscious volunteer in the militant army of the revolution. Every one of the four millions is ready on the first call to lay his life for the cause of emancipation of the wage slave. If you count four millions of voters for the S. L. P., then may it be known to all of you doubting Thomases that these are many men willing and ready to fight the fights of Socialism, the battles of civilization.

Or shall we fear those soft-brained faculties are completely befogged by the mental legerdemain performance the various Socialist killers, and the ferocious logomachy of the Anarchists.

—birds of the passing night, that can do nothing but blink at the dawn of a new era?

In our age of fast extinction of all unfit species, so few of those degenerates will survive to witness the fray that they cannot be taken seriously.

Last come the great millions of our own disinherited brethren; the toilers of the brain and the toilers of the brawn—the proletarians outside of the

I have endeavored to prove that their numbers, though not readily re sponsive to the new motives, will have their sympathies enlisted with their comrades struggling for the common weal. Small doubt but that the capitalist class will, by that time attempt to cut the talons and the wings of th young eagle—to tamper with universal suffrage or with the republican institutions, or some other "patriotic" scheme will be hatched out to save the "nation," "civilization," and what not. Then there will be the Socialist Labor party to stand guard over the liberties of America, and it will call a peremptory halt to the robber classes. The con-flict ensues and the clash of arms resounds throughout the land, reverberating in the hearts of men, breaking through the moss-grown shell of habit, and firing all the doubting and indiffer-ent with enthusiasm proportional to the length of time they have held back their natural sentiments on the assumptions of their exploiters. To what side will the great millions naturally It may still be argued that the capitalist class has the advantage

1. Organization, as means of transportation and communication, militia, arms, finances, etc.

 Position, as armories, forts, etc.
 External aid: Witness the treaty of extradition of political criminals made

All this the capitalists do possess just now, and this is one of the reasons why the Party of Revolution will not allow itself to be lured into a trap by the "agents provocateurs" of the foe or precipitated into a hopeless conflict by some indiscreet hotspur in its own midst. The Socialists have too great a mission to fulfill to notice every bravado or engage in crazy adventures.

But all these particular advantages will slip out of the hands of the capitalists long before the time given. It is the current phrase that Vanderbilt, Depew, Sage, etc., run the railroads, telegraphs, etc. It is safe to assume that at the time given it will be fairly well established that all the means production, communication. being run, not by a Vanderbilt, however much vital energy he spends in clipping coupons, nor by a Depew much as this individual contributes by his well seasoned jokes to the digestive powers of his patrons, but by the long list of employees—clerks, brakemen, firemen, engineers, etc.—the millions of unsung, unknown toilers. These mil-lions are now organizing and reorganizing, and in every way perfecting their forces that they may be brought to bear at any time or place when necessary preserving their compactness and unity throughout the conflict. The railroad employees are among the most intelligent proletarians, and they will form the backbone of the S. L. P. Arms? Finances? Expropriation and confiscation? The capitalists have appropriated what they do not own. We shall take what is our own. History does not change its course to please sentimental qualms, and it has exacted a fearful penalty from our French Comrades in the seventies for disobeying its mandate.

Militia? The Emperor of Germany. with all his bluster, has at this time some misgivings as to the readiness of his well-drilled and highly disciplined soldiers to massacre their own friends at his bidding. Will the American militia always allow itself to be entired by their exploiters into the "patriotic" duty of committing fratricide in order to save to the capitalists their stolen pennies?

Armories? There the ruling powers are grievously blundering. They build armorles to inspire terror into the are grievously blundering. They build armorles to inspire terror into the revolutionary Socialists. The Socialists calmly study the fine buildings, calculating what use the Revolution will make of them.

The capitalists, terrorized by the steady step of the approaching Revolu-

steady step of the approaching Revolu-tion, are erecting fortresses in the centre of the crowded cities. The Revolution will overtake, immure and bury there all who will be foolhardy enough to offer resistance.

Position? One of the greatest securities of the final victory of the Social Revolution is its advantage of position. Paris, Hamburg and Berlin are en-tirely in the power of the Revolution. while other great cities of Europe are gradually being vanquished by the S. L. P. When the Revolution has on its side pronounced 30 per cent. of the population of the United States, it will have in its power not only all the great cities of this union, but all the smaller manufacturing and mining districts where the population is most con-gested. The forces of the Revolution will be concentrated and compact units, while the strength of capitalism will be scattered in the equivocal sympathies of the rural population. Eternal Help? When the Inter-Eternal Help? When the Inter-national Socialist Labor party issues a call to arms, it shall guarantee to every capitalist of whatever country ample employment at home, and he will find but little stomach for em-barking into delivery expeditions. And who may those deliverers be, anyhow? England? France? Germany? Austria? Italy? Russia?

In every one of those countries, with the single exception of Russia, the S. L. P. has made strides far in advance of the proletariat of this country. Why? Some of the European capitalists seriously contemplate the United States as a safety haven for their long forfeited skins and a fence for their stolen goods. in case the Revolution overtakes them at home.

To recapitulate: . When the forms of social develop-ment come into conflict with the direction of social forces, the latter will naturally gravitate towards the new forms that favor their expression. He who runs can notice how the centre of social gravity is hourly shifting from the capitalist class. The bourgeois is drifting further and further out of the pale of social progress. He has fulfilled his appointed mission in history, holding now over as a tenant at sufferance, and may be ejected any time without notice.

While the debile bourgeois class is wedded to the past, dreams of the past, and is sighing for turning backwards the course of time, the Social Democ racy throbs with the energy of youth, and turns a radiant face towards a hopeful future. To labor belongs the

A Deliberately Misleading Bourgedis Phrase Exposed.

When, after the destruction of what was euphemistically called the Greek was caphenistically called the Greek army, Turkey, having in view the necessity of securing itself from further attacks, demanded a "rectification" of frontiers—which is what, in similar circumstens. cumstances, every European power would do—then in the Governmental Press of all European countries—above all, in the Russian and the English Press-at once arose the cry: "Christian Europe can never tolerate that a piece of territory which the Christians once snatched away from the unbelieving Turks should ever revert to the latter. In all European Governmental papers this cry sounded in unison, and in such regular time that the uninitiated would really for a moment believe in the "European Concert."

In fact, there have been many, many Liberals, and even Democrats, who have taken the cry in earnest and have gone into a sort of ecstacy over it. For in this case "Christian" signified hostile to the Turk, and hostility to the Turk was friendliness to Greece, and Greece represented in their minds Liberalism and Democracy. We do not wish to oncern ourselves here with the latter interpretation of this cry. But some re minders may not be useless to the in-ternated Liberals and Democrats, especfally to the English "forward" men, who are in particularly high ecstasies. The friends of Greece, or, to use their classic title, the Philhellenes, should be especfally suspicious of the word "Christian." Because when, after Napoleon's fall at the end of the first quarter of the pres-ent century, Philhellenism was born, then "Christian Europe" stood round its cradle, and was contemplating the consecration of the new-born child to slave service, or the twisting of its neck.

This "Christian Europe," whose Christian (musical) director, lived at that time, as still to-day, at St. Peters-burg, was called the Holy Alliance, and its pompously-announced aim was—to lead the European States on Christian principles, and to educate their peoples Christian humility and in the fear of the Lord.

At that time we had a "Christian Europe" and the Holy Alliance.
To-day "Christian Europe" raises itself again, and the Holy Alliance is the ideal of the international reaction of priests and police agents.

"Christian Europe" was, however, not invented by the Christian Czar Alexwith his devout woman and prostitute, Lady Krüdener. They took it from the history of the Middle Ages, from the beautiful time of the Crusades, when, led by praying and execrating monks, the Christian knighthood monks, the Christian knighthood wished to deliver the tomb of the Saviour from the growing crescent of Mahomed, with the view of spreading over the whole world the cross of Christ

This Europe-let us consider it, let as see what it is. An odoriferous bunch as see what it is. An odoriferous bunch of flowers, composed of six States: a bunch of flowers representing the blossom of practical Christianity. At the head Russia, with its model trinity of powers, the know, the Rope, and vodka (whiskey). Poland murdered, dozens of other nations destroyed, Protestants and Catholics persecuted, the lows beingled from the country; then hounded from the country; then England - Ireland coerced and slaved, India plundered, three millions of Indians left to death by starvation in this "garden of humanity," which is most richly endowed by nature; thirdly, France—twenty-seven years ago ten thousand workers massacred because they believed in the liberty and the equality of the Republic, and hecatombs of human beings sacrificed every year on the altar of the colonial politics of the French bourgeois government, Pan ama, millions stolen; in the fourth place, Germany—anti-Socialist law and coercion laws (Umsturzgesetz), the people deprived of their rights, the hunting down of Jews, and militarism, orgies of capitalism, the civilized acts (Kulturthaten) of Leist, Wehlan and Peters: fifthiy, we have Austria slaughter of workers, and dog-and-cat wars between the different nationalities: in the sixth place, Italy-Panamism, Crispi's policy and state of siege, the hunting down of Socialists, robbery and incendiarism at home and in the colonies. To these six powers—which the Turks with irony call "the six impetencies"—we can add, as worthy to belong to this noble league, the all-Christian Spain, which strives with France for the honor of being more Christian than any other Christian State. In Spain—the slaughter of the starved peasants of Andalusia, torture infroduced again as a state institution murdering of masses of people in Cuba and the Philippines. Such is "Christian Europe." "By their fruits ye shall know them,"

says the Bible. And the latest acts of this "Christian Europe"—its doings in this Græco-Turkish jumble; let us recount them: Instigation of the citizens' war in Turkey; Armenian atrocities; Cretan revolt; rivers of blood shed-and for every drop of blood spilled the guilt of blood on that Europe which directly or indirectly provoked the atrocities; the demand for reforms in Turkey and refusal of them in every other country. The hounding on of Turks against Greeks, and of Greeks against the Turks.

Quarreling for the inheritance of the sick man whom, since the time of the Holy Christian Alliance, the European physicians try their best to help on the way to the other world. Incendiarism in Crete, and attempts to extinguish the flames they have themselves lighted, the revolted alternately cajoled and bombarded. Hypocritical peace protestations with treacherous war arrangements; the war between Greece and Turkey, which could have been prevented, made a necessity by diplomacy.

Such are the latest performances of the Europe of to-day. Unfortunate Greece, driven on towards destruction, with its desolated provinces, its villages burnt to ashes, its thousands of killed and crippled sons, its prosperity de-stroyed for tens of years, are a smoking monument of the governing politics in

Once more: "By their fruits shall ye know them."

And what has Europe obtained by its doings? Did it at least assure inter-national peace, and lead to a solution of the Eastern Question which should be adequate to the claims of civilization?

Nothing of the kind.

The Christian powers of Europe are day inspired by the same distrustfulness, by the same envy of competifulness, by the same envy of competition as ever; and in the fabulous country of the pyramids, on the rose-hills of the Balkan peninsula, on the "crown of the world," in Central Asia, and in fateful Eastern Asia; in Japan, and in the Celestial Empire—everywhere glitter thousands of rifles and bayonets close to thousands of barrels of gunpowder.

Every one of the powers which cooperated in this performance of intrigues—in which Germany and Austria played rather the rôle of spectators and of the ancient choir-has, at its best, deceived the other powers. But the unique and amusing thing in this ignominious tragi-comedy of falsehood and deceit is that the powers did deceive not only one another, but each every one, including itself. Turkey, to which they gave various hypnotic powders in order to put it into an eternal sleep, overcame quite well the mixtures given by its physicians—in spite of its paganism it must have as good a stomach as the Christian Church has-and it is now far more healthy and far stronger than ever before. And so the tragi-comedy might very well be called "The De-ceivers Deceived,"—Berlin, Ger., "Vor-waerts," organ of the Social Democratic

That we delegates to the State Convention of the Socialist Labor party of Connecticut earnestly entreat our fellow American wage workers to stop fooling with and being fooled by the parties of capitalism, life being too short and too precious to be wasted in the see-saw game of the Republican and Democratic politics for the benefit of our oppressors. Tenth Annual Report of the Connecticut State Committee, S. L. P.

Greetings to our Comrades and fellow

workingmen:
The past year has been in many ways remarkable. Never before have our speakers addissed such large and enthusiastic audiences.

The American people, who a few years ago had an aversion to Socialism, are now studying Socialistic literature with great interest, and many have be-come enthusiastic advocates of our idea. It is not hard to find the reason for this

For years and years the old parties have proven incompetent to rule the country in the interest of the people. The ever growing misery of many thou-sands of able-bodied men unable to find work and depending on charity breeds thousands of tramps as homeless wanderers all over the land.

Murder and suicide have doubled in

In the last five years.

In the shops we see cheap labor take the place of better pay, the woman and the child take the places of men, and the machine taking the places of all of them. Improvements in machinery, as well as in the methods of production. well as in the methods of production, makes human labor more and more superfluous.

Unable to find work, men must leave their families and wander the country in search of it.

The large number of unemployed makes it impossible for those in employ to make any demands, and, as a result of this, wages go down. The small capitalist is being rapidly driven to the wall. Years ago workingmen could start in business for themselves; now they find that the entering into business on a small scale is to lose what little they have.

TRADE UNIONS.

Strikes and boycotts, the weapons of the old "pure and simple" trades unlonists, are now not to be depended on. In this State of Connecticut more than two-thirds of all the strikers ing the last ten years were lost. In 28 out of 30 lockouts the workers were forced to submit to the dictates of the bosses. Trades unions in this State amount to little more than sick and burial societies, and as such some of them exist only by the will of the bosses in their representive trades.

During last year's political campaign the different parties came forth with their schemes to better the condition of "the dear brother workingman." The Republican party with its "sound money" and protection a return of confidence and prosperity was returned, but confidence and prosperity properly are concerned. Then there was the Democratic party, with the Populist as an conterned. Then there was the Demo-cratic party, with the Populist as an appendage, and most of the labor fakirs of the country in its employ, telling the working people that a "16 to 1 silver dollar" would help to better their condition. Against these parties and their schemes stood the Socialist Labor party with its platform demanding the abolishment of private ownership the means of production as the only solution. The Socialist Labor party, although numerically the smallest party, proved to be a very strong argumentative one. When its speakers appeared anywhere they were met by a large and enthusiastic audience. For the old party politician this was not very pleasant, but he knew enough not to enter into a debate with any Socialist of enter into a debate with any Socialist for fear that he might lose his prestige. Our speakers very easily showed that neither of the old parties was any good; that neither the gold nor silver issue would help the average worker as long as gold or silver barons fight for it with the expectation of making bigger profits, as in the past; that, the means of production in the hands of means of production in the hands of the capitalists, these will ever try to hire labor at bottom prices; to put in the place of the man machines invented and built by wage workers; to throw aside the mechanic, who has after much labor learned his trade, and make him a pauper. It was shown that if the means of production in the hands of the few were the cause of all this misery, the only way to change for the better is to everthrow the present system and make the means of production the prop-erty of all the people. For this we have stood in the past, and with this aim we have found our way into the hearts of the people.

THE MOVEMENT ABROAD.

The Socialist movement in Europe is in excellent condition. In Austria the workingmen demonstrated their disapproval of the condition of affairs by casting at their first opportunity at the casting at their first opportunity at the ballot box 800,000 votes. Italy shows a gain of 150 per cent. in two years. In France one and a quarter million and in Belgium 360,000 Socialist votes were cast at the late elections. All other countries show heavy gains for the Socialist party. At the time of the Hamburg dock strike the working class of Europe showed the wisdom of Socialist tactics in its solidarity of action. From fourteen different countries 150,000 marks were collected by the Socialist workingmen to aid the strikers in Hamburg: and in Germany where when burg; and in Germany, where "the workingmen eat dogmeat," as Mr. Sam. Gompers tells us, one and a half million marks were reject to half million marks were raised to help their fellow-

workingmen.
Where, in the history of strikes in America, under "pure and simple" man-agement, can such a show of solidarity be given?

Our European brethren show their solidarity at the ballot box as well as in the economic field.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

Our present Legislature, like its predecessors, was a true and faithful servant unto its master, the capitalist class. We, as Socialists, do not expect. anything from that class in the way of legislation in the interest of the workingman. But how must the "pure and simplers" feel after the utter failure of their paid workingmen lobbyists to secure the passage of any of their pro-posed measures in the interest of the workingmen by Republicans and Demo-

REPRESENTATION.

The injustice of our present system of representation in the Legislature of the State is one to which the Socialist Labor party of Connecticut, through its agitation, is calling the attention of the people to the extent that he old party leaders at election times take up the matter, but there drop it. They are well aware that it would not be for the advantage of either of them to have a change made. On examination of the official report it will be seen that out of 29 Democratic representatives 24 were elected with less than 325 votes each. In 1896, 314,331 votes were cast for the representative candidates of the differ-ent parties, of which 19,971 elected 126 representatives, or one-half of our representation in the house. The two representatives from New Haven received 23,912 votes.

WORK OF THE STATE COMMITTEE. During the year mass meetings, with English speakers, were arranged in Ansonia, Mrs. M. M. Avery and M. McGuire; Bridgeport, Mrs. Avery, Matchett, McGuire, Jones; Danbury, Matchett, Mrs. Avery; Hartford, Mrs. Avery, Matchett, Jones, Gordon; Meriden, Mrs. Avery, Matchett, Jones, Gordon; Meriden, Mrs. Avery, Matchett, Jones, Gordon; New Haven, Mrs. Avery, Matchett, McGuire, Jones, Carliss M. N. Y. City.-Last Saturday evening General Committee of Section Greater New York met in regular session, with Peter Fiebiger, of Borough of Kings in the chair, and A. Ramm, of Borough of Manhattan, vice-chairman.

The organizer submitted a written re-port on the condition of things in three of the Assembly Districts of Manhattan and one of the wards of Kings. He said that these bodies had been taken hold of by a certain Jewish element that was in open and public hostility to the prin-ciples and tactics of the party as ordered by the last National Convention, and by the last National Convention, and approved by an overwhelming referen-dum vote: that the said element used the party's funds and premises to give aid and comfort to a Jewish paper that was combating the party; that the conduct of said element prevented all agitation for the party being carried on in the said localities, kept bona fide Socialists from joining the said organizations, and caused others to drop away in disgust, of carries to participate in the disc. not caring to participate in the disor-derly meetings there held; and that the danger to the party from that source was increasing, owing to the wholesale packing of those districts by the admission of hostile elements consisting of youths ignorant of Socialism and of people adverse to the party. The organ-izer's report was accompanied by a docu-ment signed by a large number of loyal

Jewish Comrades residents of the dis-tricts in question, and substantiating more fully the organizer's report. The organizer recommended immediate ac-The debate upon the matter was ex-tensive; it consumed the whole session, which adjourned after midnight, and resulted in the adoption of a motion by 49 votes against 15 that the City Execu-tive Committee be instructed to inquire into the condition of the ward and dis-tricts referred to, with power to suspend and reorganize them if the charges and reorganize them it the charges against them be found true.

Louis Miller, who boasts of having voted for the "Reformer" Goff, and who was among the audience in the back of the hall, had for some time been interrupting the proceedings by ungentle-manly interjections in favor of the disruptionists. At one of his interruptions a motion to direct the Sergeant at Arms to put him out of the hall was promptly put and carried by all against 9 votes He was ejected amid loud plaudits.

source alone; that the class of land-lords, store-keepers, manufacturers and other rent-interest-and-profit collectors, when they pay to the city anything at all, do not pay a single cent out of their own rightful pockets, but do so out of the wealth produced by labor. Our verking people pay taxes with every dollar they pay for the privilege of having a roof over their starving bodies, they pay taxes with every pound of adulterated sugar, coffee, flour or bread they buy; they pay taxes with every yard of cheap, half-rotten cloth of which their fringed pants and clothes and the patches on them are made.

This being the case we claim that not only have propertyless wage-earners a right to say something as to the way our city-money is spent, but even to de-mand from the city authorities that they provide work for the unemployed before they spent a single dollar for anything else that is generally only calculated to increase the amount of com-fort of the well-to-do part of our population, instead of enabling the starv-ing bulk of our population to supply themselves and their families with the necessaries of life.

We' put these demands now and we will continue putting them so long as there is a single family in Buffulo, a single man, woman or child who lacks the necessaries of life; and everybod; knows that there are thousands of such people in Buffalo now.

In conclusion we wish to say that we hope that the city authorities will realize the urgency of our demands and will not try any more to answer them with assurances of their "sympathy" and to feed our hungry workmen and their families on the empty promises of com-ing "prosperity" that our people have been so liberally treated to during of last and all previous elections.

The season for phrases and promises has passed. The time for immediate, speedy and effective action has come. The choice now before the city authorities is either to take now such action in earnest or to take the conse-
